"The typical woman criminal in this year of disgrace," she said, "is surprisingly young. Often she isn't twenty-five years old before she has an interesting record. Her hair is usually bobbed. She dresses flashily but rather well, and the minute Paris decrees a new style of earring this lady is wearing it. She can drive a car; has to, for criminals use automobiles more than they use automatics to-day.

"The 'freedom' of women was never so free as it is now, to-day, in America.

"As for the reason why girls are more lured now by this freedom than they were formerly — it's all a part of the increasing circle of privileges which women at present enjoy. Don't think I advocate the old restricted life for women. Heaven forbid! But it's nevertheless true that the reason we have women criminals now is because the freedom of women is greater than ever before.

"There's something psychologic and ancestral about it, too. Woman formerly was the one who got brutal treatment. She has turned brute now. It wouldn't have been ladylike formerly to shoot a man because he didn't marry you. To-day it's almost a matter of course.

"There is, as any one can see, a terrific spirit of recklessness and of restlessness among girls. Crime is not on the increase. It is different. The urge is different. Women are coming into it more and more—it gives them greater self-expression. Yes, really: crime is with many women a form of self-expression.

"One of the greatest evils of the situation, as I see it, and as I have endeavored to show in 'Lilies of the Streets,' the metropolitan police picture, which I am proud to have sponsored, is that women having these tendencies, so readily become associated with the so-called men, who make a business of preying upon silly, thrill-seeking girls and women.

"The disarming influence of a well-dressed, frequently well-bred, and always sophisticated, woman is horrible to contemplate. Youth is given to hero — and heroine — worship, and the combination of male and female scoundrels, under their pleasure giving guise is, in all too many cases, irresistible.

"Neither the public in general, nor the mothers and fathers in particular, are aware, that the conditions exposed in "Lilies of the Streets" exist. But they do to the extent of being responsible for 60,000 girls being reported 'missing' in the course of a single year."

"THE UNWANTED," WIDELY DISCUSSED SCREEN SPECTACLE AT ROYAL ON MONDAY NEXT.

Direct from its sensational record-breaking runs in England and the United States, comes "The Unwanted," the tremendous screen spectacle of love, hate, passion and war. Conceded to be the finest offering that has ever issued from a British film studio this mighty photoplay, daring in theme and treatment, promises to duplicate its tremendous successes elsewhere during its premier local showing at the Royal theatre commencing Monday, October 12th.

"The Unwanted" presents something unique in motion picture art. Despite vast sums expended in staging the spectacle and the innovation of salvaging for the first time motion picture records of sanguinary engagements on the battlefield of the late war, the story is the thing.

The Metropolises of Europe form colorful setting for "The Unwanted." Venice on the Adriatic, St. Moritz, and the snow-capped Alps, Vienna, London and the scarred and pitted vistas of No-Man's-Land are by turns the locale for the dramatic story which is unfolded with a sureness of artistry and the deftness of touch.

The Great War as depicted in "The Unwanted" is alone enough to distinguish this great motion picture from its fellows. Films taken by a German cameraman from behind Teuton dug outs and from shell holes in the scar vistas of No.-Man's-Land are now brought to light for the first time. We see hand to hand fighting between the Boche and the Allies. Cold steel. Fear. Reckless bravery. Shellbursts. Confusion, Chaos. Victory. Defeat. Oblivion. The public of Peterborough will be flooded anew with realization of the sheer folly and the mighty awfulness of war.

A man with stern conceptions, a thorough going idealist, is rudely buffeted again and again by his wife's vagaries. Finally he flees for refuge to the mountain fastnesses of Switzerland.

Here of course fate plays one of her tender ironic pranks. And so he that would walk among the clouds finds that it is perhaps more reverberating, more comforting, even if a little dusty, to tramp along the high roads. Lord Carrington falls in love with a young Canadian girl.

From this point the story sweeps on with grand stroke and poignant touch, delineating human emotions and human weaknesses, and culminating in the most astounding climax ever depicted on the silver sheet.

Just a telephone message—but what drama—what pathos—what a world of soul-devastating events it leads into it—

"LILIES OF THE STREETS"

A Drama of Sensational Revelations

Based on Actual Experiences of
MARY E. HAMILTON
New York's Famous And First Policewoman

THE mother was busy playing Bridge, going to parties, cabarets enjoying herself! The father's entire thought was given to increasing his bank account! The daughter—like lot of other daughters—was allowed to seek her own amusements—her own companions!

Then, out of a clear sky, came the telephone message: "Your daughter is arrested! She is being held for murder!"

Can you picture the agony, the terror, the inability to cope with so gigantic a problem of those two parents? Perhaps you can — of the father—for he was just a self-complacent parent who figured he had done his duty to his child—because he had given her everything!

But the mother — you can't picture her frame of mind — because she had a secret and—

But why tell you all about it when you're going to see it to-night at the

AT THE CAPITOL

LOCOMOTIVES WRECKED DOING SCREEN STUNTS

Have you a locomotive in your home?

You have not. Almost everybody at some time or another has some kind of a flivver. But locomotives aren't as common as all that. They're hard to get. And when they get them in the movies they keep them just long enough to smash to pieces.

In "The Danger Signal," for instance, an engine is seen thundering along—and the next instant crashing into space to become a junk pile. "The Danger Signal," a new Columbia feature which comes to the Capitol Theatre next Monday deals with railroad love and adventure. Its cast includes Jane Novak, Dorothy Revier, Robert Edeson, Gaston Glass, Robert Gordon, and other well-known players.

The scene where the huge iron monster hurls itself over the hill, ends with the showing of the complete wreck. Erle C. Kenton, who directed this drama of the thundering tracks, was satisfied with the result, but if he had been displeased it would have taken a long time and great trouble to duplicate that one incident. And the great pile can not even be sold as junk since the cost of moving it far exceeds its value.

So it can be seen that it isn't an easy thing to film a wreck, and that it must be done with considerable care and preparation to achieve the desired result.

"MAKE 'EM LAUGH, MY MOTTO," JOHNNY HINES

"Make 'em laugh," says Johnny Hines, First Nationalists's latest star and the hero of "The Live Wire," which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day.

"The screen is literally flooded with productions having as their basis only marital and domestic troubles, commented the dynamic Hines recently. "Give the public the seamy side of life, show them their foibles, but mix it up judiciously with the proper amount of comic relief, and you will have the recipe for an enjoyable production.

"The average moviegoer wants to be entertained for the hour he or she attends a motion picture performance and if given their choice between a good comedy and a complicated domestic drama, the chances are that they will generally choose the former. Life is too hard a proposition to spend much time watching the troubles of others. We want to forget the things that are worrying us; we want to laugh, we want to give our imaginative selves a chance to live and function. And because motion picture comedies are in a measure able to meet that demand hordes of people the world over gladly flock to see the good comedies of the screen."

AT THE GRAND.

SEAT SALE FOR DUMBELLS IN "LUCKY 7" OPENS.

The advance sale of seats for The Dumbells' new revue, "Lucky 7", will open at the box office at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday, October 14th.

The engagement of this popular company is for three performances, commencing Friday, October 16th.

For this, the seventh season of The Dumbells in Canada, Captain Plunkett has provided a production that for sheer beauty and gorgeousness, has never been approached by a stage director in this country.

To enhance the brilliance and sparkle of these settings he has retained all the favorite stars of other years and added some new ones, and supplied them all with a wealth of material, songs, sketches, dances and ensemble numbers that offer the fullest scope for their versatile abilities.

Among the outstanding hits of "Lucky 7" may be mentioned the songs of Al. Plunkett, "Whiter Than Snow," and "As Long As She Loves Me", the songs and gowns of Ross Hamilton, the songs and acting in the various sketches of "Red" Newman, the songs of Stan. Bennet and the great comedy song "I'm Not All There", sung by Pat Rafferty.

The orchestra provides the fastest and most enjoyable twenty minutes imaginable, while Capt. Plunkett's song, "Yawning", introduced in the orchestra act stops the show.

The annual engagement of the Dumbells has become an institution here and there is every reason to believe that they will break all previous records with "Lucky 7".

AT THE REGENT

HARRY CAREY DISCUSSES THE NAVAJO INDIAN RACE.

Screen Star of "The Bad Lands" Authority on Indian Lore.

Harry Carey, who is at the Regent Theatre as the star of "The Bad Lands," his new Hunt Stromberg supervised production for Producers Distributing Corporation, is recognized as something of an authority on the Navajo Indians. He has made a study of their customs, their religion and their lore and has won their respect and admiration to such an extent that he now has a tribe of them living at his famous Trading Post on his ranch at Saugus California. Incidentally, Carey is the first white man who has ever succeeded in inducing the Navajos to leave their reservation, but the tribe at his Trading Post give every evidence of being happy and contented at the home of their "Big White Chief."

"The Navajo is the highest type of American Indian," Carey states. "He was among the last to leave the warpath of offence and defence, and finally when conquered, was among the first to become self-supporting. Though he still retains much of his wild nature, he has absorbed fewer of the white man's vices than have the adjacent tribes.

"In the form of government the Navajos have no head chief but they have a number of "head-men" whom they recognize as leaders generally because of their superior qualities, character and integrity. The office of "head man" usually gravitates to the man who can hold it—a natural born leader of men.

"The Navajo Indians make pottery, weave excellent but few baskets and hammer some silver. Art weaving is what they excel in, and in this they are far superior to all other American Indians. They weave into their blankets and rugs a glowing beauty of color and soft luster that only generations of experience can give, making their fabric the equal of anything produced in the Orient."

A tribe of Navajo Indians appear with Harry Carey in "The Bad Lands," as part of this action drama of early pioneer days was filmed on the border of their reservation in Arizona.

TIGER MANAGER WELL PLEASED AT SHOWING OF YOUNG PLAYERS

Marriot Contemplates Making Very Few Changes in the Squad For Saturday's Game at Montreal—Pivot Position Well Fortified.

DON PEDRO MAY PLAY.

Toronto has not recovered from the shock of Argonauts' defeat at the hands of Tigers here last Saturday, and Mike Rodden is turning the Oarsmen's team upside down in the effort to find some way of strenthening it. Fear, the speedy outside wing, who gained the Argos' try here on Saturday, is being tried out at centre half, a position which Rodden feels he will fill capably. Tommy Barrett, of flying wing fame will replace Thom at outside, and Bert Bradley will be used as flying wing. If the change does not result in the Oarsmen defeating Ottawa in the game at Toronto next Saturday, there will be another change made. In the meantime, the Tigers are satisfied with the way the team lined up on Saturday, and the only change to be made will come when Ernie Cox gets into condition.

The fact that Cox is turning out does not mean that any of the youngsters are going to be ditched. There is room for all, and as Marriott promised the newcomers early in the practice season that they would be given every chance, he intends to stick to his word. He feels that the material he has on hand can be molded into a championship aggregation, especially when Timmis and Gibb get back into the game. Timmis will be ready this week, but may not be used, and the club physician expects to have Gibb ready to play in the return game with Argos.

When Ernie Cox informed the Tiger management that he had decided to play for another season, he started something in the ranks of the veterans. Pete Burton has been twitching in his seat since he first heard the thud of the cleated hoof against the pigskin early in the season, and Don Pedro is going to don the moleskins this week and may figure in the game at Montreal. With Burton, McKelvey and Morris to handle the quarter-back duties, Marriott will be well fortified in the pivot position. Burton is one of the greatest tacklers that ever wore the yellow and black, and it may be that he will be used at rover or outside wing part of the time. However, Marriott can be depended upon to place the players where they will be most useful, and there is every reason to look for a victory in Montreal on Saturday, especially at the striped crew has a habit of winning in the eastern city.

The Tigers, with the exception of Gibb, are none the worse for Saturday's stiff battle with the Argos. Tilley turned an ankle during the game, but will be out to practice. The Tiger management is more than pleased with the showing made by the young players. They stood up well under a heavy gruelling from veteran football artists, and showed speed that offset the experience of the Oarsmen. The back division was particularly effective, Quinn and Walker making a combination which cannot be beaten in the "big four." It was Quinn and Walker who saved the day for Tigers on Saturday. They caught faultlessly and at no stage did they make mistakes which put their team in the hole. It is true that one of Dr. Quinn's attempts to drop-kick resulted in the ball being blocked and dribbled to the other end of the field, but that happens in the best of company. The team's tackling was exceptionally good, the youngsters who learned the game at the collegiate grassing the big fellows in the same manner that they did their opponents in the Interscholastic series. Frank McKelvey has come in for great praise for the manner in which he handled the quarter-back duties on Saturday, and Glen Small has already earned his spurs as far as the fans are concerned. He did great work on Saturday. The Argos did break through the Tigers several times, but with Cox back on the job that hole will be filled, and there promises to be no more excursions along that route during the remainder of the season. The victory of Saturday has given the young players the needed confidence, and there will be no stopping them from now on. They have the breaks for the next two weeks, as they play Montreal, which appears to be the weak member of the league, at Montreal next Saturday and back here the week following. Marriott is not underestimating the Winged Wheelers, however, and will send his strongest team against them. The Tigers will leave here on Friday morning, so as to not have to make the night ride.

JOHNSON HERO OF OPENING GAME PITCHING BAFFLED PITTSBURGH

Prophets' Predictions Were Confounded — Washington Shone in Attack and Pirates in Defense—Coveleskie and Aldridge Join Issue To-day.

TRAYNOR AND GRANTHAM BRILLIANT.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—The great right arm of Walter Johnson repulsed the Pittsburgh Pirates Wednesday in their first bold bid to take the world's baseball title from Washington's Senators.

The dash and fire, the highly touted howitzers of the Pirate batting batteries were of no avail against the crafty defence of Johnson yesterday afternoon. Smoke is a familiar home town product on Pittsburgh's fields of battle, but the Buccanneers found that the "Big Train" had a variety they couldn't negotiate when there was any prospect that hits would produce much - needed runs.

The Pirates trained their biggest guns on "Old Barney," but they could not find the range except for the one stroke put through by Traynor, who altogether got two of the quintet of safe blows obtained off Johnson. The others found a mark occasionally, but their aim was not true. More often they punched in vain at the air, for Johnson, among his ten strike-out victims, twice numbered Kiki Cuyler, Clyde Barnhart and Glenn Wright — three of the heaviest weapons in the Pittsburgh attack.

Johnson was a bit wild at times. He faced his biggest threat in the ninth inning, when the Pirates got two men on base with only one out, but Traynor and Wright could do nothing but lift his shoots aloft for easy outs.

Johnson's brilliant triumph was all the greater to him, for it marked the first full game he had pitched to victory in a world's series. Last fall, after eighteen long years of waiting, it seemed that this was to be denied to "Barney" when the Giants beat him in his first two starts, after which he came back to gain his glory by pitching the decisive part of the final game. Yesterday, Johnson carried on where he left off last October, but this time he had his full measure of triumphant achievement.

Johnson towered above everything else in yesterday's game. The courageous pitching of his rival, Meadows; the sparkling fielding of the Pirates, particularly by Traynor and Grantham; the heavy hitting of Rice, Joe Harris and Bluege; the colorful enthusiasm of the vast crowd, witnessing its first home world's series struggle in sixteen years; the return of the old stars of those halcyon days—Wagner, Fred. Clarke, Babe Adams—all this paled beside the dominating force of Johnson.

But the "Big Train" needed all his cunning to turn back this spectacular young Pirate band and he was well supported by his own mates who again proved their ability as a combination to rise to their best at big moments.

Defensive laurels, however, for the most part belonged to the Pirates, with attacking honors going to Washington where pre-series predictions had largely been based on a reverse situation. Traynor and Grantham, particularly, shone in the field for the Buccanneers, the former making a remarkable diving catch of a line drive by Ruel that cut off at least a two-base hit, while Grantham speared Goslin's smoking wallop in the fourth and converted it into a double play with Stan. Harris far off base.

To-day, Washington will send its other right-handed ace, Stanley Coveleskie, to the mound in an effort to make it two straight, while the Pirates are expected to rely on Vic Aldridge, another starboard moundsman.

STIFF DRILLING FOR QUEEN'S MEN

Teams Reshuffled, Norrie Will Appear at Middle Wing; Wright Substitute.

SKELTON HURT.

KINGSTON, Ont., October 8. — The colder weather to-day didn't bother Queen's Rubyists any and they were out in force at the Richardson Stadium to practice yesterday afternoon. Led by coach W. P. Hughes, and assistant coach Orin Carson, the players were given a stiff drilling and were mighty glad when it was over.

"Snag" Skelton, substitute outside wing, was missing from the practice. Skelton was slightly hurt in Tuesday's practice and was taken to the general hospital, but while his condition is not serious, he will likely be out of the game against Varsity.

"Chick" Mundell, who came up on Friday from Montreal, was worked at quarter, and it is currently rumored that both Baldwin and Mundell will be alternated at quarter against Varsity. The flying wing position also gave coach Hughes some thought today, and there was more or less shifting about. Britton looks like a starter at flying wing, with Bud Thomas dropping back to his old place at outside wing, thus giving Wright the substitute role.

The rest of the team will be the same as last year with the exception that Norris will start at middle wing in the place of Reynolds, who graduated this year.

DESPITE RAIN OTTAWA TRAIN

Tubman Hope Injured Leg Will Be Ready For Saturday's Game.

QUIETLY CONFIDENT.

OTTAWA, Oct. 8. — (Canadian Press). — For the second day in succession rain fell here at the hour of the Ottawa Rugby practice Wednesday afternoon, but this did not deter the Senators in their workout, and the full crew was on hand for a smart drill. Every man of the big squad was on hand and McCann hustled them through a snappy hour and a half.

Joe Tubman tested his sore leg and got along on it fairly well, but the boil on his arm kept Charlie Connell on the sidelines. He claims that it will be alright for Saturday's contest in Toronto and hopes are held out that this is so.

No underestimation is being made of the strength of Argonauts, but there is a quiet optimism around the camp that the oarsmen will at least be extended to their utmost if the Senator clan does not annex a victory. Intense interest has been aroused over Ottawa's chances for a title and a big band of supporters will likely accompany the team to Toronto on Friday night.

SOX AND CUBS FINISHED EVEN

Score Was 2-2 When Darkness Put Stop to the Contest.

CUB ACE OUTPITCHED.

CHICAGO, October 8. Canadian Press. — The White Sox and Cubs battled to a 19-inning draw yesterday in the first game of the city series, with the score 2 to 2. Darkness stopped the contest.

Grover Alexander, the veteran pitcher of the Cubs, was pitted against Ted Blankenship, the young cowboy, who outpitched the Cub ace, both pitchers going the entire route.

Alexander was touched for 20 hits, ten coming after the twelfth inning, when Alexander showed signs of weakness. Blankenship improved as the game progressed, the Cubs only making two hits after the tenth inning. He gave his rivals only eleven for the entire game.

INDOOR BOWLERS GETTING READY

"Protest" Was Lodged in Game at Water Street Tuesday Night.

NEW LEAGUE FORMED.

An event of unusual interest took place at the Alleys Tuesday night in the shape of the first semi-annual competition of the Forsyth-Fashion Craft.

A beautiful silver cup on an ebony base has been donated by John Forsyth of the The Forsyth Shirt Co. of Kitchener, for which there will be semi-annual matches.

In the first of these meetings Fashion Craft took three straight games from Forsyths with a margin of nearly 600 pins. Immediately following the match I. Brophy, who led his team to defeat, announced that he would file an official protest in due course but refused to advise on what grounds. However, during the course of the match Mr. Brophy complained of an alleged conspiracy between the Fashion Crafts and their official bootlegger, who, he claimed, kept telephoning him during the progress of the match with the information that business was unusually brisk and his stock would soon be depleted thus causing the Forsyths to unduly hurry their game. It is believed that it is on this ground that the protest will be based and the Fashion Craft are planning their defence in accordance. It is even possible that counter charges will be made of attempted bribery and corruption.

Summary of scores:

ACCIDENT AT BASEBALL.

Douro Pitcher Broke Small Bone in Game With Indian River Tigers.

DOURO, Oct. 8—On Saturday afternoon the Indian River Tigers played baseball at Asphodel, beating the Asphodel team 19-15. A very regrettable accident happened early in the game when Harry Fitzgerald, the teams crack pitcher, stepped on a small stone when on a spurt to first base. He suffered intense pain and was immediately rushed to a doctor where it was found that a small bone was broken. It is to be hoped that no permanent injury will result as Harry is a very expert pitcher and is the glory of the team and the fans. The game continued with Joseph Lonergan pitching for the local team. The line-up of the home-team was: p., Fitzgerald and Lonergan; c, W. Devlin; 1b, G. Cavanagh; 2b, B. Davidson; 3b, B. Allen; lf, M. Fitzgerald; rf, Frank Beaver; cf, R. Walsh; ss, Alex Carlow.

PITTSBURGH FAVORITE.

This is Wright, speedy shortstop of the Pittsburg Nationals, who is a hero in his home town. In the Pirate game with the Phillies in Pittsburg the Quakers got three men on base, and one run in, and needed only one run to tie. Huber of the Phillies, lifted a fly ball to short left field, which could have fallen safe. Wright, however, sped like a comet and managed to get his "hooks" on the ball. He sent a perfect throw to the home plate, catching Durning speeding from third for the last out, cinching the flag for Pittsburg.

MYSTERY SHIP IS PEACE GUARANTEE

Crowd Watched Nelson Speed Down Ways in Perfect Launching.

MAINTAIN SEA FORCE.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 6 (Canadian Press Despatch).—H. M. S. Nelson, first of the two great capital ships allowed Great Britain under the Washington treaty, has been launched at Tynecastle after two and a half years' work. It will be completed in a year, and has been termed the "mystery ship," because the Admiralty has been secretive regarding the many new features which she embodies. The Nelson may have triple turrets, and her boilers, funnels and machinery are further aft than in other ships. She is expected to carry nine 16-inch guns and 12 six-inch guns, with an extensive anti-aircraft armament. A special train brought a contingent of distinguished persons from London, to witness the christening of the ship by Dame Caroline Bridgeman, wife of the First Lord of the Admiralty, and the Tyneside hills were crowded as the grey bulk sped down the muddy waters of the Tyne, in a perfect launching.

Mr. Bridgeman emphasized that there was no new competition in armaments, or act of aggression in the launching of the Nelson. Both the Nelson and her sister ship the Rodney, were being built under terms of the Washington Treaty. "But so long as there are armaments in the world," said Mr. Bridgeman, "and we are an island nation and centre of an Empire spread over the world, so long must we remember never to let our strength at sea go down. We look upon the Nelson and all ships of her kind as a guarantee for the peace and security of the world, a menace to evil-doers but a security to all lovers of peace."

FAIR TIPPLERS FORM FIELD FOR CRITICISM

Visitors to London Struck Unfavorably By Lady Bar Frequenters.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 6 (Canadian Press Despatch).—One feature of social life in England which often strikes the visitor from overseas unfavorably is the readiness with which women—perfectly respectable women—will enter public house bars, no matter whether they are attended by a male companion or not. In London and certain other large centres, certain saloon-keepers have compartments reserved for "ladies only." In other bars it is common for a notice to be displayed requesting that "ladies who are unaccompanied by a gentleman will remain no longer than is necessary for the purpose of obtaining refreshment." On the other hand plenty of licensees refuse to have women customers at all.

Apparently the only district where a woman cannot obtain liquor on licensed premises is that of Middlesborough, in Yorkshire. During the war years the licensed victuallers agreed, on the suggestion of the Licensing Magistrates, to close their bars to women. The local licensed Victuallers' Association, however, has now to notify the Chief Constable that in future they are prepared to supply women on their premises. It is understood that some of the large firms who have several licensed houses under their control intend to continue to conform to the magistrates' wishes.

GUESSING CONTEST

An interesting contest in connection with the Keene Fair was held by Mr. G. S. Taylor, who exhibited a large quantity of merchandise in the Main Building. Mr. Taylor had a certain brand of overalls on view, guessing nearest to the correct and awarded a pair to the person number of yards of thread used in making a pair of them.

The total number of yards of thread used was 152 3-4 yards. Two persons guessed nearest to the correct amount, placing it at 165 yards. These were Mrs. Wm. Knox, 516 Water street, Peterboro, and Mr. Samuel Spence of Lakefield.

Piscatorial Ancients Antecede Dinosaurs

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—Fossil fish claimed to be from fifty to a hundred million years old have been brought back from the Gaspe Peninsula in Quebec by Prof. A. S. Romer, of the University of Chicago, who says that the ancient province of Quebec has no idea how old it really is.

These fish are five times as old as the dinosaurs, Prof. Romer says, and probably swam the waters many decades before animals began to roam the land. In the collection, which is being shipped here from Canada, are two dozen complete skeletons and fifty partial ones weighing altogether about 500 pounds. They vary from an inch length to skulls foot long.

MANY HIDDEN FOES LURK IN CITY AIR

A Million Bits of Poison-Laden Dust Invade Our Lungs When We Breathe.

There are many queer things in the air we breathe; most of them dangerous, many of them a real menace to life and health. Especially is this true of cities, where factories, hurrying crowds, and rushing vehicles all contribute to the invisible enemies that attack us as we drink in the oxygen essential to life.

These unseen foes ride on dust particles stirred up by the feet of pedestrians and the wheels of traffic. The average persons inhales about 30 cubic inches of air every time he breathes, in which there are likely to be between half a million and a million particles of dust carrying such dangerous components as:

Germs of many diseases, including tuberculosis.

Garbage, pollen, leaf dust, and other vegetable matter.

Steel and other metal particles from factories, car tracks, and the moving parts of motor vehicles.

Soot and dust from factory smokestacks.

Insect eggs and fragments of insect bodies.

Poison gases from industrial furnaces, and, probably the most deadly menace of all, carbon monoxide from the exhaust pipes of motor vehicles.

The only reason we can withstand the ravages of our unseen enemies of the air is that we have been provided with a marvelous mechanism for repelling their attacks. Most of the germs in the air do us no harm because they are died out. Moreover, no germ, even if harmful, can injure us until it gets into the blood, and formidable barriers, such as the mucous membrane in the nose and throat and the delicate hairs in the lining of the windpipe and bronchial tubes prevent this. Particles and germs getting beyond this first line find waiting a powerful army of red corpuscles and cells to rest them.

In gases, however, lies great danger. The carbon-monoxide poison from automobile exhausts, for example, is admitted into the blood as readily as oxygen. Slightly more than a quart of carbon-monoxide is enough to kill a person, according to tests made recently by the United States Bureau of Mines, produces as much as two cubic feet of it a minute.

A man just can tolerate four parts of carbon-monoxide in 10,000 parts of air. Six quarts produce headache, and one per cent might cause death if the exposure were prolonged. Vapors from an automobile exhaust sometimes contain as much as 10 per cent carbon-monoxide.

An investigation to determine just how dangerous carbon-monoxide on city streets is to public health now is being made by the Health Department of New York City.

BRITISH ANTHRACITE GOOD FOR FURNACE

Said to Possess High Heating Value—Low Content—Facile Control.

OTTAWA, Ont. Oct. 6 (Canadian Press).—A statement issued by The National Resourses Intelligence Service says: "Is the British anthracite coal being received in Canada in increasing quantities a suitable domestic fuel for this country? This is a question that has agitated many life-long users of American anthracite.

"The Fuel Testing Laboratories of the Department of Mines which have been testing various domestic fuels on instructions from Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Mines, report that British anthracite is an excellent fuel to use in domestic furnaces. It possesses a high heating value, a very low content (4 to 5 per cent.) and is easy to control. It is somewhat more friable than American anthracite but not to an objectionable degree, and the dust forms an excellent banking material for maintaining a fire throughout the night.

"A phenomenal increase in importations of British anthracite has occurred the last three years. Of this fuel, which is practically all consumed in the central provinces for domestic purposes, Canada imported in 1922 but 165,000 tons, in 1923, 240,000 tons; in 1924, 273,000 tons, and in 1925, to August 31, 341,000 tons. Estimates vary as to the total importations for 1925, but it will, in all probability reach a half million tons."

PROSPERITY OF DOMINION SHOWN BY ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT

D. C. Durland, Head of Canadian General Electric, Is Optimistic.

SEES GOOD FUTURE.

Country With Such Facilities Can't Help Progressing He Says.

This is an age in which there is an increasing development of electricity and of the distribution of apparatus, large and small, for the use of electricity. It is not entirely an electrical age, but it is the threshold of an electrical age. The path of progress is being blazed by electricity.

An electric light is not at all a bad guide to a proper view of present day business conditions. Such large manufacturers of electrical equipment as the Canadian General Electric Co. or the Canadian Westinghouse Company touch business, social and industrial life at many angles. 'You cannot ride in a motor car or an elevator, turn on a radio set or a vacuum cleaner without using some of the products of the electrical equipment companies. Their business is a reflex of varied business and their business is good.

Nothing But Optimism.

The Canadian General Electric Co. recently elected a new president, D. C. Durland. Like Sir Henry Thornton after his appointment as president of the National Railways, Mr. Durland at once made a survey of Canada. He travelled from coast to coast and in several interviews, notably at Halifax, expressed himself as optimistic about the industrial future of Canada. He came from the American General Electric Co., was accustomed to operations on a tremendously large scale and to markets far beyond the magnitude of the Canadian market. A man with this experience could not be dazzled by what Canada had to show him.

Yet he returned to Toronto and declared himself much impressed by Canada's achievements and possibilities. We had much electrical power both actual and potential. Industry must come where there is cheap power. As in the past century located near coal, so in this century thede would be an increasing concentration of industry near the sources of electrical power. It was cheap and abundant power adjacent to wood supply that had caused the pulp and paper industry of 9,000,000 people to equal that of 110,000,000 people.

For the same reason the aluminium company was planning a great industrial development along side of the 800,000 horse-power of the Saguenay.

"There was no reason for anything but optimism in a country which possessed electrical power."

This development of electrical power has meant big business for the Canadian firms that supply equipment. The Saguenay project has already caused a very large order to be placed in Canada.

In Path of Progress.

Mr. Durland gave to The Star yesterday some of the optimistic views he had formed as the result of his all-Canada survey. He saw here not the magnitude of the United States but a steady growth, which promised in time to attain something of the magnitude of the United States.

"I found the electrical industry," said he, "in a relatively strong position. There is no doubt about its future. It is in the direct path of modern progress. There is an increasing demand for electrical equipment because there is an increasing use of electricity in homes and factories. Radio is an invention that has greatly added to the business of electrical equipment companies. One can be certain in the modern world that there will be new inventions and that these will involve the use of electrical equipment. In Canada because of extensions to existing power plants and the development of new water powers there will be a persistent demand for heavy electrical machinery."

Sees Increased Exports.

Water falls and new buildings, motor cars, motor garages, radio sets, beauty parlors and kitchens all made contributions to the makers of electrical equipment. Their prosperity was the index of many prosperities. A great wheat crop meant not only a run in binder twine, but a run on electrical wiring. In short, the electrical equipment business was wired to the rest of business and was one of its sympathetic nerve centres.

As for conditions in general Mr. Durland said: "Canada has made wonderful progress for a young country but of course it has perplexing problems. However business is undoubtedly moving forward under the influence of great western harvests which will increase the purchasing power of both country and city."

There were also favorable external business factors. He saw in the decided increase of Canadian export trade an indication of economic improvement in Europe and of better world conditions generally.

Members From Club to Facilitate Trip to Re-union.

MONTHLY MEETINGS.

Members of the 21st Battalion were present at a social meeting held last night in the Sergeants' Mess in the Armouries.

Some business matters were discussed. A club was formed of members willing to make weekly deposits in a fund, the purpose of which was to finance attendance at the annual re-union which will be held next year in Belleville.

Arrangements were made whereby monthly social evenings will be held in the Sergeants' Mess. Committees will provide refreshments for each meeting.

Last night a musical entertainment was provided by D. Melton and J. Smith, who sang several selections, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Mann, St. John's Church organist, and Harold Follis.

Refreshments were provided by G. Melton, C. Newman and D. Maconomy.

JUDGMENT HELD ON WILL QUESTION

Justice Grant Withholds Decision on Will of Anna M. Stonehouse.

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press).—Justice Grant has reserved judgment on an application for construing of the will of the late Anna M. Stonehouse, Port Perry, in whose estate the Hospital for Sick Children, National Sanatarium, Children's Aid Society of the County of Ontario, Port Perry Women's Missionary Society and Protestant Children's Fresh Air Fund of Ontario are interested. The questions submitted to the court are whether the devise of house and furniture to Mary Real, sister of the testatrix, confers an absolute ownership on her or merely a life estate with the right to use such portion of the corpus necessary for her maintenance, and whether, if entitled to a life interest only, does that not govern her power of appointment during her life over the principal and interest of the whole estate.

GANG OF GUNMEN ROB RESTAURANT

PATRONS RIFLED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 8.—(United Press).—A gang of eight men to-day held up a restaurant, rifling two hundred patrons, waiters and the cash register of $2,500.

The robbery occurred in a busy district, while people passed outside. The eight men were led by one who brandished two guns and who gave the command, "Stick 'em up."

The gunmen otherwise were described as "extremely polite." They used violence only once when a waiter showed reluctance about opening the cash register. He was beaten with the butt end of a revolver.

After they had searched every customer for jewellery, money and valuables they calmly retreated, warning the proprietor that a gunman outside covered their escape.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

One common weakness among golfers in their driving is that they fail to stiffen the left leg as the clubhead passes through. However well you are doing, you will always do much better by watching this point until the knack of stiffening the left leg at that point becomes automatic. When I wish to make absolutely sure of a shot I remind myself to stiffen this leg against the club-head's blow. There are few things that will yield that wanted extra 25 yards off the tee like a left leg stiffened against the ball at the movement the clubhead hits. This provides the utmost leverage against the ball. The braced left knee accentuates the clubhead throw.

Pittsburgh -	0	0	0	1	0	0	0	2	x	3	7	0

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press).—The battle for the 1925 World's Baseball Championship entered its second phase today, with Washington Senators one up over Pittsburg Pirates.

The weather conditions were even better than yesterday, as the two teams took the field to warm up for the tussle.

The sun shone down warmly on the scene and there was a balmy touch to the air that made early arrivals—mostly occupants of the bleachers and press box—more comfortable than they were yesterday in the snappy breeze that filtered through the park.

The flag on the centre field flag pole was at half mast, to remind the fans that baseball overnight had lost one of its greatest figures, in the death of Christy Mathewson.

Pittsburgh's squad was the first to take the field for practice, and there was no evidence in their snappy work of dejection over yesterday's opening defeat.

"There's only one Walter Johnson," said Manager McKechnie, in reference to the baffling work of the Washington ace yesterday. "We couldn't do anything with him, but this is another day, and we're out to square things up."

The Line Up.

WASHINGTON.—Rice, cf; S. Harris, 2b; Goslin, lf; Judge, 1b; J. Harris, rf; Bluege, 3b; Peckinpaugh, ss; Ruel, c; Coveleskie, p.

Time—2 p.m., Eastern standard time.

Five minutes before game time, Umpire Owens called the two clubs to the plate, where they lined up. The players of each club wore mourning bands on their left arm for Christy Mathewson. Led by the band the two clubs, in parallel lines marched across the field from the home plate to deep centre field where exercises were held briefly in honor of the late President of the Boston Braves. There was a solemn hush among the fans as the two clubs faced each other. The band played "Nearer My God to Thee," while the immense crowd stood with uncovered heads. The band then played "The Star Spangled Banner."

First Innings

Senators.—Vic Aldridge took a brief warm up after he got to the box and after Granthan conferred with Aldridge a few minute, Rice took his position at the plate. Aldridge's first pitch was wild, and Traynor rushed over to talk to him. Wright threw out Rice at first. Pittsburgh in the field kept talking to Vic. Stan Harris went out on strikes, swinging a foot over Aldridge's drop ball. Goslin hit a long fly to Carey, and the Pittsburgh crowd cheered for a full minute. Aldridge worked nothing but a curve all through the inning.

No runs, no hits, nor errors.

Pittsburgh—Moore hit into a fast breaking spitter. Peckinpaugh threw out Moore, coming in fast to get his slow roller. Carey struck out on three spit balls. Coveleskie kept the ball around Carey's knees. Stan Harris threw out Cuyler at first. It was Stan Harris' first chance for an assist in the series.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

HOME RUN

Senators—Judge got a home run into the right field stands. He caught a fast curve on the end of his bat and the ball sailed high and far. Joe Harris shot a fast grounder past Wright for a base. Joe Harris was thrown out stealing. Yde is now warming up for Pittsburgh. Barnhart took Bluege's high fly. Traynor threw out Peck, and Grantham made a glove-hand stop of Traynor's wide throw. It saved Trayner an error.

One run, two hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Barnhart sent out a fly to Rice. Covey kept the ball around Trayner's knees. Bluege smothered Trayner's hot smash and threw him out. Wright singled to right. Covey tried to pick Wright off first. Wright went to second on a passed ball. Grantham having his troubles gauging Covey's damp fling. Stan Harris made easy work of Grantham, throwing him out at first.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

Senators.—Ruel fanned. Ruel was fooled by Aldridge's drop ball. Covey also fanned. Rice slashed a line single into centre. Aldridge tried to get Rice off first. Again Aldridge tried to pick Rice off first. On a balk by Aldridge Rice went to second, the balk unsteadied Aldridge. Wright threw out Stan Harris at first and the danger was over.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pittsburgh.—The sky was now becoming overcast with a pall of smoke. Smith got a line single into left, and this started Pittsburgh's crowd howling. Aldridge forced Smith, Covey to Harris. The Senators had a double play in sight, but Harris dropped the ball and got Smith at second. Moore struck out. Carey singled into right. Aldridge stopping at second. Cuyler forced Carey, Pack to Stan Harris.

No runs, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Senators—Wright made a beautiful stop of Goslin's seeming hit and then got him by a quick throw. Goslin claimed that Aldridge's threw drew Grantham off the bag. Barnhart robbed Judge of a two-base hit with a running catch. Aldridge is bearing down with every pitch. Joe Harris singled off Traynor's glove. It was a line smash and Traynor went into the air after it. Aldridge tried to get J. Harris off first, and Harris gave him the laugh. Cuyler took Bluege's long fly which looked as if it was going into the stands for a home run.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

HOME RUN

One run, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Senators. — Peck singled over Wright's head. Aldridge tried to get Peck off first. Ruel singled into centre, Peck stopping at second. Yde is now warming up for Pittsburgh. Smith went out to the box to talk to Aldridge. Aldridge took Covey's bunt and threw to third to get Peck. It was a sacrifice hit and a fielder's choice. Oldham is now warming up for Pittsburgh. Bases were filled and one out. Pittsburgh in field came in on grass. Rice was waiting Alridge out but Alridge was steady. Aldridge took Rice's grounder and threw to Smith and Pack was out at the plate. The bases were still loaded. Stan Harris forced Ruel at the plate.

Bases are still loaded. Goslin in, went out to Grantham, unassisted, and Pirates crawled out of a bad hole. Fans cheered for several minutes.

It was a fine exhibition of pitching by Aldridge.

No runs, 2 hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh — Smith was hitting Covey's spitter into the dirt. Smith took the third called strike. Aldridge got a great hand. Peck took Aldridge's easy roller and threw him out. Peck also took care of Moore's hopper and tossed him out.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings

BLEUGE HURT

Senators.—Max Carey stood still and took Judge's hoist. Joe Harris sent up high fly, which Carey took behind second base. A fast ball hit Bluege in back of head. He fell prostrate to ground, holding his hands to his head, while players rushed to his aid. A doctor was called. The blow could be heard all over the field. After a few minutes Bluege got up, holding his head in his hands. It seemed doubtful whether he would be able to play as he was apparently unsteady as he rose to his feet. He still held his head in his hands. Stanley Harris talked with Bluege to ascertain if he felt that he could continue in game. Bluege was in no condition to continue, and he was helped from the field. Myer ran for Bluege. Myer went out stealing, Smith to Wright. Crippling of Bluege was blow to Washington.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pittsburgh—Myer went to third base for Washington. Bluege's fielding has been a feature of the Senator's defence. Carey beat out a bunt. He caught Myer flat-footed back of third. Covey was trying to hold Carey close to bag. Cuyler sacrificed Covey to Stan Harris. Peck threw out Barnhart, Carey going to third. Ruel rescued Covey from a wild pitch. Traynor walked. Crowd was feverish with excitement. Wright forced Traynor. Peck to Stan Harris.

No runs, one hit, one error.

Marberry went down to the bull pen to warm up for Washington. Ruel sent out a line drive to Barnhart. Traynor threw out Covey, taking his weak splash.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Pirates.—Stan Harris made easy work of Grantham's roller and threw him out. Judge took Smith's grounder and beat him to the bag. Aldridge popped to Peck.

Eighth Inning.

Senators.—Rice singled over the middle bag. It was his second hit of the game. Stan Harris sacrificed, Grantham to Moore. Rice was on second. Goslin lashed a vicious foul to right, and broke his bat. He had to get a new one. Aldridge threw out Goslin, Rice going to third. Judge sent up a high fly to Moore.

No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pirates.—Peck juggled Moore's hopper and the batter was safe. Carey fouled the ball trying to sacrifice. On a hit and run Moore went to second when Stan Harris threw out Carey at first. Moore scored ahead of Cuyler's home run into the right field stand. The crowd was in an uproar. The ball hit the ground and bounced into the stand. Barnhart singled past Peck. Peck Juggled Traynor's grounder and both runners were safe. The crowd kept up a continuous cheering while the Pirate rally was on. Wright fouled out to Myer. Ruel made a wonderful catch of Grantham's foul.

Two runs, two hits, two errors.

Ninth Inning.

Senators—Harris walked, McNeely running for J. Harris. Myer singled into left; McNeely halting at second Adams is now warming up for Pittsburgh. Peck walked. Bases filled, none out. Veach batted for Ruel, McNeely scored on Veach's sacrifice fly to Harris. Myer held second. Reuther batter for Covey. Ruether struck out. Rice went out, Moore to Grantham.

One run, one hit, no errors.

Too Bad House Wives Not Paid For Services

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 8 (United Press)—If the housewives of America were to be paid for their services on a wage basis their payroll would reach the staggering total of $17,-000,-000,000 annually—enough money to run the United States government both nationally and locally for one year.

A century ago the British Parliament sanctioned the construction of the Monkland Railway in Scotland. Its motive power was the wind, and umbrellas were hoisted to catch it and send the trains along. The wind was not always in the right direction, and in these circumstances the train was pushed.

MEIGHEN SAYS CANADA DEPENDS ON PROTECTION

Alternative is to Ship Resources and Citizens to United States.

TREATY CRITICIZED.

Antipodean Lands Are Flourishing Without Free Trade, He Says.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—Closing his address here yesterday afternoon, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen argued that Canada depends for its very life upon protection. The alternative was, the opposition leader declared, to ship our resources, son and daughters to the U. S., after educating the latter, then buy back the finished product. Mr. Meighen criticized the Canada - Australian trade treaty which he said gave little to Canada and took too much in return. The antipodean countries, he said, were flourishing and there was not free trade to be found though labor and progressive adherents were plentiful.

PREMIER SAYS HE WANTS ROAD FINISHED SOON

Liberal Candidate in Saskatoon Strong For Line.

NO PROMISE MADE.

Hudson Bay Railway Could Have Been Completed Before This, Says King.

SASKATOON, Sask., October 8.—Canadian Press. — Premier King carried his campaign yesterday into the heart of the Hudson Bay country—the country where the completion of the Hudson Bay line has become a vital issue.

Dr. Young, the Liberal candidate for Saskatoon, pressed for it from the outset.

"I stand four square for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, and for doing it at once," he said.

Premier King declared that had the west returned members willing to cooperate with the members from the other parts of the Dominion "the Hudson Bay Railway would have been completed ere this."

"I want to make my position clear" exclaimed the Prime Minister. "The government wants to have that road completed immediately. That is our desire. But how far we can go in carrying out our desires must depend upon the complexion of parliament."

"How many miles per member will you complete?" queried a voice.

Mr. King: "I'm afraid that if I say that I will go the limit if you will go the limit, Mr. Meighen would say that I am trying to bribe this constituency on the prirle."

DROVER KILLED IN CAR WRECK

Chicago Wheat Suffered An Early Material Reverse

CHICAGO, October 8. Canadian Press. — Wheat prices suffered a material new setback early to-day Reports were at hand that the weather in the spring crop territory in the northwest had improved and that the export demand had flattened out everywhere. Opening 7-8c to ¼ 3-8c lower; new style, December 1.38 to 1.36½ and May $1.37 to $1.38 was followed by something of a rally and then by fresh downturns.

Corn again out'd the season's low price record for all deliveries. Wheat weakness acted as a weight on corn values and on oats as well. After opening unchanged to ⅛c lower, December 75 to 75 1-8; corn underwent a general decline, December touching 74 3-8. Oats started unchanged to 3-8c off; December 39 to 39 1-8. Later market held to initial figures. Provisions went lower with hogs and grain.

Toronto Change Registers Retrenching Tone Movement

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—(Canadian Press.)—A slight weakening of the firm tone shown during the week took place on the Toronto stock exchange this morning. With a decrease in the volume of trading, Brazilian and Consolidated Smelters remained leaders, and Smelters climbed 138 7-8 during the morning, easing off to 138 at the close for a gain of two and half points.

Brazilian advanced three-eighths at 72 7-8 and Canada Steamships Preferred gained one point at 51 1-2; Abitibi and Dominion Stores Preferred both eased a point and Barcelona lost a half at 21. Canadian Canners Common sold down five-eighths, while the more active preferred eased a half.

PROFITED FROM BIG CONVENTION

Ald. Jones Regrets That New Aldermen Unable to Get Valuable Information.

By his attendance at the convention of the International Fire Chiefs at Louisivlle, Ky., Ald. R. N. Jones was convinced of the value of sending municipal representatives to such meetings at which problems of civic management are discussed He and Chief Gimblett recently returned from the convention with valuable information of efficiency methods in the administration and operation of a fire department but also in other departments of a city's affairs.

"An idea that struck me as I thought over my experience at Louisivlle," said Ald. Jones, was that it was too bad the city could not send newly-elected aldermen to such conventions. They would learn at the very outset things that would save the city perhaps thousands of dollars as the result of the knowledge such aldermen would obtain by meeting aldermen and fire chiefs from all parts of America. Other municipal conventions would be equally valuable. As it is the new alderman gropes around for a year or two before he gets to know the details of the job the people have given him."

Ald. Jones said he was not recommending the idea because he realized it was too radical, but its benefits, he contended, were obvious.

There were 1200 Fire Chiefs at the convention, apart from members of city councils and other civic reas was so warm in Louisville that all the delegates went around in their shirt sleeves, but when they reached Ontario the thermometer was dipping around the freezing mark.

WEDDING BELLS.

CAREY—TYLER.

St. Clair Avenue United Church, Toronto, was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding on Monday evening, when Clara Eleanor, third daughter of Mrs. Tyler and the late Mr. J. H. Tyler, of Toronto, became the bride of Mr. Harry J. Carey, son of Mr. J. W. Carey and the late Mrs. Carey, Peterborough.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Harry Tyler, looked charming in her wedding gown of white georgette, handsomely trimmed with silver lace and crystal beads, and wore silver shoes and hose. Her only ornaments were a string of pearls, and a beautiful brilliant bandeau in her hair. She carried an old fashioned nosegay of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. The wedding music was played by Mr. J. N. Shannon.

After the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. W. H. Graham, pastor of the church, the guests were entertained at a wedding dinner, given by the bride's mother, in a private dining room of the Queen's hotel.

Later in the evening the happy couple left for a honeymoon trip to Montreal, New York and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a black satin costume, a small black hat, satin shoes, and wore the gift of the groom, a beige fox fur. Upon their return they will reside in Peterborough.

JAMES W. CAREY.

Death came suddenly to one of Peterboro's most prominent citizens, when James W. Carey, for many years engaged in the shoe business in this city, was stricken at the corner of George and Brock Streets last evening at about 6.00 o'clock. Medical aid was summoned but Mr. Carey had passed away. Heart trouble, which had bothered him for some time, was the cause of death.

The funeral announcement will be made later.

TWO SPECIES OF INDEPENDENTS INCLUDED IN POLITICAL MENUS OFFERED TO ELECTORS IN QUEBEC

Bourassa Cannot Understand the Independence of His Countryman, Patenaude.

SPATE OF ORATORY.

Robb Declares Government Has Nothing to Fear in Coming Before Electors.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press). — Three weeks from election day finds the political campaign in the province of Quebec accumulating features of a pointed character, with verbal protechnics contributing an occasional illuminated display for the benefit of an electorate who, although yielding to none in their earnest grasp of political values, are not slow to appreciate the place that these wordy fireworks hold in any such encounter. The entire province is now seething with oratory, both parties having redoubled their endeavors since the slates in all constituencies are now nearly complete, and where previously the heavy artillery of both Liberals and Conservatives drowned out the verbal fire of the field-pieces, the latter are now coming more into their own.

The enlargement of the field of action has made it necessary for them to rely much more largely on themselves. Additional to that is the fact that the work of inaugurating the campaign has been very exacting for the leaders of both parties, and to it they have given of themselves unstintedly.

Government Speakers.

For the Government, the Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and administration leader in the Montreal district, has spoken at innumerable gatherings in almost every division of the city and its immediate surroundings. Until he left the province to join the Prime Minister in his Western campaign, Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, was battling strenuously both here and in the eastern townships, while Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, was concentrating on the rural English-speaking constituencies. In the Quebec district, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, has labored dili-

ONLY ELEVEN OF FIRE FIGHTERS ALIVE

Fifty-fourth Anniversary of the Great Fire in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ills., Oct. 9 (United Press) — Fifty-four years ago Thursday Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern and started the devastating Chicago fire. Eleven retired firemen ranging in age from 79 to 85 years of age, are the only survivors of the hundreds who fought the great blaze.

Pays Fine With Rare Coin Bystander Offers To Buy It

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 9 (United Press)—Paying a $5 fine with a $3 gold piece is bad business Samuel Blumberg found on Thursday. A gold piece dated 1854 was recognized as a very rare coin and Blumberg was offered $30 for by a court bystander but it was already in the clutches of New York city and stayed there.

BALDWIN'S CABINET UNDER FIRE FROM CONSERVATIVE DELEGATE FOR INACTION ON UNEMPLOYMENT

EMPIRE SETTLEMENT.

Resolution Passed Urging Amendment to the Law of Treason.

BRIGHTON, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—One of the delegates at the at the Conservative party's conference here yesterday declared that the country was discontented because of the Baldwin Government's inaction with regard to the problem of unemployment. His speech was greeted with a storm of protest from other delegates.

The conference carried by acclamation a resolution urging an amendment to the law dealing with treasonable offences by bringing within its scope plotters against constituted authority. The mover of the resolution suggested that persons who incited others to dislocate any public service or who molested anyone engaged in lawful work or preached class war should come within the scope of the law in question, but the conference did not set on the suggestion.

A resolution was passed urging the government to develop the industrial resources of the empire by training men and women in agriculture and the trades necessary for such development and by arranging grants to aid settlers in developing inter-imperial communications.

IN POLICE COURT.

In the case of Stewart versus Seigl, the latter was dismissed, when a young man who was boarding at his home pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping spirituous liquors for sale.

A fine of $500 was imposed with an addition of two months imprisonment. In default of payment the youth will serve a four months' term.

Member of the Quebec Legislature running as an Independent Conservative for the Federal Parliament.

They Met All Right. But It's a Safe Bet No One Said I'm Very Glad To Meet You

Last Sunday afternoon a young Cultross farmer named Donaldson motored to Clifford to visit his brother-in-law, Jas. Porterfield, but on his arrival was disappointed to discover that the latter had gone to spend the day with Normanby friends. Mr. Donaldson had tea at Clifford and started home about seven o'clock. Coming up the Elora road he reached Kopass' Corner, two and a half miles south of Mildmay, when another car coming from the east collided with his, both machines being so badly damaged that they had to be towed to a local garage where they are still undergoing repairs. When Mr. Donaldson got out of his machine to see who had bumped into him he was mightily surprised to find that it was his brother-in-law, Porterfield, who was also returning home.

COL. W. MITCHELL REFUSES TO TESTIFY

Air Officers Don't Want to Express Feelings Before Board.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9—(Colonel) William Mitchell refused today to testify before Naval Court investigating the airship Shenandoah disaster.

After he had objected o being sworn before the court under the order of the army directing him to appear, a formal subpoena for his appearance was issued today by the naval body. Judge Advocate Felcy delivered it in person and Mitchell refused to accept service, under the advice of his counsel.

While the court was in executive session determining its course after Mitchell had objected to taking the oath, Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, his attorney, made public a communication which the colonel sent yesterday to the adjutant-general of the army.

Naval air officers "hesitate to express their feelings" before the President's Air Investigating Board, Captain James T. Moore, Marine Corps aviator, told the board when he endorsed Col. William Mitchell's plan for a separate control of the aviation arm of the National Defence service.

HUSBAND RELEASED ON MURDER CHARGE

Discharged From Custody Yesterday Afternoon Following Nolle Prosequi Proceedings.

HALIFAX, N.S. Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—Duncan Gammon, of Pictou, N.S., charged with the murder of his wife, Sarah Gammon, an English war-bride was dismissed from custody yesterday afternoon on Nolle Prosequi proceedings, following the return of a true bill against him by the grand jury in the Supreme Court here.

Gammon was charged in the City Police Court with murder on April 12 in connection with the mysterious disappearance of his wife who had been missing since September of last year when she was supposed to have sailed from Quebec to visit her parents in Winford, Cheshire, England. The theory of the police at the time of Gammon's arrest was that the woman had been murdered somewhere between Pictou and Truro, N.S., between the afternoon of September 9 and the morning of September 10. Since Gammon's arrest all attempts to locate the body of his wife have been unavailing.

MINERS REJECT RECOMMENDATION TO TAKE PART IN COAL INQUIRY LEADERS LABOR TO AVOID CRISIS

Decision Due Chiefly to Dissatisfaction With Federation's Wage Cut Attitude.

A. J. COOK WAS ABSENT

Another Resolution Will Be Brought in To-day and May Be Accepted.

LONDON, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—The delegates of the Miners' Federation have rejected participation in the coal commission which the Government recently appointed to enquire into the entire coal industry, by a majority of 155,000 on a card vote. The conference was held in London for the purpose of considering the situation arising through the interpretation of the truce terms. Two weeks ago Premier Baldwin, after lengthy consideration, rendered a decision in the mining controversy, accepting the contention of the mine owners in their dispute with the Miners' Federation of their right to reduce wages in certain regions.

The miners argued that this decision was at variance with the Governmental subsidy granted to enable the mine owners to maintain the current scale of wages pending an inquiry by a Royal Commission.

A majority of the Miners' Executive were opposed to drastic action, but the delegates themselves were sharply divided and a heated debate ensued, after which the executive's recommendation to participate in the Coal Commission was defeated 477,000 to 382,000.

The miners' secretary, A. J. Cook, was absent through illness. It is announced that the executive will present another resolution at today's meeting. Yesterday's vote does not necessarily mean that the miners have decided definitely not to participate. It was explained later that their rejection was due more to dissatisfaction that the recommendation did not contain an expression of the federation's attitude against wage cuts than to a desire to boycott the Commission. The executive, therefore, is drafting a more vigorously worded resolution to be offered to-day, and is hopeful that a crisis can be averted.

Explosion In Mouth Kills Boy Undergoing Operation

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). — The remarkable case of a boy dying from an explosion in his mouth while he was undergoing an operation, is reported from Stratford Hospital.

Doctors say they have never known of a similar case. It was necessary to use warm air, applied through a dental syringe, with ether and oxygen.

The explosion occurred on the third application and an acute hemorrhage resulted. The boy died within ten minutes.

I'll Quit When I Marry Off the Prince, Says Ruler

Jugo Slav Premier is Over 80; Prince Is 6 Weeks Old

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (United Press)—Although an octogenarian, the Jugo-Slavian prime minister Nikola Pasisch is making plans for a marriage which cannot take place until he is more than 100 years old.

Mr. Pasisch was asked by a sovereign correspondent whether the rumors of his impending resignation from the premiership were founded on truth.

"I still have a little job on hand," the premier replied. "I intend to marry off the heir to the Jugo Slavian throne and then I shall withdraw from political life."

The heir to the Jugo Slavian throne is now six weeks old.

BALDWIN EXPLAINS GOVERNMENT POLICIES AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF BRITISH CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Disarmament Can't Be Looked For Until Security is Settled.

FILLING UP BOG.

Britain Cannot Let Irak Lose Rich Territotry of Mosul.

BRIGHTON, Eng., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). — The British Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin, discussed the Government's policies and world affairs in general at the annual conference of the Conservative party here last night. In his opinion the advocates of disarmament could have little hope of success until the question of security is settled. "It has been too long a written solution," he said. "It has been and is still an effective bar and until it is settled, it will be an effective bar to any future hope of success in the matter of disarmament."

Alluding to the efforts of Europe's statesmen at Locarno to "make the world safe for peace," the Premier remarked that the proposed security "would fill in one end of the great morass, that gaping bog of Europe" and added, "when we have filled that and made it sound and secure, I have every hope that the same principle that has guided us to the point we have reached in the west may be applied to the permanent pacification of eastern Europe as being spoiled to the west."

Surveying the world situation as Whitehall sees it, Mr. Baldwin said he thought the clouds of trouble in China were lifting. As to Great Britain's dispute with the Turks in Irak, he declared: "We have been concerned not with an issue of war or one calculated to lead to war, but with an implement of a treaty of peace."

"Except for actual rectification of the frontier," he went out, "we are not concerned with any question of claiming any territory from the Turks which is not under our control to-day."

To withdraw from Irak, the Prime Minister asserted, would be an act of folly. Great Britain had certain obligations of honor to fulfill, and from a material standpoint had no intention of "sacrificing the richest part of the territory of Irak and subscribing an indefensible for a defensible frontier."

A special brigade of 100 police detectives has been organized in France to watch for undesirable strangers who have been crossing the frontier.

2 Wives Cooked In Shifts For One New York Husband

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 9. —(United News.)—Two wives cooked and baked for Samuel Gassman under the same roof. On alternate nights the fragrancy of piping pot dishes in the kitchen of one found its way to the other where dinner had been waiting for many minutes, while neither of the women knew her husband, to whom she was legally married, was with the other.

Such is apartment house life in New York.

In Tombs Court Tuesday both wives told Magistrate Simpson how they had learned of the deception but recently. One night Samuel would take white number 1 to the movies, the next night wife number 2 whipped gaily down the same stairs on his arm, bound for the same show.

TWELVE 3 CORNERED CONTESTS IN MANITOBA CONSTITUENCIES ROBERT FORKE STILL UNOPPOSED

Premier King Will Arrive at Winnipeg and Speak To-morrow Night.

MEIGHEN ALSO GOING.

Women Greatly Outnumber Men on the Revised Provincial Voters' List.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8 (Canadian Press)—Forty-five candidates have entered the lists to date to contest the seventeen Federal constituencies in Manioba, and prospects are that this number will be augmented at nominition conventions still pending in rural seats.

Conservatives lead in point of numbers with fifteen candidates in the field, Liberals have fourteen, Progressives eleven, and Labor five. Three-cornered contests are slated in twelve ridings within the province. Brandon is the only constituency with a single candidate, Robert Forke, Progressive leader still being unopposed.

The majority of the candidates have already started their campaigns but with the leaders of the three parties holding the Western stage the local contests have not warmed up to any marked degree.

Premier King will arrive in Winnipeg on his return trip East, Friday morning, and is scheduled to speak in St. Boniface in the afternoon, and Winnipeg the same night. Hon. Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, is accompanying the Liberal leader and will support him on the platform. Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs and Excise, will also speak.

Hon. Arthur Meighen will follow close on the heels of the Premier but will confine his campaign almost exclusively to his own constituency of Portage La Prairie.

The women of Winnipeg are showing an unusually keen interest in the campaign and a number are doing active electioneering. It is estimated that women outnumber the men on the revised provincial voters' lists, unofficial figures showing that in some districts women predominate by a substantial margin.

Alaska Indian Salvationist Thinks Canada Fine Country

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—Charles Newton, a native Indian, who has been Mayor of Kake, Alaska for the past seven years, is enjoying his first visit to civilization. He is in Winnipeg to attend the Salvation Army annual congress. "What a wonderful country you have," as the only comment he could offer.

TWO OLD-TIME PROGRAMMES

Musical Affairs of 1881 Are Recalled by W. F. Green's Souvenirs.

GREAT CANTATA

W. Green, secretary of the Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F. has interesting souvenirs of old times in the city in two carefully-preserved programmes of musical events which took place away back in 1831.

One is the programme of a "Sublime Musical Cantata entitled "Belshazzar's Feast or The Fall of Babylon", presented at "Bradburn's Hall, Friday evening, June 17th, 1881 as a farewell mark of respect and affection to the Rev. Mr. Roberts". It had a chorus of over forty voices and was presented with ten scenes. Several of those taking part still live in the city; Mr. John Butcher who played violin in the orchestra, Mr. David H. Moore, who took the part of Belshazzar, King of Babylon, Mr. William Hill, who was the High Priest, and Mr. John Miller of East City a member of the male chorus. Two lady choristers, the Misses Eliza and Hattie Johnston, sisters of Mr. A. J. Johnston, proprietor of the Nugent Drug Store, and now Mrs. Thomas McJanet residing in Ottawa, and Mrs. J. H. Billington of Winnipeg. Miss Heather, another lady chorister, was a step sister of Mr. Green.

The second programme has to do with a grand International 32nd Tournament held at Ingersoll, Ontario, on Wednesday, August 31st, and Thursday, September 1st, 1881, which was described as being "open to the world." In this competition, the Peterboro Band, directed by Mr. Finch Miller, took third place in the professional class, having previously won first place in a band tournament held at Toronto.

Thousands of Indians are settling in South Africa, undermining the white race by working for nearly nothing and underselling their white competitors.

WEATHER

We had our first flurries of white shortly before noon to-day. The advent of the falling flakes was viewed with varied emotions. To the children it presented a scene of delight, and they had visions of snow balls and coasting down the hills. To mother it foretold the need of heavier clothing and footwear for the members of the family; while in the case of dad, the ugly spectre of the fuel question stuck up its head. Others may sing (if they so desire) of the jingling sleigh bells, the falling flakes, and nature's mantle of white, but for me I cast cans of it. Notwithstanding what has occurred to-day, winter is not here yet, and we should have three or four weeks, and possibly longer of good weather. — W. P.

KIWANIS CLUB OPEN MEETING

Discuss Plans For Approaching Season — Enthused By Convention.

FRIENDLY SPIRIT.

An overflow of Kiwanian goodfellowship characterized the luncheon at the Empress to-day. The effect of the Ottawa convention was manifest in the speeches of many who had attended and in the quick exchanges of bantering repartee in in which the members indulged. Even the fact that snowflakes were jostling one another outside failed to put a damper on the fires of enthusiasm as plans were considered for increasing the efficiency and extent of operations for the approaching season.

Lloyd Hamilton officiated as booster and burst into his peroration with an eloquent flow of French which elicited much comment from all sides. When Kiwanian Wearing indicated that Mr. Hamilton was speaking to the detriment of President Charlie Cook, the sergeant at arms was in immediate attendance on the unwise orator.

Following that visitation Mr. Hamilton resumed his discourse in the mother tongue, detailing much information of value in chickens and the wheat crop.

Kiwanians Wellbourn, Lacheur and Jeffries were the lucky disk holders.

The president announced that the meeting was to be of an open character and launched into an account of his impressions gleaned at the convention. He was particularly struck by the hospitable reception accorded visiting clubs and eulogized the spirit which pervades all Kiwanians in that a friendly feeling may be encountered wherever the organization is located.

Possibly the most outstanding event in which he was concerned, the president admitted, was the extracting of one dollar from his person by the convention sergeant-at-arms.

In attendance reports it was discovered that the Peterboro Club ranked fourth with London, Hamilton and Barrie leading.

Other Kiwanians testified to the benefits derived from the assembly and Hugh Niven, who had been presented with an award for secretarial efficiency, urged that various committees which had fallen down be made more responsible to the executive.

Plans are to be discussed at a subsequent meeting whereby funds may be obtained for projects to be supported durin gthe coming season.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10.

A lively and uneventful as well as pleasant day is the presage based upon the prevailing sidereal operations. There is an augury of a sudden and important change or journey, which may be the result of new business or a fresh undertaking, probably radical in its nature. Professional interests are under excellent sway, as are all affiliations of a social, romantic or domestic nature. All of these should prosper and be happy.

Those whose birthday it is are under the forecast of a prosperous and happy year. There may be sudden changes or travel, as well as new undertakings, especially of a professional nature. Heart and home affairs should also flourish. A child born on this day is likely to be talented, original and independent in thought and action. Nevertheless, it should be popular and much respected, with fine social qualities.

77 NAMES ADDED TO VOTERS' LIST

Thirty-four Names Put On By Judge Huycke Last Night.

FINAL REVISION.

Seventy-seven names were added to the list of voters in the city yesterday by His Honor Judge Huycke. Of that number thirty four were listed last evening, a response which particularly pleased the Judge, who arranged the evening sessions for the special advantage of men and women who have to work during the day and would lose their time and wage if they had to call for registration during working hours.

Quite a number of those who were sworn in as eligible voters yesterday were young men who had only recently come of age, and were about to vote for the first time.

The two political parties are represented in the Judge's chambers by Mr. George Boucher for the Conservatives and Mr. Herb Martin for the Liberals. Sessions will continue until next Wednesday night. The hours are from 10.30 a.m., to 12.30 p.m., 2.30 to 4.30 and 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Judge Huycke said, that on Saturday night and Wednesday night he would remain on duty beyond the hour of nine o'clock, if the applications for registration required the extra time. "But if the people don't come, I won't stay."

BR. LABOR WHIP URGES CANADA SEEK ENG. MART

Says Strikes Would be Avoided as Wheat Controls World.

SURVEYS CONDITIONS

Thinks Motherland Should Buy Territory From Canada.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press.) — "If Canada could market its surplus wheat in England, under the wheat pool, it would have the effect of ensuring a continuity of price levels and avoiding slumps; it would have the effect of eliminating a good deal of the labor troubles in England, insofar as fluctuating bread prices obviously engender a demand for a higher wage by the employe. Strikes could be avoided, for wheat controls the world." This statement was made by Ben. Smith, M.P. for Rotherithe, London, and whip of the Labor party in the British house of commons, in passing through Calgary.

Mr. Smith as representative of the Transport and General Workers' Union is on his way to Atlantic City where he will attend the convention of the American Federation of Labor as British fraternal delegate. He will also attend the annual convention of the Mexican labor movement.

At the request of the Dominion government, Mr. Smith is making a close survey of farm conditions in Canada.

"There is certainly a lot of room in the country," he said, "and I would like to see possibilities here where the conditions are favorable to the British settlers and equitable to Canada. I think the British government should buy large tracts of land from the Canadian government." The present selective policy of the dominion government, he believed would denude England of its farmer population, if continued. This industry, he asserted, happened to be the best employed in the Old Country.

The Versailles Treaty, coupled with the fact that Great Britain was paying off its debt to the United States and getting nothing from her own debtors, was held responsible for the acute problem of unemployment in the British Isles, by Mr. Smith.

TRUCK GARDENER GROWS NEW SPUD

Mongrel Gains Favor When Blended With Early Variety.

RAYMOND, Sask., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press.)—"Early Queen" is the name given to a new potato originated by H. H. Kimball, truck gardener of Raymond. The tuber is of the white variety, combining earliness, fine flavor, cooks well and is of an excellent keeping variety quality.

Three years ago Mr. Kimball imported sufficient registered stock of Wee McGregor potatoes to "seed three acres. To maintain purity of strain, the grower made application for government inspection. The professional men suggested that a number of hills of "mongrel stock" be uprooted. A stake was driven in the hills designated for destruction. When Mr. Kimball started to dig up the spuds, he was surprised to note that the earth surrounding the vines was forced up until the tubers were showing and all indications point to a heavy yield. They were left until harvest, when the clean, white appearance so attracted the gardener that a test on a larger plot was made the following year. Not until mid-season was the extreme earliness of the "mongrel" discovered.

This year the white potatoes were planted side by side with the "Early King," a pink variety, known for its early ripening. The white potato beat the old favorite by 18 days. This new variety is now fetching $5 a hundred pounds for next year's seeding.

TWO SPECIES OF

gently among the electors of the lower St. Lawrence and continues to devote his attention to that portion of the province. Hon. H. S. Beland, Minister of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, has not limited himself to any particular region and has encompassed the province in a wide orbit.

Opposition Orators.

For the anti-Government chiefs, the most industrious has been Hon. E. L. Patenaude, former Secretary of State, who, in addition to having carried on his campaign in and around Montreal, has spoken in the Ottawa Valley and also in Mr. Lapointe's own battle-ground of Quebec East. Hon. Rodolphe Monty has confined himself principally to the Metropolis, while Hon. Andre Fauteux has up to the present not been quite so prominent as in 1921.

Whether the advent of Mr. Patenaude means a division of the Conservative party in Quebec Province is a question that is being asked chiefly by the French-language newspapers, but it is noted that a large number of Opposition candidates are terming themselves "Patenaude Independents." At the same time the former Secretary of State has been strongly endorsed by the Provincial Conservative newspapers, both French and English-language. In his speech at St. Laurent, with which he ushered in his re-entry into Federal politics after a lapse of eight years, Mr. Patenaude declared himself to be a Conservative of the school of Cartier and MacDonald. At the same time, he pronounced himself "as free of Mr. Meighen as I am of Mr. King."

"Tear Off the Mask."

The Government leaders have professed to see in this an anomalous position, and both Mr. Cardin and Mr. Boivin have charged Mr. Patenaude with attempting to divide the province, while Theodule Rheaume, Mr. Patenaude's opponent in Jacques Cartier, demanded recently that Mr. Patenaude "tear off the mask."

Henri Bourassa, protagonist of nationalism, who, following a period of eighteen years' absence from the Federal arena, has now re-entered it by presenting himself as an "Independent" in Labelle, declares himself unable to understand Mr. Patenaude's independence. Mr. Bourassa propounded his political creed at Mont Laurier last Sunday, and he himself became the object of a charge laid by the Opposition newspapers that his independence was qualified, the charge being based on Mr. Bourassa's statement that if his vote were to decide on retaining Mr. King in power or keening Mr. Meighen out, he would keep Mr. Meighen out.

Premier Expected.

So far neither the Prime Minister nor Mr. Meighen has addressed a Montreal gathering in the present campaign, but the former is expected here on October 19. Hon. Mr. Marler, who has been campaigning in Ontario, will make his first appearance in his own constituency next Wednesday, and will devote the intervening time between that date and election day to Montreal and district. Mr. Marler is now in the metropolis, and in an interview yesterday he declared himself confident of the outcome in Ontario.

The Finance Minister, Hon. Mr. Robb, was also here yesterday afternoon after having conducted a speaking tour in the Eastern townships with Hon. Dr. Beland and Hon. Jacob Nicol, Provincial Treasurer. Mr. Robb declared that the Government had nothing to fear in presenting itself to the Canadian electorate, and he counted on the good sense of the Canadian people.

National Appeal.

Discussing both Hon. Mr. Patenaude and Mr. Bourassa, whose presence in the election battle has become one of the most outstanding features of the contest so far as this province is concerned, Hon. Mr. Robb said:

"Mr. Bourassa made an excellent speech, and spoke like a statesman. I prefer his present attitude to that of 1911." Mr. Robb charged that while Mr. Patenaude's appeal was purely Provincial, that of Mr. Bourassa was national.

YOUNG PEOPLE MEET

Various Departments of the League Enter Into Programme Contest.

MARMORA, Oct. 9.—There was the Young People's League meeting a very encouraging attendance at the United church on Wednesday evening. The Christian Fellowship Dept. was in charge of the programme. The main features were an admirable reading by Mr. William Linton on "Tolerance," a duet, "No Burdens Yonder," by Mr. and Mrs. L. Rundle and an address by W. J. Cottrell on "Magnifying One's Office." The four departments are entering the contest in real earnest, one of the rules being that no outside help must be given the department responsible for the programme.

Mr. K. E. Patterson was called suddenly here to Montreal on Tuesday owing to the illness of his mother.

Mr. Herbert McKenzie is back from the west.

Quite a number from town attended Madoc Fair on Wednesday.

AIRPLANES HELPED THE FIRE RANGERS

More Fires This Year, But Less Damage Done—Quickly Spotted.

PORT ARTHUR, October 9. — October 9. — The fire rangers, foot and airplane, have been called in for the season from the Thunder Bay district. They had more fires to fight this year than the average but due to the airplanes spotting them before they became serious the damage was not as extensive as usual.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94 P.C. AIR

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up; is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, F. B. Johnson, 246 Craig St. W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

OMEMEE SCHOLARS HELD FIELD DAY

Softball Matches and Sporting Competition Were Carried Out.

OMEMEE, October 9. — The annual field day of the Omemee High School, was held on Friday, Oct. 2, at 1.30 o'clock. The scholars, numbering about 80, were divided into two groups, namely golds and blues, according to the school colors, lined up on the school grounds, and marched in double file to King street where with Lawrence Sandy as cheer leader their voices swelled into a volume of sound as they delivered the two school yells. Each group carried a banner bearing the initials O.H.S. to match their respective color, and in this manner they proceeded to the Athletic Park, when the afternoon programme was run off.

The weather was ideal, but the attendance was small, owing to other unavoidable happenings. Many parents and friends of the students however showed their interest in the activities by making an appearance.

Each event was keenly contested, and at the end of the afternoon the "golds" had succeeded in gaining many points over the "blues." Owing to lack of time a few races and the girls' soft-ball game had to be postponed for another day so that the "blues" have yet a chance to bring honors to their group.

A decorative booth in colors of gold and blue adorned the grounds where numerous pretty baskets and containers held an abundance of home-made candy, donated by the scholars, to help defra. expenses. Ice cream cones were also for sale here. Fancy programmes containing the list of events had been prepared by those scholars artistically inclined, and were distributed among the gathering, where many admiring remarks were passed.

The able assistance of Messrs H. Lamb, E. W. Rowland and M. Sherlin, was much appreciated by the Athletic Association of the school. There is a great deal of work in connection with an affair of this sort and much credit is due the principal, Miss G. M. Meredith, in arousing the enthusiasm of the youth, for were it not for an affair of this sort annually athletics would be dead in Omemee.

A soft ball game between a group of boys from the Lindsay Collegiate Institute and the Omemee High School boys, was the last event on the programme, and as dusk was fast approaching, each team worked fast and a real exciting game was staged, the result being a win for the visitors by three runs, the score being 9-6.

Rev. E. W. Rowland called the balls and strikes while Mr. Robertson of Lindsay Collegiate acted in the capacity of base umpire. The following was the line-up:

Spelling Battle.

The meeting of the A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening, Oct. 5, was a continuance of the enthusiasm, manifested last week. The most important business of the evening was the selection of delegates for the coming annual convention in Brantford. The following comprise the representation: Miss Edith Robinson, Mrs. V. Jones and Mr. J. Bent.

Following the business session, was the indulging of an old-time spelling match. To those of a romantic turn of mind, an air of reminiscence seemed in evidence, harking back to those days in the old log schoolhouse, captains were chosen, Miss E. Curry and Miss A. Stephenson respectively, sides were chosen and the fun commenced. Miss Lila Fee was the teacher, and she gave out the words accordingly. Then truly did many find out how deceiving and queer this old mother tongue of ours is. There were long words and short words, hard ones and easy ones, strange ones and familiar ones, hyphenated words and derivatives, all combined to ensnare the too confident, as well as those who felt unable to compete successfully. After one side had outspelled its opponent, it was decided to try it again and that battle ended in the remaining four, two on each side, all falling down on the one word.

A most enjoyable time was experienced by all. All members were asked to be on hand on Friday evening, Oct. 9th, when the Peterborough district council will be the guests of Omemee school.

Christian Evidence.

Next Monday evening, Rev. A. T. Weir will speak on "Why I Believe in God," a subject meriting adequate consideration by all, in these doubtful days.

Help Forward Movement.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican church was held at the rectory on September the twenty-fourth, the President, Mrs. Weir, in the chair. The rector opened the meeting with prayer and Bible reading. After the routine business was disposed of the president asked for the opinion of the meeting in the part this branch ought to take in the great 'Forward Movement' now going on throughout the Dominion. The matter was left over for further consideration. It was decided to order the new book, "The Clash of Color," as a basis for mission study this winter.

The Dorcas secretary spoke briefly about the bale of clothing and groceries that is almost ready to be shipped to Onion Lake school, and invited any who wished to send contributions to bring them to the sewing meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. N. P. Clarke, Sturgeon street, on Wednesday, October the fourteenth.

NEW HOTEL AT HEALEY FALLS

Construction of Summer Resort Will Begin in Spring.

AMERICAN FIRM.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 9.— A new summer hotel at Healey Falls will be erected next year, the construction to begin in the spring, in time to have the building ready for the opening of the season. The promoters of this enterprise are Americans from Ohio, who already own cottages at the Falls. The site for the hotel has been selected and the transfer made, the ground being purchased from Mrs. Jane McCann.

The Americans interested have applied to the Township of Seymour, through Ernest Brunton, township overseer of highways, to have the road from Stanwood west to the River Trent opened and graded and for this work have agreed to donate the sum of $100. Mr. Brunton says that the improvements called for would not cost more than $20 and could possibly be made for less, so that the Council of the township will accept the offer of the Americans.

At present a resident on the road in question maintains a gate across the thoroughfare, but members of the council say he has no right to do this, as he is obstructing what is a public highway.

A Growing Resort.

Healey Falls has always been a favorite resort for American tourists and the accommodation offered by local owners of summer homes have always been regarded as excellent. The new hotel will not really compete with these, but will be certain to increase the number of summer visitors from the other side. Two cottages were built this year at the Falls by Americans and three more will be erected before the opening of next season. Cottages and hotel will all be located on property purchased from Mrs. McCann.

ACCIDENT DAY ON C.N.R. LINE

TRAIN CREW HURT.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 9—Tuesday will always be regarded as a day of misfortune by the officials of the Lindsay-Belleville branch of the C.N.R., three serious accidents in less than 24 hours being the record. First a train loaded with wheat left the rails at Best's Station, and then the auxiliary from Belleville, rushing to the rescue, took the ditch near Birdsall, the road at that point being blocked all day.

When the evening train from Belleville to Peterborough, that brought passengers as far as the blockade at Birdsall, where they were transferred to a train that conveyed them to Peterborough, was returning to Belleville, it found the track at Madoc Junction blocked by the wreck of the way freight, which had come to grief about 7.30.

Two cars, one loaded with cheese and the other with live stock, went into the ditch when a rail broke, and the caboose too, was partially derailed and had to be removed in order to clear the track.

At the latter wreck there were several casualties. James Cranston, of Stirling, who was in charge of the stock car, and who was riding in the caboose with the crew at the time of the accident, had his arm so badly cut that it was necessary to remove him to the hospital at Belleville.

Conductor Stafford Halpin was badly shaken and bruised, and John Forrester, brakeman, suffered a serious cut over one eye. Both, however, were able to remain on duty.

The relief train that had gone to Birdsall did not get to Belleville until 4 a.m., just in time to start the return trip to Lakefield, the crew being unable to secure any sleep.

The cause of the accident at Birdsall is a mystery. The train at the time was running slowly on an upgrade on the new 100-pound rails with which the road has recently been equipped.

P. Kerow, of Belleville, cook on the auxiliary train, had two ribs broken in the accident at Birdsall. As soon as Superintendent McMillan's private car was placed on the rails again it was used to convey passengers to Belleville.

113 DAYS TO GET CROP

Western Farmer Claims New Speed Record for Wheat Growth.

SASKATOON, Sask., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Just 113 days after he put the seed in the ground, wheat grown on the farm of Bert Clearwater, near here, has been unloaded at Port Arthur. Mr. Clearwater began his seeding operations on May 17 of this year, and finished threshing on August 29. His grain had been unloaded at the lake head on September 7. The wheat which was sown on spring ploughing, yielded 24½ bushels to the acre. Mr. Clearwater maintains this is a new speed record for Canada.

MAY SURVEY COLONY.

Cottages at Trent River Cannot Be Legally Described.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 9—The Seymour Council is considering the matter of engaging a surveyor to make a plan of the summer resort at Trent River, so that the lots and cottages may be numbered to facilitate the work of the assessor. Cottage owners at that point have been known to escape taxation for some time after they located. If any cottage should be thrown back on the hands of the township, under present conditions, for the non-paymentof taxes there would be no means of describing it. All that prevents the Council from taking action is the question of expense.

OIL IS LOCATED AT FORT NORMAN

Found in Commercial Quantities in Lower Mackenzie Sholes.

SUSPEND OPERATIONS

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). — Further proof that oil in commercial quantities is contained in comparatively shallow shales on structures in the Lower MacKenzie River valley, has been brought out from Fort Norman, by the Imperial Oil, Limited, drilling crew.

The Fort Norman crew reported that in the well drilled this summer, a short distance from the original discovery well, oil estimated in quantity at about 100 barrels a day had been struck in a shale at a depth of 1,063 feet.

The new well was drilled to a total depth of 1,602 feet when operations were suspended in order that the crew might catch the last upriver boat for civilization before the winter freeze-up.

Whether the well will be drilled still deeper, will be determined by eastern headquarters. Fort Norman is nearly 1,500 miles north-west of Calgary, measured by river and lake transportation.

Despite the fact that London is unreservedly "wet," frequent raids are conducted by the police on illicit stills.

WOMAN'S CROWNING GLORY.

The veteran editor of the Thorold Post has been making a game but futile attempt to stand against the bobbed-hair invasion by offering a prize for the best head of unbobbed hair shown at the Thorold Fair.

"The Creator made female hair long," he declares, "and I am in favour of leaving it that way."

Unfortunately, however, for the success of Brother Thompson's campaign the "bob" being has apparently come to stay—at least until Dame Fashion decrees something else in the line of hair dressing.

Worse than that, the fair sex like it—it saves them time and trouble—and although they would wear it short no matter how uncomfortable it might prove so long as it was considered fashionable, it is a great consolation to be "right" and yet be comfortable.

Nineteen girls entered the competition at Thorold.

It is to be feared that were such a contest to be held in some other centres it might have to be called off through lack of entries.

Many a mere man will sympathize with the Thorold editor's views—but will be unable to see much hope of his campaign succeeding.

THE PASSING OF "BIG SIX."

In the sudden passing of Christy Mathewson death has removed one of the best known and most popular personages in baseball.

Mathewson, whose name has been a household one, not only in United States homes but among Canadians as well, has always been considered as the finest flower of the baseball profession, renowned as he was for his sterling character and clean sane life as he was for his skill as a player.

He came into professional baseball when the game was not nearly so highly regarded as at present and when college players were a novelty, and by the shining example he set soon raised the standard of the game he had adopted as his profession.

Mathewson was a clean liver, he steadfastly refused to participate in Sunday baseball, and his gentlemanly conduct at all times has been responsible for his being held up as a model of all that was best in sport.

Baseball is the poorer by the death of such a model exponent of the United States national pastime.

There were few pitchers so clever as Mathewson, and fewer athletes of his calibre engaged in professional baseball.

There will never be another "Big Six."

SHOULD BE SUPPORTED.

It is estimated by the Chamber of Commerce as a result of an investigation that in the three months between June 15 and September 15 tourists from the United States spent $252,480 in this district.

That is a large sum to be put into circulation, and it must have had a stimulating effect upon many business concerns both here and in the district.

The Chamber of Commerce, affiliated with the local branch of the Ontario Motor League and the Trent Waterway Development Association, has played a big part in the bringing to this district of the army of tourists seen here during the summer.

Not only has this district been extensively advertised, but the services of the Chamber of Commerce in looking after the comfort of tourists in furnishing them with accurate information and in treating them in such a manner that they will not only want to come back themselves but will bring their friends with them, has done much to enhance the reputation of the Kawartha district as a summer playground.

The success scored this year should lead to the Chamber of Commerce being given more effective support by the people of Peterboro, particularly by those who have directly shared in the financial benefits accruing from such a large amount of tourist traffic.

It is good business to support any organization that can bring a quarter of a million dollars into circulation here during the months when trade generally is usually not good.

NEWSPAPERS TOO FAIR?

The Examiner heard an unusual complaint last night to the effect that the virtual disappearance of the party newspapers makes it more difficult for the electors to decide for which party their votes should be cast.

"The newspapers are so fair nowadays," declared the complainant, "that the voter has to read the arguments of both sides every evening, and he is all at sea trying to make a choice between the respective policies."

In the period sometimes referred to as the good old days there was no such difficulty.

The majority of the electors confined their reading to the organs of their own party, they were fed daily with the same unwavering declaration of faith, read little or nothing of the other side's arguments, and went to the poles with an unshaken confidence in the merits of their own cause."

The Examiner believes, however, that most people prefer the present conditions whereby the meetings of all parties are regarded as news to which the readers are entitled, and the papers content themselves with giving an accurate report of what the speakers said.

In the days of the party organs the meetings of one side were always wildly enthusiastic, and of the other invariably a frost, according to the political color of the spectacle through which the editor watched the developments of the campaign.

Today the elector is able to follow all sides of the contest, and he should go to the poles much better enlightened as to the issues to be decided and the policies at stake than he used to be a decade ago.

McCRAY'S CASE.

Recently, attention was called in these columns to an agitation to secure the release from prison of Warren T. McCray, former Governor of Indiana, who has served but one year of a seven-year sentence, imposed upon conviction of using the mails to defraud. More than $3,000,000 was involved in McCary's shady transactions, a considerable portion of which represented the life savings of hundreds of men and women who had placed implicit trust in the first gentleman of Indiana, says the Hamilton Herald. Subtle propaganda is being circulated in McCary's behalf, now that he has been found out. His plight is being made the concern of brother Governors and influential politicians throughout the length and breadth of the United States, but it is not a matter of record that a serious effort has been made to reimburse his victims or to make impossible a repetition of his crime by others who might be tempted to use their official positions as a shield for crookedness. The following is a sample of the stuff that is being ladled out to the newspaper-reading public of the United States: "Justice must not play favorites. Therefore, in order not to seem to do so, it is sometimes tempted to do the opposite and discriminate against the favored. That may be the case with Governor Warren T. McCray of Indiana on whose behalf a long list of Governors and other influential persons have presented a petition to Attorney-General Sargent. Considering the case by itself, it would doubtless be just as well to parole Governor McCray. He has learned his lesson and suffered exemplary punishment. He would be safe at large and would be more useful outside earning the money to pay those he defrauded than living at the expense of the State in prison. If he were an unknown person, these considerations would be persuasive in an application for parole."

McCary will be paroled—maybe not at this time, when public opinion is so bitter—but just as soon as his influential friends believe they can get away with it. And it will constitute just another example of how not to create respect for law and order.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.

The failure of the French negotiation with the United States Government for an agreement upon terms for payment of the French war debt to the United States does not arouse much sympathy for France in American newspapers. Which seems a little surprising. France was not asking for cancellation of any of the debt. She was asking for a low rate of interest while engaged in paying the debt. One would have supposed that almost any old kind of a proposition from France would have been welcomed at Washington in view of the nature of the obligation.

The Toronto Star recalls that on April 18, 1918, Hon. James M. Beck, ex-Assistant Attorney-General of the United States, made a speech in connection with a Liberty Loan in Philadelphia. He spoke on the floor of the Stock Exchange with a thousand business men present.

He predicted that after the war the United States would cancel the $7,000,000,000 debt incurred by the Allies, and the men of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange reared their applause. The Philadelphia Public Ledger of April 20, 1918, on its front page featured the speech, which in part we quote.

"When this war ends, as it will in a victory for the Allies," the speaker said, "and Great Britain and France will say to our Government' the time has come for us to settle the matter of our great indebtedness to you in a more formal way,' I believe our Government will reply by writing across the paper on which the money was lent, 'Receipted in full.'

"And when they ask, 'Receipted in full—how?' our Government will answer, 'By the blood of your sons'."

Cheers taking on the proportions of a mighty roar greeted the speaker's last exclamation. Many of the listeners were moved to the point of tears; strangers in the audience shook hands with each other; cries of "Right! Right!" were heard. The applause lasted a minute.

"I would be ashamed of my country if America would take a penny of the sums now advanced or to be advanced," Mr. Beck continued. "And, as I have said, my profound belief in the innate chivalry of the American character is such that I know this debt never will be mentioned in the way of repayment.

"And, if it be a chivalrous thing for us to expunge that debt, the victory, when it is won, will bring us greater benefit, and I must say in candor a less deserved benefit, than to any of the other Allies."

The United States sent a great army to Europe to fight the Germans, and gave powerful naval aid to the Allies. But it is to be remembered that the United States did that to save their own bacon and avenge their own injuries. Prior to that, while the Allies were borrowing American money, they were doing it to save the United States as well as themselves. They were using their own money and their own blood to the limit to fight a battle which, had it been lost, would have been followed before long by German assault on the United States.

That the United States should have been ready to accept full British payment of war debt was not surprising, because a powerful tail-twisting element is still present in the American temper. But that the United States should not only be exacting full capital payment from France, but disposed to be particular about the terms, is less understandable. However, business is business! President Coolidge, asked by a newspaper man why he did not favor any cancellation of allied debts to the United States, replied, "Well, they hired the money, didn't they?" What more could business say?

That Philadelphia meeting in 1918 was apparently not a representative business one or something else was wrong.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is a good thing both Mr. Meighen and Mr. King are out West at the same time—neither can blame the bad weather out there on the other.

The author of "Parlour, Bedroom and Bath" is a candidate in Hamilton. He'll doubtless find much material for future farce-comedies if he is elected.

Make sure you are on the lists; then you'll be in a position to prove yourself a real citizen by voting on October 29th.

FROM MR. NORTHEY.

To the Editor of The Examiner:
Sir:

Mr. Strickland stated at our meeting at Selwyn that Mr. Peck had done a lot when in the legislature. Now Mr. Peck was home most of the time in his office and did nothing for this riding. It would be a shame to put Mr. Peck in Mr. Gordon's place, but no fear.

DANIEL NORTHEY,
Smith.

FROM MR. MATHER.

Editor, Examiner:
Dear Sir:

I very much fear the remedies suggested by Mr. Gibbons, Advertising Agent, afford little solution to the difficulties before us.

Just as it was in the day of the Pharoahs, so is it in these days, there are fat years, and there are lean years, so is it in life, as well as in business, and neither governments, tariffs or monopolies, call them by which name you like (tariffs and monopolies still mean the same thing, benefit to the few, detriment to the many) can remedy them.

What we actually do need is less interference with industry, for is it not privtae enterprise after all that really is the one and only basis of national prosperity?

Why should any government be expected to give state aid in any form to any business that feels itself under a handicap for competition?

Immediate and drastic reform in public expenditure by all means, yes, but not a lot of so called reforms, which in practice only cause a sort of pauper mentality together with a multitude of officials, fastening themselves like parasites on the nation's body, ever alert and ready to present a solid front to any schemes tending, in any shape, towards economy.

Yours respectfully,
MATHER,

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The export business in all lines of grain in the local market today was dull. The domestic trade in cash grain was also quiet, but the tone of the market for Ontario and Quebec oats was steady. Prices showed little change.

There was no change of importance in the condition of the local flour market, price for spring wheat grades being about steady. A good business continues for export and local account and the market was fairly active. Trade in winter wheat flour showed no improvement and the market was quiet.

The easy feeling that has prevailed in the market for millfeed of late developed into weakness today, and although no official change in prices was announced, it was reported that sales of all lines were made at a cut of $1 to $2 per ton. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for baled hay and prices were unchanged. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady.

Beans were quoted at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

There was no alteration in the local egg market. Prices for all grades being firm with steady business passing in wholesale jobbing way but the trade in car lots was quiet since local dealers seem to have ample supplies on hand for the present.

A steady trade continues to be done in potatoes and as supplies coming forward are too large to meet the daily requirements prices were maintained.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—Chances that the Government crop report due today may show an increase over previous official estimates of the 1925 yield of wheat in the United States had a good deal to do yesterday with bringing about fresh declines in the value of wheat. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 5-8 to 1 1-8 cents net lower, new style, December $1.37 1-4 to $1.37 5-8 and May $1.38 to $1.38 1-4, with corn 3-8 to 1 cent off, oats unchanged to 3-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 62 cents down.

Aside from the possibility that the Government crop report as to wheat would prove bearish, the wheat market had to take the brunt of advices that Russia has made actual shipments, 2,072,000 bushels of wheat in the last week, and that Argentine will be able to export 2,000,000 bushels a week until February, at which time the new crop movement in Argentina will be at the peak. Meanwhile, Argentine wheat was reported as competing with Canadian wheat at Liverpool, with British re-sellers offering grain at 2 cents under the Canadian pool's prices.

Better weather in Canada, where of late threshing has been largely at a standstill, was among the factors that promoted selling yesterday in the wheat market here, and so, too, was talk about big rops of rye in Europe and excellent yields of potatoes. As a result, the Chicago market repeatedly ran into enlarged selling on rallies. Near the end of the day, however, much of the earlier losses here were overcome because of spreaders buying here against sales either at Minneapolis or at Winnipeg.

Corn dropped with wheat. All future deliveries of corn established another new low price record for the season. Country offerings were small, though, and the corn market recovered to a substantial degree before the day ended. Decreasing stocks helped to sustain oats.

Provisions duplicated the weakness of corn and hogs.

EGG MARKET

OTTAWA, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—With the exception of an easier tone on the Montreal market there is no change in egg conditions throughout Canada Thursday.

Toronto—Situation is very firm. Fresh jobbing, specials 54 to 55, extras 52 to 53, firsts 44 to 45, storage extras 44 to 45, first 41 to 42, seconds 37 to 38. Exports of storage eggs to Great Britain are moving freely.

Montreal—The tone of the egg market is easier. Prices generally are unchanged with some quotations ranging half a cent lower.

Winnipeg—Egg market is steady with prices at country points unchanged. Jobbing, fresh extras 42, firsts 39, seconds 31, storage firsts 37. Poultry market is unchanged.

Saskatchewan — Dealers quoting country shippers extras 30 to 31, firsts 28 to 29, seconds 25. Jobbing, extras 40 to 41, firsts 38 to 39, seconds 33 to 35. Poultry receipts are light. Fowl 6 to 10, roosters 5, turkeys 8 to 10, geese 7, ducks 8. A car of storage firsts is rolling to Montreal for export costing 40 3-4 at Montreal.

Calgary—Dealers paying country points, extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 24. Springers 14, heavy fowl 11 to 13, light fowl 7 to 9.

Edmonton — Jobbing, extras 40, firsts 32, seconds and pullets 40.

St. John—Jobbing, fresh extras 50, firsts 44, seconds 38. Storage extras 44, firsts 40, seconds 35. There are fair quantities of poultry arriving, and demand is good. Fresh killed chickens 35 to 40, fowl 30.

Halifax—Jobbing, fresh extras 52, firsts 45, seconds 35. The demand is good.

Are Balloon Tires Durable?
Goodyears Are

EVERYBODY Knows that good balloon tires are easy-riding, comfortable, easy on the car.

Goodyear users know that balloon tires can be durable also—because Goodyear Balloons are giving remarkable mileage.

The big reason for this plus-durability in Goodyear Tires is SUPERTWIST.

SUPERTWIST is a cord fabric unlike anything which has gone before. It stretches much more. Under blows of the road it yields instead of breaking. It protects the tire against stone bruises, carcass breaks and similar injuries.

So much does SUPERTWIST increase the life of a tire that it is now used in all Goodyear Cord Tires. Your Goodyear Selected Dealer has them.

OPEN LETTER NO. 16

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Priuy Council, Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

You've noticed, no doubt, that not only wages, but standards of living, are higher in high tariff countries than in low tariff countries.

Which do you favor for the workers of Canada, good wages with a good standard of living, or poor wages with a poor standard of living? If the former, how do you reconcile therewith your pursuit of a tariff policy that is making it increasingly difficult, frequently economically impossible for the Canadian manufacturer to pay good wages? If the latter, how long do you expect our workers to remain with us, to share with us the burdens of taxation, when they can so easily and so substantially improve their position by moving across the border?

Perhaps you will tell me that the problem is not so simple as that—that the consumers of Canada have rights, and that those rights must be protected. What is this class of consumers we hear so much about? Is Canada's population divided into two classes—one that consumes and another that does not consume? Are there no consumers among the workers? Are there no workers among the consumers? Aren't we all consumers? And if we're not all workers, how needful of our consideration, and of our sympathy, are those who don't have to work?

It's the workers of Canada who pay Canada's tax bills—or who enable them to be paid, which amounts to the same thing—for in the last analysis all taxes are paid out of production! When taxes become abnormally heavy, it's the workers who feel the burden most!

Now it should be perfectly obvious that workers can carry that excess burden more easily under good wages than they can under poor wages. If a worker is burdened with a mortgage on his home, he is better able to pay the interest due each year if he is working for $6.00 wages than if he is working for only $4.00 wages.

A large part of the excess tax burden that the Canadian worker is now compelled to carry is of exactly that nature. It's interest on the national debt—interest on the mortgage we had to place on our country when it was at war!

There is only one way of meeting the interest, and reducing the principal, and that is by production! Both principal and interest are fixed amounts—they show no fluctuations corresponding to those in the cost of living. Isn't it clear therefore that we will get them paid off more quickly and more easily if we stimulate production by the offer of good wages, than if we stunt production, by the offer of poor wages?

Looked at in this light, what have you to say of Canada's action in adopting a tariff policy that forces poor wages, unemployment and emigration? Isn't it just like adding to the mortgage, without getting any value for it?

Yours respectfully,

PONI'S AFFLICTION MAKE HIM PERFORM VERY QUEER ACTIONS

Police Say He Has Dotted the Continent With Forged Cheques.

"CHEQUERED" CAREER.

Authorities in Many Cities Are Very Anxious to Make His Acquaintance.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—With the assertion that he was insane and could not be tried, Vladimir Ponizowski, 23-years-old, known to exclusive Hollywood motion picture circles as "Count Poni," and upon his own admission "a man of international reputation," stood in the dock at the city police station yesterday charged with fraud. He was remanded to Monday, October 12.

Ponizowski, arrested at North Bay, Ont., following a brief career in Winnipeg, during which he is alleged to have passed several worthless cheques on local business firms, is declared by police to have "dotted the Continent" with forged cheques. He is wanted in Los Angeles, Phoenex, Arizona and Minneapolis, while he admitted to the police that he had been arrested in Paris and Liege on similar charges. He also is alleged to have served a sentence in New York.

In declaring himself insane, he said he was subject to an affliction which periodically attacks him and makes him perform "queer" actions.

Claiming his father to be a wealthy German newspaper owner, he indignantly repudiated the title of "Count," and related a remarkable story of his career to police officers, which included a sentence of death for high treason in Germany, which was withdrawn just as he was placed before a firing squad, of his serving in the French army, and the declaration that he was a graduate of Oxford University.

When arrested, police say his total wealth consisted of $2.90. His counsel announced that he would fight extradition proceedings.

STILL THEY COME.

KINGSTON, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—The city was treated to another fiery display last night, when another fiery cross, the second of its kind to be seen here and generally acceded to be the emblem of the Klu Klux Klan, made its appearance on the cricket fields.

DUNSFORD CHURCH KEPT ANNIVERSARY

Special Services and Fowl Supper Marked the Occasion.

DUNSFORD, Oct. 9. — The first anniversary of the Union Church in Dunsford was held on Sunday and Monday of this week. Two services were held on Sunday, one in the morning at 11 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Mr. Carmichael, and one in the evening at 7.30, at which Rev. Mr. McIntosh of Lindsay was the main speaker.

The choir rendered very beautiful and appropriate music at both services.

The church was charmingly decorated to celebrate the Thanksgiving time, the pulpit being banked with asters and dahlias in harmonizing shades.

On Wednesday evening a hot fowl supper was served in the skating rink to over four hundred people, the only fault that could be found was that there were too many goodies for the one night, and it is feared some people might have found it difficult to get to sleep after so much goose and duck.

After supper everyone went up to the church for the programme, which was very good.

Rev. Mr. Carmichael was chairman for the evening.

Rev. Mr. Hie addressed the people for a few minutes, and Mr. Wm. Robertson, who is at present studying for the Baptist ministry, also gave a short address.

Mrs. Tucker, elocutionist, of Lindsay, gave several numbers which were very much enjoyed. There were also several solos by the following: Mrs. William Smith, Mrs. Rev. Carmichael, Mr. Fred Skitch, Mr. S. F. Brien, Mr. P. H. Skitch

The proceeds for the evening were $195.

WHAT IS EVAPORATED MILK?

While the use of evaporated milk is general all over Canada, occasionally the query is made, "What is Evaporated Milk?" Evaporated Milk is nothing but fresh milk from which part of the water has been removed by evaporation. (Fresh milk is 87% water). Nothing is added to it. Nothing but water is taken from it. This concentration makes it more than twice as rich as ordinary milk. After it is thus concentrated it is put in air-tight containers, sterilized and marketed by the grocer, the manufacturer putting his brand on it, as Borden's St. Charles Milk, for example. Milk is fresh unless it has been subjected to attack by bacteria which destroy its freshness. (Milk, when it comes from the cow, is exposed to the air and therefore subject to bacterial contamination.) In the course of time the numbers of such bacteria increase and their action on the milk destroys its freshness. When milk becomes sour it is because the lactic acid bacteria have attacked the milk in such numbers and for such time as to develop the lactic acid that makes it sour. Evaporated Milk is concentrated at plants in the country within a few hours after it comes from the cow, the Borden Company, for instance, operating large condensaries at such dairy centres as Truro, N.S., Ingersoll and Norwich, Ont., and South Sumas, B.C. The milk is put into air-tight containers and sterilized. By sterilization all bacteria are destroyed. The attack of such bacteria is absolutely stopped. No further bacteria can get into it. The sealed container brings it to the consumer as fresh and sweet as when it came to the country plants. It will keep fresh and sweet on the pantry shelf until the can is opened and, put in a cool place, will then keep sweet much longer after opening than bottled milk after it is delivered to the home.

CITY CONSERVATIVE ORATORS TALK PROTECTTION TO FARMERS

J. F. Strickland Excoriates Immigration Policy of Hon. G. N. Gordon.

SENATE REFORM

E. A. Peck Criticizes Government's Redistribution of Peterboro County.

At a Conservative rally held in Villiers last evening, E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate, met with an enthusiastic reception from a crowd which filled the hall to capacity. He was ably supported by John C. Read, whose father was the second member for Otonabee after Confederation, and J. F. Strickland.

John Hewie was unanimously chosen as chairman for the meeting.

J. F. Strickland.

Mr. Strickland stated that about the only thing on which he could see eye to eye with the present Premier, was that in holding the election when he did, he was conferring a favor on the candidates by enabling them to see their constituents in good weather.

Mr. King, the speaker continued, has been in power for four years, and during these four years there has been nothing but hard times. Mr. King stated that he would not be hurried into going to the country and yet in less than three weeks from his making this announcement, he has the country in the throes of a general election. He comes to the country, stating his platform to be Tariff, Canadian National Railways, Immigration and Senate Reform, but so far he has failed to enunciate a policy on any one of them. The issues at stake in this campaign are not what he claims, but are the record of his Government. Regarding Mr. King's policy of Senate Reform, if Mr. King's Government is returned no more will be heard of Senate Reform. The Senate was constituted under the Act of British North America, and the only way it can be changed or reformed is by appealing to the British Imperial Parliament. Mr. Gordon, the speaker continued, announced when he came back from Ottawa, that the Prime Minister had seen certain peculiar qualifications in him, which fitted him for his portfolio of Colonization and Immigration. Mr. King was in the West when Mr. Gordon announced his national immigration policy of settling Peterborough County with intensive farmers, and apparently came to the conclusion that those qualifications were altogether too peculiar, and that a party requiring a less vivid imagination would have to be filled by Mr. Gordon. To put it briefly, his scheme was to settle Old Country farmers in Peterborough County on ten-acre lots, where they would make a living. Now, farming in Canada and the Old Country are two different propositions, and if Mr. Gordon can show me where a man can make a living on a farm of 10 acres—he is a wonder. Why should we, continued Mr. Strickland, expend millions of dollars bringing out immigrants, when once we get them here, they leave for the United States. We need British stock in this country, but the only way we can retain them here is by proper protection. The Liberal party claim that there is no exodus, that we are a prosperous and satisfied country, but you know better. There is not one of you present to-night that does not know at least one native-born Canadian who has been forced to go to the United States to seek a living. People can stand so much abuse, but the time comes when they realize that they don't have to put up with it, and the tide is slowly but surely flowing towards the Conservative party, and the Liberal party cannot stem it. Look at the Maritime Provinces. In Nova Scotia they claimed that the Liberal Party would never be defeated, but they were defeated after having been in power for 49 years. In New Brunswick the same thing happened, and history will repeat itself on October 29th.

Need Protection.

Protection is needed both by farmers and city people, as they cannot exist without each other. Industries have to be protected but they must not have a measure that will allow them to exploit. In Peterborought we have several American factories who employ many hands, and who naturally help to supply the farmer with his home market, yet we read in American papers that if Mr. King's Government is returned to power, there would be no need of American firms operating Canadian branches, and if this should come about, there would be no employment for the people now employed, with a result that you farmers would suffer as a consequence. Until a short time ago we had the largest glass factory in Canada operating in Canada; it represented an investment of two million dollars. To-day that plant is closed, because Belgian glass can be brought in cheaper, and Mr. Gordon claims that it was not tariff but the cost of silicia sand that was responsible for this factory closing, yet we have the statement of the manager of the factory that the overhead cost in the manufacture of glass was mainly wages. You have another example in The Examiner, a letter from a Belgian firm, offering to supply sweaters at a very much lower cost than they could be manufactured here, due to the depreciation of Belgian money and the cheaper living conditions in that country.

In many parts of the Provinces many prominent Liberals are running as Independents and the same thing applies to other provinces. Mr. Meighen will be supported by the thinking Liberal who has the interests of Canada at heart, rather than the interests of party.

In closing, Mr. Strickland warned his hearers that elections could not be won by sitting down. "You must face the issue, you know the situation, and if you consider it you cannot help but vote for E. A. Peck on the twenty-ninth," he said.

E. A. Peck.

Mr. Peck stated that he was glad to see such a large crowd present, and said that he considered he was justified in appearing before his audience, with protection as his main plank, when he saw Canada in the state that it was to-day. There must be something wrong, declared the speaker, when a country like this with its immense natural resources, cannot hold its population. We are the most extravagant country in the world for scrapping things that will give a man work. We export our raw materials, instead of manufacturing them and then exporting. Protection is the only remedy for this, and you as farmers should be even more interested than city people. We have in Peterborough a clock factory which makes good clocks, but due to lack of tariff they have had severe competition from the Germans and Swiss, who, owing to their depreciated currency, can undersell them. The same thing applies to woollens and carpets. These articles are produced by capable artizans, who must have a living wage in order that they may exist, and if you want to retain these people in Canada, for it is to your advantage to do so, as they form your best market, in fact they are your only market due to the United States tariff, you must have protection. Take the position of the Canadian farmer to-day—what is he up against? The United States market is reserved exclusively for the United States wheat grower by a prohibitive duty against foreign wheat. Not a bushel of wheat from Canada or any other country, except by paying a tariff duty of 42 cents per bushel, yet wheat can enter Canada at a duty of 12 cents per bushel. Under the treaty made by the King Government with Australia, the Canadian farmer has been sacrificed. No Canadian farmer with an intelligent interest in, and knowledge of, his industry can vote for the King Government. Australia, like the United States, recognizes the need for protection. The following table shows how the Australian farmer is protected in his home market, and the situation of the Canadian farmer in comparison. The figures on the left are the duties imposed by Australia against Canada, while those on the right are the terms on which the same products from Australia are allowed to enter Canada:

Onions—Australian tariff, $1.50 per cwt.; Canadian tariff, free.

Butter—Australian tariff, 6 cts. per lb.; Canadian tariff, 1 ct. per lb.

Cheese—Australian tariff, 6 cts. per lb.; Canadian tariff, free.

"I am not a farmer, but it seems to me, that you, the backbone of our country, are being sacrificed. We must make some change for the good of the country. One thing about Mr. Meighen, he is straight—he talks protection wherever he goes, East or West.

"As far as my figures are concerned, you will find these in a Government book entitled Canada Year Book, which is published under the name of the Hon. T. A. Low." Mr. Peck expressed the opinion that in its redistribution the Government should have included all of Peterborough County in one riding. It was simply, he said, done to satisfy the ambitions of one man. The eastern part of the county is far from being satisfied, as the split is contrary to their wishes. If the Government is unfair and unjust in one instance, what proof have we that they will not repeat. Mr. Peck said in closing he believed the country to have been poorly governed during the last four years, and assured his hearers that if returned to power in the coming election, he would consult their wishes and suit their views in all matters in which he was called upon to exercise judgment in Parliament.

LATE CZAR'S STAMPS TO BE AUCTIONED

Contains Romanoff Issues Which Took Four Years to Prepare.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(United Press).—Stamps valued at $250,000, property of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, are to be sold at auction here.

Like King George of England, the Emperor of all the Russians was a keen philatelist.

The collection consists of the Romanoff issues of Russian stamps which appeared in 1913, and which took the Russian Government four years to prepare.

It contains original artists' proofs, showing all stages of the finished production. The stamps are in all colors, no two varieties being alike.

At the beginning of the war in 1914 the collection was delivered to the Czar. It was put aside for the time being, but later he took it with him into exile.

When he was transferred from Tobolsk to Yekaterinenburg, and his staff reduced, the collection was left behind, and recently was got through to Europe with the assistance of a foreign mission.

And even as he stood there, there came to Bob's tense senses, faintly on the gale, the whistle of the Limited. The ill-fated Limited, indeed; dogged by a perversity as remorseless as the one that pursued Bob in his petty human affairs; rushing again to disaster—a disaster more complete and annihilating than any of the others which had threatened or occurred to it.

Bob's heart leaped to the sudden appreciation of an opportunity to pay up for the disaster, the deaths, that had been his fault. He had wrecked the Limited once; he could save it now, though it would probably cost his life—which mattered not at all, and but would save him the trouble.

Without hesitation he scrambled down the massed mumble of avalanche debris to the brink of the river—plunged into its awful current, and swam with all his strength and heart. It was a race not only against a vicious, evil tide but against time. Whirlpools sucked him down, spun him out—jagged boulders bruised him—wind-whipped spray and rain blinded and choked him. But he made the eastern side!

He landed far below the trestle, so there still remained a hard climb back and up to the track level. And, meanwhile, the Limited's whistle sounded near and clear above the elements.

He was thoroughly spent when he reached the tracks, and he collapsed involuntarily; then remained where he was, for a momentary respite, before starting to run down toward the Limited. The searchlight was not yet apparent; he had a brief margin of time.

Then a scream from across the shattered Gorge curdled the heart-blood he was trying to compose. Bob looked, aghast. There on the opposite wound of the trestle, outlined in the lightning, was Bobby. He had lost Bob's trail, except for the knowledge that he had proceeded along the tracks. He had followed these, searching—until he reached the broken edge. And just at that moment, when he had caught sight of Bob in the broken illumination of the lightning, had tripped on the sheet intended for the frightening of Bob. It was his scream in the dire and awful few moments during which he struggled to regain his balance that had attracted Bob.

And even as Bob in horror looked on from the opposite cliff, Bobby's childish efforts to untangle and catch himself came to naught—and he toppled headlong into the raging whirlpools below.

For an instant that seemed like a century Bob was literally too paralyzed to stir hand or foot. His eyes were riveted on a towhead, light against the black waters as it was borne downstream. Then Bob came to life and stepped to the trestle edge to leap into the stream again, after Bobby.

A whistle, long, wailing—carrying its proud demand for the safe passage of trainload of human souls. Bob paused almost in the very act of diving—a hundred or more lives rushing toward their death from behind him; one beloved little soul being swept away to death in front of him.

Which should he save?

He could only save one. Before he could flag the Limited and get back to the river, that little spot of brightness against the dark waters would be gone from his sight forever. Before he could overtake and swim back with Bobby, the Limited and its human freight would have plunged to an all-embracing death. It was the greatest decision in his life; the most terrible dilemma a fevered brain could imagine. Weakly he shrieked a cursed prayer that this Chalice might pass from him. But there was none to take it.

Which should he save?

Somehow he made up his mind; somehow he got his trembling legs into motion and started down the track toward the flying Limited—in body, while his soul went out to die in the rapids with little Bobby. From then on, for many minutes; everything was black.

When next he drew a conscious breath it was to find himself on the ground in the light of the halted Limited, encircled by anxious faces, of which one stood out from all the rest in saintly significance.

"Caroline!"

"Bob—my darling!"

Bob did not know why she should be on her knees beside him, straining his head against her slender, tremulous bosum, kissing him. He did not care why or how—he melted into the incredible miracle of it, and sobbed.

But his sobs of happiness gave way to an agonizing gasp, and he rose with swift unsteadiness to his feet, as he remembered: "Bobby," he choked, to Caroline, "Bobby's gone—into the Gorge. Bobby, my poor, dear little Bobby!"

A cry from some of the trainmen who had gone ahead to examine the full damage of the avalanche—a cry that caused the sympathetic group around Caroline and Bob to part and make way for two brakemen who staggered into the group, carrying Spike Nelson. And tightly clasped in Spike's one arm, was Bobby!

When Spike was revived, he whispered to Bob of what had happened. "Seen de kid's blond noodle floating past the ledge where I bin hidin' since de other wreck when I made me getaway. So I just hooked him in, and started to climb up. Dat's what tuckered me. Only have one hand dat's fit fer climbin' and holdin' someone at de same time—"

And that one good hand was pressed now in the strong, grateful hands of Bob Wilson—a clasp of forgiveness and of friendship that would endure to the end of life.

"An', say, Bob—I never seen wot was on dat poster I just guessed dat because you torn it down it was—"

Bob looked candidly at Caroline and at Spike, and explained in the fullness of a sense of relief

"That was a police broadcast for me because my father, all other methods in his search for me having failed, requested the countryside co-operation of police departments to locate me. After he disowned me, he evidently regretted it, and instituted search. But my pride was such that I'd sooner have died than gone back to a disgrace and conditional forgiveness. The rest I'll tell you some other time, Caroline!"

"It won't be necessary, Bob, for I know—about Jane Gordon. And I know, further, something that made me wish so hard that you'd come back, or at least get in touch with me. Your father had your marriage to Jane Gordon annulled—you have been free all these years—"

Bob was beginning to discredit the evidence of his ears and eyes—it all seemed such an incredible turnover from the assailments of Fate he was so accustomed to. Yet—there was no gainsaying the evidence of his lips, pressed close to Caroline's.

Preparations were underway now for the return of the Limited to Crater City until such time as the Gorge could be made passable. Bobby, a little bewildered and a little ill, was safe in the expert care of a doctor among the passengers.

Bob had wondered what the attitude of the trainmen toward him would be; he was set at ease by their hearty expressions of gratitude and friendship. Evidently, in their minds, his former mistake had been overshadowed and expiated by the magnitude of his present achievement. He was at peace, then, with his comrades; with the world!—and, greatest matter of all—secure in the love of Caroline. Therefore, he determined to return to Crater City on the Limited and see everything through to the happy conclusion that the good fortune of this moment seemed to predict.

He turned again to look for Spike, but the tramp had disappeared, furtively—had slunk off into the refuge of the stormbound night.

"Caroline," Bob said, sometime later when they were seated in a drawing room of the Limited, with Bobby on Caroline's lap, "I want to tell you all the details of the affair with Jane Gordon—"

Caroline interrupted him with a gesture of positiveness. "Stop, sir,—after having seen and known Miss Gordon for exactly twelve hours I know even better than you do what those details were. And I'm not interested in the confessions of a bad little boy. Spanking would be the only fitting punishment for such an affair—and I'm afraid you're too big for me to spank!"

Caroline spoke lightly, but deep in her heart she knew what the whole affair had cost this scion of the country's oldest and proudest bluebloods; what trailing the lace and old lavender of aristocracy in the gutter of Philistine chiffon had meant when realization came to the proud and sensitive oul of the young man. Remorse for trafficked pride had driven him forth an outcast and self-appointed pariah with greater force than the commission murder would have sent the average man skulking into shadows and oblivion. She wondered a little uneasily if he would want to return to the old life now, if all was so placid and forgiven; and she wondered if he could or would take her into that setting.

Bob was studying her, and seemed her thoughts;

"Which name do you like best," he asked, "Snobson or Wilson?"

"You will always be—Bob Wilson—to me," she said, with a little catch in her voice.

"And I'll always remain Bob Wilson—for you!" he said softly. "I am on my own. I have been for five years, and, I've liked it better than the softness the pampered ease, of other days. But now I have incentive and freedom for its exercise—so I shall aim for the highest. We'll make our own fortune, dear heart!"

They were silent a little while over that, for it demanded emphatic scallin of a sort that made speech rather awkward.

"If the Road will give me another chance, I'll start up—if they won't, we'll go elsewhere. I'll ever carry the thought, though, that I was responsible—for Jim's death—"

He explained to her the circumstances under which he had run past the light.

"Then," she whispered, stoutly sharing half and half with him, "It's my fault, too, by the same token—for it was my picture you were looking at!"

Presently she continued, "We were just puppets in the hands of God, who wanted to take Jim on, for some reason. There's no one to blame, but Him—and we can't presume to do that!"

Bob mused to himself—at least Jim had been saved a lot of pain by his death, the pain of unrequited love, for now Bob knew that Caroline could never have loved Jim. Presently, Bob began to stop thinking about anything—it was his fault that he had tried to do too much thinking about everything. He abandoned himself to the serene anchorage of his own found love. For their arms around one another formed serene harbors wherein they were safe from the strife and alarms of the wide world of the sea outside the sandbar of their threshold.

THE END.

And who is this hermit Antonio?

Little Jean and Mary, sleeping in his bed on the edge of the cliff, after he had found them lost in the storm, liked him, liked his birds and stories of fairies; and little children, wise in the unmasking of men, are not given to prying into the past or worrying about the future.

The "Little girls," as Antonio called them, answered no idle curiosity about Antonio. And yet, in answering nothing, they fell back upon the answer to everything, for all they would say was, "We were awful scared at first, but he is nice and we love him."

But if nobody knows who or what he is, they at least know his green hunting shirt, hairy white head and buckskin moccasins. And Mr. Burns says that the little hut is spotless and that the old man's eyes first twinkled, then filled with tears as they came down the trail, a mere crack in the rocks at places.

"Yes, I believe I know the trail, and could point it out," says Mr. Burns, "but it took a great love to expose that secret, and it will take the wild haired hermit himself to tell you, for I won't."

Later on, when Jean and Mary and their mother were talking about the hermit, Mr. Burns remarked upon the feeding shelf the old man had for the birds in winter and spring. He had several along the trail, in sheltered places. "And those birds know that man and fly right to him," continued Mr. Burns. "Why, as I sat on a rough bench, in front of the hut and looking over the edge of the cliff at the magnificent view, a whole flock of birds arrived, expecting to find Antonio, and they gave funny little squeaks of surprise and alarm when they found their error. Then Antonio came and sat down on the other end of the bench, and those birds, purple finches he called them, came to his hand. They are a rose-red, a beautiful bird. The female is duller and sparrow like, as the young birds are. Antonio says the young males do not become coloured until the end of the second season. I tell you, folks, it takes birds and children to know what is behind the front a man puts on."

OBITUARY.

MRS. JOHN MINIFIE.

COLDSPRINGS, Oct. 9—Friends from Peterborough, Keene, Campbellford, Roseneath, Toronto and Kingston were here on Sunday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. John Minifie. It is estimated that nearly two hundred people were present showing the esteem and regard in which she was held. Before her marriage Julia Bush, Mrs. Minifie was in her 80th year. Her home during all her married life was at Bradens' Station, Coldsprings, near where her husband passed away eleven years ago. She was deeply interested in church work and in all happenings of community life. Mrs. Minifie had gone to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Eagleson, just previous to her last illness. On Sunday she went to visit a grandchild but returned to her daughter's early as she was not feeling well. On Monday a physician was called and on Thursday she passed away.

She is survived by six sons, Stephen, William and Norman of Cobourg, ... Wesley, Asa and Hampton, Coldsprings, and by four daughters, Mrs. N. J. Curtis, Mill Valley; Mrs. Albert McMann, Baltimore; Mrs. Frank Benson, Cobourg, and Mrs. Frank Eagleson, Coldsprings. The late Mrs. Fred Parker, Baltimore, was another daughter.

The funeral took place from the old homstead now occupied by Mr. Hampton Menifie, and was conducted by Rev. Adam Hamilton. Deceased's six sons were the pallbearers.

R. C. L. DRAYTON.

GORE'S LANDING, Oct. 9.—A funeral service was conducted at St. George's church here Thursday for Reginald C. L. Drayton, a well-known citizen, whose death took place after quite an extended indisposition. Mr. Drayton was a retired English gentleman who had made his home here for some thirty years. He was an accomplished musician and took a keen interest in musical affairs. His wife predeceased him by a few years and one son Nigel resides here. Mr. Drayton was an Anglican in religion, and deeply interested in the welfare of the parish of which St. George's church here forms a part.

LEARN TO KNOW WHEN BABY IS THIRSTY.

Last week I told the new mother that the cry of her baby means everything in telling her what the child wants and perhaps what he should have. Today I want to enlarge somewhat upon this theme.

The first thing a newborn baby does is to announce to the world that he has arrived. This he does by a vigorous cry, sometimes a cry so shrill that it can be heard across the street. It is a welcome sound and the louder it is, the more welcome. The vigor and strength of the infant are measured by this sign.

What are the causes of crying on the part of grown-ups? Sorrow, anger, fear, pain. The same factors apply to the baby's cry, but there are additional causes, of course.

Perhaps the most frequent cause of crying is hunger. The baby can't tell the mother in so many words that it wants food, but it can tell her in a language which she soon understands just as well as the baby does.

That baby stomach is an insistent organ. If it wants food it makes so much fuss about it that the baby never lets up crying till the food is given. But it isn't always food that the stomach wants. It may demand water and raise the same kind of a cry for it.

Mothers must not forget that water is essential to the baby's happiness and health. Just because the milk is fluid is no reason why it will satisfy thirst. You know how it is yourself—there is nothing so acceptable and so satisfying as water. If you are thirsty, nothing but water goes to the spot. If the baby is thirsty he is likely to cry till he gets water.

The most frequent ailment a baby has is some sort of involvement of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes or lungs. Perhaps I am not exactly accurate in saying this, because digestive disturbances are very frequently had, too. But of all the serious ailments, the so-called respiratory diseases must be given first place.

A cold in the nose or throat means that the mucous membrane lining of these regions has become inflamed. This membrane is continued along a passageway called the Eustachian tube, to the middle ear. You can see that any congestion or inflammation of the mucous membrane of the head is very likely to involve all such membranes.

On this account, congestion or inflammation of the delicate lining of the ear is one of the uncomfortable complications of what might otherwise be an insignificant cold. The chief sign of such involvement is earache. If you ever had it you know how terribly painful earache is. Think what it must mean to a baby!

If no other and perfectly plain cause is found for continuous crying, the ears should be examined to see if one of them is the seat of trouble.

NEWS OF ORLAND.

ORLAND, Oct. 7.—M. J. Moran, Walter Carr and M. F. Moran have been busy all last week filling their silos, James Carr supplying the power with his tractor.

Willet Simpson is making the second trip among the farmers finishing up their threshing this time as he goes.

The Dominion Canners have laid off several of the women from this place who have been in their employ on account of the shortage of tomatoes caused by the recent heavy frosts.

W. J. Latimer and Thos. Webber have been busy laying an asbestos roof on the dwelling of B. Brintnell in Brighton.

Frank Cooper and son have been picking apples around Smithfield the past week for W. Montgomery, ex-M. P. P. and will be busy in and around Cankerville this week.

Repairs on the steeple of the Presbyterian Church in Brighton have been completed. It was badly torn by lightning last spring.

Potatoes are bringing from $2 to $2.50 per bag here and buyers are very wary on account of the rot, which is very bad, in fact, Walter Reycraft says one piece of his will not pay for digging and he is not alone by any means.

Pears are being peddled here at $1 a bushel and are of an extra good sample. Late plums are plentiful and sell at around 50c a peck.

W. J. Cowan has rented his farm to Paul Reece. He will have an auction sale in the near future and no doubt will get long prices as he has landed nearly all firsts and numerous specials at the surrounding fall fairs on his large herd of valuable horses. Mr. Cowan has taken out an auctioneer's license and will sell his own chattels as a starter.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

JOHN JACOB ASTOR "THE LANDLORD OF NEW YORK."

At the age of 18 John Jacob Astor, the butcher's son who founded the Astor fortune, came from Waldorf, Germany.

He lived with an old German, George Dieterich, a baker, at 351 Pearl Street, for whom he peddled cakes. Then he started a little German toy shop. But the tales of the trappers fascinated him and he determined to take a chance in the fur trade himself.

He began by peddling skins, buying them where he could, carrying a pack on his back from which he bartered cheap jewelry, toys, etc., for the skins.

It expanded until his own ships carried the pelts to London and China, returning with rich cargoes of teas and silks. Sometimes his profits on a single voyage reached $70,000.

But he had bitter rivalry and much competition in the West, and finally withdrew from the contest. But he had accumulated enough to venture into other fields. Envisioning himself as the founder of a rich landed family, Astor secured vast tracts of land in various States, but he concentrated the bulk of his speculations on Manhattan and invested in mortgages.

By foreclosure he secured the "Cosine farm" for $23,000 and the "Eden farm" for $25,000; properties then on the outskirts of New York. To-day they are in the heart of the city, covered with skyscrapers.

The butcher's son became known as "the landlord of New York." His chief heir, William B. Astor, already possessing $5,000,000, increased the $20,000 left by his father to $100,000,000, which he left to his two sons, William and John Jacob II., who was lost in the Titanic disaster.

Immense areas of land in Harlem and The Bronx, passed into the possession of the Astor family, and the fortune based primarily on the fur trade expanded to include mines, railroads, city transportation systems, gas plants and industrial corporations.

In 1911 the collective Astor fortune was $450,000,000. With increased values, it is estimated to-day at more than a billion dollars.

Vincent Astor, son of John Jacob II., needs but to sit tight and receive his rents and dividends.

In Constantinople a great portion of domestic purchases are made from street peddlers, who sell nearly everything from fish and vegetables to dress suits.

It is only through a special price concession from the manufacturer that this great economical Shirt event is possible. The selling price represents but wholesale cost.

Do not confuse these with the inferior broadcloth shirts, for every garment is made of a tightly twisted, long strand Egyptian cotton which gives excellent service, stands the severest laundry tests, and comes back to you looking just as fresh and silky as ever. They are all perfect fitting, liberally sized garments, guaranteed colors—in fact, not a detail is lacking that you would expect in a high-grade Shirt.

FALL FASHIONS
Become More Elaborate Daily

REMEMBER the day of the very straight, severe lines when the mannish silhouette was so earnestly sought after? About a year or so ago some true feminists revolted against this attitude and since then, little by little, fanciful details have been added to our costumes. Today we have summed them all up. If you could look in at one of the fashionable salons of the French coutouriers you would be delighted with the many piquant details, ingenious arrangements of flares, godets, circular skirts, jabots, lace and novel trimmings, new necklines, and so on—all most flattering to true feminine charm. But you don't have to go so far to see all this. Let us show you these new details in modes that are exact copies of Paris creations.

HATS - As Seen in Paris

Every approved fall shade is represented here in Hats of various styles, to become all types of women. The large shape is a new mode which the smarter women will be quick to adopt, because it helps her to achieve that dressy appearance recently prescribed by Fashion. The new styles are all here now, so if you come in soon you will find an excellent group to select from.

$7.50 to $12.00 —2nd Floor.

Curves and Flares Grace Autumn Frocks

There's a vitality and animation about these Autumn Frocks which is new and interesting. Analyzing it we find it arises from uneven hemlines, cascading draperies, graceful jabots and undulating flares—above all, flares! Flares which fall into rippling, curving lines.

Indeed, every Frock, whether of lustrous satin or rough sportsy woollen, has a fullness to its skirt that's new and charming. And so varied are the ways this fullness is achieved that the autumn mode never lacks interest. Every woman will be delighted with the Exposition Frocks.

$25.00 to $59.00 —2nd Floor.

SMART VELVET BOWS FOR SWAGGER EVENING FROCKS

Otherwise Simple Gowns Are Adorned With Huge Loops.

ANNETTE BRADSHAW

Paris seems to be intent upon emphasizing the effectiveness of the velvet bow as a trimming feature for her newest frocks.

Velvet ribbon never fails to make an attractive trimming for the frock. The beauty of velvet seems to be accentuated more than ever when the material with which it is used is some sheer fabric, such as chiffon.

These two frocks illustrate the newest use for velvet. It is simply tied about the waist in sash fashion and finished with a huge bow, either at the side or directly in front.

The flounced dress at the left is of white chiffon. The neckline is rounded in front, and it slopes into a lower round at the back. The armholes are cut rather low beneath the arms. The sash is of turquoise blue velvet, the color which is finding a marked vogue for Fall. With this model are worn long arrings and a necklace of beaten silver, set with tuquoise.

The dinner dress at the right is of copper colored chiffon, simply made, with soft fulness to the skirt, and long sleeves. The velvet sash which ties directly in front is bronze color. At the smart hotels in Paris one sees women at teatime wearing soft afternoon frocks of chiffon, sashed with velvet and matched by velvet hats, usually of the larger sizes. French women this season are strongly favoring the hat which exactly matches their frock in coloring. We are told that they will go to any amount of trouble to find a shade which matches perfectly.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

We are two young girls in our teens and are going with two young gentlemen. As we are going away soon, do you think it would be proper for us to write to them first or request them to do so.

SMILES AND CHUCKLES.

SMILES AND CHUCKLES: If you have been going around with these young men, and like them, and as it happens to be you and your chum who are going away, I think it would be all right for you to write them first. Make it a short, friendly note that includes somewhere your new address, and if they wish to correspond with you, they will answer very promptly. Advice to girls

A FASHION MODEL'S DIARY

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE CHATS ABOUT THE CHARM OF A DANCE FROCK.

The other day I heard Madame giving a most interesting description of her idea of the proper colors a very young girl should wear in the evening. Haidee and I were sitting in the dressing room catching up a ruffle or two that had ripped, as we often do when we are not needed to model. Madame was talking to our best trimmer, a girl who sometimes designs even now and may one day be a really great "creator," as Madame occasionally calls them.

"Pink and yellow," Madame's voice came clearly, "are the colors of youth. I mean by that the pinks and yellows of early Spring flowers, the pastel shades, not the strong pinks and tawny yellows that so many older people can wear so well."

"But, why, Madame?" (This from the trimmer.) "The young can wear all colors. Why do you say but those two?"

"Because," said Madame, "any young girl of some beauty (and almost any young girl has some beauty) is so radiant that a strong color takes away her natural bloom. You have observed it yourself. Her skin has a glow that the most determined care cannot preserve, ehr eyes shine because she is always excited, and even her hair has a gloss peculiar to youth. To allow these to be seen for themselves she must be dressed simply and in the very softest of colors."

"Then that is why you are having that chiffon and roses creation made up in both pink and yellow?"

"Yes," answered Madame, "Veronica, will you fetch it, please?"

I dropped my thimble and ran delightedly to do that very thing, while Haidee obligingly took up my neglected rip. The frock they had just mentioned really is a dream. Four inch ruffles rise on top of each other (as though they really grew) to form the skirt, and the merest bodice serves as a waist.

Madame continued as I entered with it over my arm: "The color of wild roses, or perhaps the inside of shells, and always, always for youth the best trimming is flowers."

"Aren't those beauties!" I murmured to Haidee. "Mmm," she answered. "And the cunning way they are placed at the top of each ruffle, for all the world as though they grew on one stalk. There is nothing prettier than a velvet rose, anyway, even if Monsieur did tell us only yesterday that they were doing great things with silk ones."

"Mind you," again Madame's voice, "I have not said that a young girl's dress should be without any touch of sophistication. Whether this is done in pink or the most flattering of yellows it would not be quite itself without the adroit little bow which fills in the line of a much more daring corsage."

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

The woman who is free and agile in her movements during youth is the woman who retains an agile, youthful body when she grows older.

The free movements of children are usually graceful, but unfortunately the older person often allows her life to become sedentary, and her body becomes less pliable.

Now, all the outdoor exercises are, of course, excellent. They keep you in the open air, which you can drink in to your heart's content. They make your movements free and graceful.

They make you feel well and alert. You are keener and sharper because of them.

Any person who has the opportunity to get out and play golf or tennis or any of the outdoor game is lucky indeed.

At the same time, these general exercises have not the specific value in developing special sets of muscles that indoor exercise possess. Tennis, for instance, will develop your right arm. But your left arm will be idle, and its development will fall behind that of your right arm. In most games we use our right arm to the exclusion of our left.

I give this example to show the value of special indoor calisthenics. Many people who exercise outdoors regularly and often, also have special indoor exercises to keep in trim. One of the most active men I know has always indulged in strenuous outdoor exercise. He appears far younger than his years. One reason for this is that, no matter how active a day he has planned outdoors, he always begins the day by exercising when he gets up in the morning.

The woman who makes this indoor exercise part of the routine will find that she keeps young in body and mind, far longer than the woman who omits exercise and goes about feeling sluggish and inert.

Now, I am going to give you an excellent exercise to develop the muscles of your hips and legs. The muscles will become trained and strong, and your limbs will become graceful, if you keep it up regularly.

The exercise is simply a step of the Russian folk dance, with which you are doubtless familiar.

Begin by stooping on the floor. Your knees should be bent under you and your toes resting on the floor.

Now extend your right foot so that it is as straight out in front of you as possible, with the toe resting on the floor.

The next movement is simply a shift. As you return your right foot to the position beneath you, with the knee bent, you shoot your left foot forward.

Keep this up in rapid succession. You may have difficulty in retaining your balance at first, but you will become adept with practice, and the exercise will be of beauty benefit because of the points enumerated.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

The School Dress

By HEDDA HOYT.

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (United Press).—Though silhouettes are full and airy, The school girl's lines are not so flary

School girls up to the age of eighteen continue to wear straight lines. For party wear, however, circular skirts and ruffled frocks are chosen.

The school girl's dress is simple and dignified with long sleeves, high neckline, vest-fronts and wide belts. Skirts are not extremely short and scant but are a happy medium. Girls who insist upon wearing very short hemlines match the frock with bloomers of silk jersey and when these are worn no petticoat is needed. Stockings are worn high and not rolled as the Fall season begins.

Navy blue is the favorite color for the junior Miss. Materials are flannel, rep, wool jersey and balbriggan. One-piece frocks usually have a vestee front section of contrasting color matching the turn-down collar and cuffs of the long sleeves.

Red is a favorite color trim for the blue frock. Two-piece jumper frocks of balbriggan or wool jersey will be very popular for schoolwear. Belts are generally worn at a low waistline on the jumper section. The skirt is attached to a bodice and is made with inverted pleast stitched down the center front to the kneeline and there left loose in kick pleats. Jumpers are often trimmed in velvet pockets, belts, collars and cuffs.

The dance frock for the young Miss may be made of velvet, silver cloth, gold lace or chiffon. Bodices are slender fitting and long-waisted. Skirts may be full and scalloped at the hem-line, circular from the hips or ruffle trimmed.

Rounded necklines or necklines with a slightly suggested V-shape in front and rear are best suited to youth. Filmy dance frocks of tulle are not unusual, and when tulle is used the preferred shade is a soft pinkish gray. The skirt is layer upon layer of tulle ruffles and the bodice of tulle is draped over silver cloth. Scalloped skirts of taffeta may be outlined in contrasting colored velvet with huge flowers of velvet appliqued here and there on the full skirt.

IRENE RICH'S COSTUME

The popular young screen star, whose costume startled race patrons at Woodbine Park, Toronto, and Thorncliffe, is shown above. The gown is seen to be straight, exceptionally long in the skirt and high at the neck. The trimming that practically covers the entire skirt is of black monkey, the effect being repeated about the neck. The turban-like hat is of gold cloth, affording a needed color relief. Modistes unanimously declare this costume is no indication of the return of long skirts, although the long, tight-fitting sleeves might possibly return.

OMEMEE NEWS

The annual plowing match for the county of Victoria is being held on the farm of Mr. J. Rich, in Mariposa township, near Little Britain, on the 23rd of October.

On Tuesday afternoon, Mr. F. G. Sandy who was appointed as a representative from Emily, waited on the township Council, which met in Omemee, in the hope of obtaining a grant to be used as prize money for Emily farmers. The Council have granted the sum of $25—to be divided into three prizes of $12, $8, $5, consecutively, and the Competition is open to any young man who may compete from this township.

Eldon, Terulam and Mariposa townships have each been fortunate enough to have an occasion of this sort and many farmers are anticipating the event to be held in Emily township next year.

OBITUARY

Susan Gardener.

The death occurred in Omemee on Saturday, of an old and respected resident, in the person of Mrs. Susan Gardiner. The deceased lady had reached the age of 74 years and up until less than one year ago had been in good health. Since that time, she has suffered much, and for the past eight months has been in bed most of the time. Death was not unexpected and, while loved ones watched over her, she passed peacefully away on Saturday morning.

She was an Anglican in religion, and in her younger days, played a part in the various activities of the Church. Her husband predeceased her several years ago. Of the near relatives left to mourn the loss of a loved one, are her three sisters; Mrs. D. H. Corneil, who had nursed her for several months, Mrs. Lytle, of Carmen, Manitoba, and Mrs. Bell, of Dorchester, also two brothers, Robert Robinson, of Dakota, and William, of Omemee.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon, from her late residence, the service being conducted by the Anglican pastor, Rev. A. T. Weir. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Cecil Corneil, Reuben Bradley, William Magee, Ed. Jamieson, Roy Corneil, of Manilla and Mr. Gardiner, of Perrytown. Interment was made in Emily cemetery.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mrs. Rachel Robinson, Toronto, Mrs. Lytle and daughter, Mrs. MacLeod, of Peterborough, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. Jackson, of Lindsay, Mr. Roy Corneil, of Manilla, Mr. Gardiner, of Perrytown and Mr. Jones, of Peterborough.

T. B. Laidley.

The death occurred, in Toronto, on Sunday morning, of a former resident of Omemee, in the person of Mr. T. B. Laidley, at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. A. E. Bryson. The deceased was in his 81st year. About three weeks previous to his demise, the late gentleman contracted a cold and, although everything was done which medical skill could do, bronchial pneumonia set in and he gradually weakened and passed peacefully away.

The late Mr. Laidley was born in the township of Emily, on the farm, where he resided most of his life, until two years ago, when he disposed of the farm and moved to Toronto, to reside with his daughter.

Deceased was a staunch Methodist, and in his younger days took a very prominent part.

The funeral service, which was conducted on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. C. M. Marshall, of Earlscourt United Church, assisted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Omemee, former pastor of the deceased, was most impressive.

Many wonderful floral tributes from friends of the family, told in their own mute way, of the love and respect in which the late Mr. Laidley were held by friends old and new.

The remains were tenderly borne, to their last resting place in Prospect cemetery, where they were placed beside those of his helpmate through life, who predeceased him three years ago.

The pall-bearers were four nephews: Messrs. Fergus Porter, of Janetville; John Porter, of Aurora; Benson Dunn, of Oshawa; Dr. Clifford Laidley, of Lindsay; Stanley Laidley, of Toronto; and William Connell, of Omemee.

Left to mourn his passing are two daughters, Mrs. Florence M. Bryson, Mrs. Elsie Boyd, both of Toronto, also one sister, Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Philip, of Lindsay, and two brothers, Henry of Omemee, and Isaac of Lindsay, to whom is extended the sympathy of their many old friends.

Following is a partial list of the flowers—Pillow, Grandson, Hillas Bryson; Anchor, daughters; Wreath, Mr. T. C. Stephenson and Mr. Henry Laidley; Crescent, Mr. and Mrs. I. Laidley and Dr. Laidley; Spray, Mrs. Wm. Philip and daughter, Nellie; Sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. A. Laidley and Stanley; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Connell; Sheaf, Staff of Silverthorne Public School; Sheaf, Girls of Misses Wear Dept. of T. Eaton Co.

Thomas Magee.

The deaths of Mr. Thomas Magee, in Nichols Hospital, Peterborough, on Wednesday, Sept. 31st, at the age of 46 years, has cast a sad gloom over the entire village and community. A few weeks ago, the late Mr. Magee contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia. He had rallied from this attack and was again able to be out on the advice of his physician, he left his home in good spirits on Tuesday evening for Peterborough, where an operation on the lung was performed. Shortly after the operation, in a spell of coughing he passed suddenly away.

The deceased was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and had acted in the capacity of Secretary-treas. for several years. He was also a member of the Black Preceptory, of L.O.L. 114, and a well respected citizen.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held under the auspices of the Orange Order on Friday afternoon from his late home to Emily cemetery, the service being conducted at the house by Rev. R. S. Scott, of Cannington, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. Weir, of Christ Church, and Rev. Rowland of the United Church, while the Orange Order conducted the service at the grave.

Those left to mourn his sudden demise besides his grief-stricken wife are three brothers, George and James, of Omemee, and David, of Gull Lake, Sask., and one sister, Mrs. Wm. McConnell, of Smith, and to these is extended the sympathy of the community.

The pall bearers were Messrs Charles Ivory, Lewis Windrim, Henry Jones, Walter Magee, R. J. Patterson and Wm. Thorn.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Best, and Mr. and Mrs. Lovatt, Eldon, Miss Lena Henderson, Toronto, Mrs. Mills, Port Hope; Wm. Hunter, Millbrook; Wm. Glass, Bridgenorth.

WHEAT POOL SEEKS MEMBERSHIP BOOST

Present List of 10,000 to be Greatly Augmented Under New Plan.

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—Aiming at an increase in its membership of 10,000, the Alberta Wheat Pool has inaugurated a campaign to be conducted on an entirely different basis to those previously organized on the Prairies.

The objective of the organization committee is to boost the membership to 42,000, which in the average of acreage, will bring the total acreage of the pool to 4,200,000, an increase of nearly a million acres.

The success of the past two years prompted the directors of the pool to authorize the present canvass, which will be pursued to the end of the year. In the past, all canvassing has been done voluntarily, but President J. W. Wood, and the board of directors voted to recompense canvassers on a commission basis. Delegates and local secretaries are eligible to participate in the drive.

In 1923 the first year of its operation, the Alberta wheat pool handled 34,222,833 bushels of wheat, that had a total value to the farmers of this province of $37,516,528. The crop of 1924 was not so uniformly good, 23,025,135 bushels of wheat passing through the pool, valued at $35,050,000.

The deductions made from the 1923 pool for reserve funds were $211,580, and from the 1924 pool, approximately $590,000. The cost of operation per bushel was in 1923, two-fifths of one cent, and in 1924, about three-eights of one cent. In sending out payments for last year's crop, 85,000 cheques were issued.

The combined membership of the three Canadian wheat pools is 110,000, and the volume of wheat handled during the past season was in excess of 80,000,000 bushels. It is estimated that the central selling agency will handle this year nearly 140,000,000 bushel of Prairie wheat.

MONAGHAN COUNCIL

At its September meeting the North Monaghan Township Council rescinded the by-law passed in the spring for the abolition of statute labor commuted or otherwise. At the time this was passed it was believed that the council would be allowed the same privilege as had been accorded to other townships with suburban areas namely, that of levying two rates, one on the large rural owners, and one on the holders of small lots in the outskirts of the city. It was felt, as permission had not been granted as yet, that there would be dissatisfaction from the large holders this year, when their payments would be so much larger and from the small owners next year when the different rate would be levied.

The matter in this column has been supplied by the Conservative Publicity Committee in this campaign

A CAMPAIGN OF BRIBERY.

A Montreal Paper Flails the Hon. George.

Efforts of the semi-dissolving King government to bribe the electors with their own money multiply as the campaign continues, as plainly shown in the West Riding of Peterborough, and also in other constituencies, this while the position of the government daily becomes more and more desperate. What is extraordinary in the campaign of Mr. Mackenzie King and his colleagues, is the scale upon which the bribes are being offered and the audacity iwth which the property of the people is being put up for sale.

This has been going on, unblushingly, in the short period since dissolution and when understood the electors are amazed. The old scheme of promising railways has been revived, and is offered to ensure the favorable votes of wide stretches of the provinces.

The Montreal Gazette, in its issue of October 7th, takes the King Government to task, and what the paper has printed will be of much interest to the electors in the city and throughout the West Riding. Afer referring to what is going on all over the Dominion, wherever a sop and bribe may be used to supposed advantage by the King Government, the Gazette continues—

"It now appears that the Prime Minister and the Minister of Justice are likely to be outdone in this sordid competition though they have gone far. There is a new Minister of Immigration Hon. G. N. Gordon, member for West Peterborough. He aws taken into the Government at the dissolution, when the Government was being temporarily reorganized; there is to be a further reorganization after the elections—if there is a Government left to be reorganized—and Mr. Gordon's portfolio is to be given to a western recruit. In the meantime he is making the most of his office and his opportunities. He addressed a Liberal gathering in Peterborough a few days ago, and the friendly Examiner of that city reported his speech in part as follows:

"Right in Peterborough county, "Mr. Gordon indicated, there are "hundreds of farm holdings where "only a small part of the land is "cultivated. It will be his aim to "ascertain whether the owners of "this waste land are willing to sell "small tracts to old country farm-"ers, who will be successful be-"cause of their intensive farming "practices. He set the probable "number of such tracts at 700 but "announced his plan to bring an "inspector, who will survey the "county exhaustively and make a "report on which Mr. Gordon will "base his further actions. With "this building up of homes at its "very doors the city could not help "but prosper, he said, and those who "sell the land will be prospered by "the transaction and by the shoul-"dering by the newcomers of some "of the burden of township and "county taxation."

Is that bribery? The proposition is clear enough; the farmers of West Peterborough are to be lured with the prospect of selling lands at good prices to colonists sent into the county by the Department of Immigration, under Mr. Gordon's direction. Seven hundred "small holdings"—and perhaps more if the inspector does his duty to his chief—means a nice windfall for seven hundred farmers, at a minimum, who have lands to sell, lands which they are not now cultivating and which, presumably, are not worth cultivation. Of course the project is impracticable to the point of absurdity, but it is calculated, none the less, to make its appeal to the farmers who have lands to sell, whose interest it is to take Mr. Gordon at his word, and who, if the dream is not realized will be at least be no worse off financially than they are now. As an earnest of good faith the Minister of Immigration promised to have his inspector in the riding within a few days, and the official in all probability, is there now, giving color to the programme and plausibility to the promise. That is how the Department of Immigration and Colonization is being administered, temporarily by Hon. G. N. Gordon. He would extend his plan to other parts of Ontario; and to this province but, since charity begins at home he begins—where he is likely to end—with his own constituency, among the people whose votes he hopes to secure. The campaign is only half over, but it is doubtful if this example of political prostitution is likely to be excelled.'"

Perhaps no sentence in the appeal expresses the situation and the intention so well as Mr. Gordon's own words, "that those who sell the 'and will be prospered by the transaction" and the Hon. George by the votes he hopes to corral in the constituency. A cheerful thing to learn the results of this election fishing. But will electors take the bait?

LAKEFIELD NEWS

LAKEFIELD, October 7.—The annual Harvest Festival services of St. John's Church were held on Sunday last, both morning and evening, with two celebrations of Holy Communion, one at 8 a.m., and the other after the morning service.

The church was beautifully decorated under the direction of Mrs. Cox and a corps of competent assistants, a prominent feature, being a screen, made of green and surmounted by a cross of grain and red berries, fruit of the field, the garden and the vine, all give testimony of the need of thanking God for his bountiful gifts of the harvest season.

The Rector, Rev. W. Cox, was the preacher at the 11 o'clock service and took as his text, "Alleluia,"—Thank you; and using the words of Dean Alford's beautiful hym, "Now thank we all our God" to illustrate some of the reasons for thanking God for all His goodness to us all through the year, and especially at this season when God provides us, not only with the necessities of life, but also with many other things which are good for us to have.

Like the ten lepers who were cleansed by our Lord we are ready to accept His favors and not ready to say "Thank you." Our Lord said, when one leper thanked Him for His mercy and goodness, "There were ten cleansed but where are the nine?"

Rev. Geo. J. Bousfield of St. Lukes, Peterboro', was the preacher at the evening service and delivered a very thoughtful sermon on the manifold gifts of God to man, providing for all his needs.

SQUATTERS CASES RESERVE JUDGMENT

Counsel Claims No Proof Advanced of 60 Years' Uninterrupted Possession.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—The Supreme Court of Canada yesterday reserved judgment in the appeal of the Attorney-General of Canada versus Agnes Cummings and Maggie West. This is one of the Stanley Park squatter cases involving the right of people residing within what is now Stanley Park to retain possession of the property which they claim.

The case for the appellants, the Attorney General and the City of Vancouver, was placed before the court by Aime Geoffrion, K.C., who argued that there was no proof of uninterrupted possession for sixty years. It was necessary to prove this in order to retain the property as against the claim of the Crown, he said.

NAVAL REPAIR SHIP FLOATING FOUNDRY

All Casts Except Very Largest May be Made at Battle Scene.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9. —(United Press).—A floating foundry equipped with electric furnaces for melting metal and electric ovens for baking molds has been added to the United States Navy in the commissioning of the U. S. S. Medusa, the first naval vessel designed and built solely as a repair ship.

The Medusa can go to any port, however remote, and make castings, except the very largest, that a man of war under campaign conditions may require.

The furnaces and ovens were installed to insure the speed and accuracy of work that are indispensable to repair of a warship during wartime. Castings made by the electric process are more accurate and durable due to the perfect control of the heating processes.

In addition to her casting equipment, the Medusa carries an optical and gyroscopic shop, plating, sheet-metal pipe, boiler and pattern shops.

The Medusa will not wait for war to begin work. Instead, she will accompany the United States fleet in all cruises and manoeuvres and serve the ships as need arises.

The Japanese Red Cross Society has a membership of 2,800,000.

HUNS THREATEN DOMINATION OF COMMERCIAL AIR

Comply With Letter of Versailles Treaty, But Evade Spirit.

CONTROL HALF

Planes Specially Built With Comforts Greatly in Demand.

By KEITH JONES.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(United Press).—English aircraft experts are viewing with alarm Germany's great bid for the domination of Europe in commercial aviation.

Limitations that the Allies thought they had put upon the growth of a German aircraft industry have been ingeniously evaded by the German's establishment of aircraft factories just across her borders in neighboring countries, it is said.

Against England, five directly operated and seven jointly operated airway routes, Germany has forty-five routes operated entirely under German supervision, and seventeen other routes which she operates jointly with the nationals of other countries.

Of the 132 air lines now operating in all parts of the world, 62 or nearly half are under German control or aided by German capital. In addition, airplanes of German design, and manufactured by German workmen in factories close to the borders of Germany, are in great demand by the air lines operated by other European countries.

Built to fly with less power than the other European makes of airplanes and equipped with more comforts for the passengers, German-built machines, especially the Junker machines, are in great demand.

Another feature of the German airplanes which decommends them to operators is the fact that most of the German machines are constructed of metal throughout, they can remain out-of-doors for long periods of time and in any kind of weather without material damage.

In addition to the 62 routes already in operation, Germany is understood to be planning a new air service between Dresden, Prague and Vienna. A Warsaw-Copenhagen service will be started shortly with Junkers' seaplanes. Between Trieste and Vienna an air route is being planned by a mixed German and Italian company, while application has been made to the Government of Angola (West Africa) for the establishment of a German air route in that colony.

Prohibited by the Versailles Treaty from constructing airplanes larger than small two-seaters, Germany has nevertheless by a studied compliance with the letter of the treaty but evasion of its spirit, pushed herself into the position of the foremost country of the world in commercial aviation.

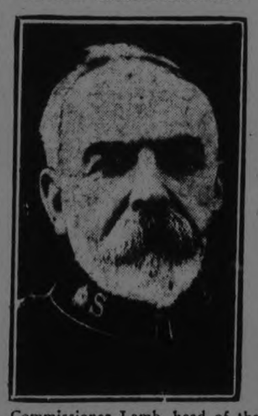
SPEED IMMIGRATION.



Commissioner Lamb, head of the immigration and social welfare work of the Salvation Army all over the world, who is visiting Canada on his tour to interview every premier in the British empire to speed up immigration to save the empire. Speaking of the $15,000,000 a year set aside for five years by the British government in 1922 under the imperial migration act to bear half the cost of settling approved groups in the colonies, Commissioner Lamb says that Canada has "fallen down" on the job.

ENGINEERS HEAR OF THE H.E.P.C.

Assistant Station Engineer Provides Illustrated Talk on System.

HIGHLY TECHNICAL.

A highly technical dissertation concerned with the Central Ontario System of the H.E.P.C. entertained the Engineers at their meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. C. F. Publow, Assistant Station Engineer, was the speaker and his address illustrated as it was by lantern slides served to enlighten many on the inner workings of the giant power octopus the tentacles of which spread through the reaches of Central Ontario bounded on the east and west by Saguenay and Niagara while its southern and northern extremities reach Kingston and Madoc supplying power to Deloro and Sulphide.

The H.E.P.C. was taken over by the Electric Power Company in March 1916 and since that time it has spread and greatly increased in efficiency.

The district served borders the entire northern shore of Lake Ontario while the generating plants are scattered along the Trent Waterway System where nine dams are operated six of which were in operation when the system was taken over.

Power is augmented when emergency arises from local stations as provisions have been made for a tie in so that an exchange of current may be effected between the main Hydro lines and municipal sub-stations. Transformers at generating points are usually "Y" connected, all power being stepped up to 44,000 volts with the exception of Fenelon Falls which carries 11,000 and Trenton which ties in with Campbellford. The units are all water cooled or self cooled. Those automatically treated are placed outside the housing accommodations while the water cooled system is provided with ducts which supply water to the revolving parts within the oil bath casing.

Generators are supplied with governors in order that the speed may be maintained with a certain regularity and all generators on the tie up must be regulated at approximately the same velocity. Otherwise fluctuations arise which interfere with the proper transforming of the volt power.

Special oscillograph charts depicted the movements in the current during storms or other line interference. By this mechanism trouble is easily located and its extent immediately ascertained. The governors at Healy Falls are the standard of reference all others being set in regard to their speed and supposed to operate co-ordinately with them. The relay scheme has been much improved grounds having been established at many of the generating stations.

Illustrations showed the switchboard arrangement with the complicated arrangement of ammeters, volt meters, detectors, transformers and relays. Angle steel which formed the supporting standards was covered and utilized to carry the leads to the various instruments greatly conserving space but involving more trouble in locating any disaffection as numbers of wires were grouped in a single shaft.

All oil for the main bearings of the generators was filtered and fed back by a pressure system.

Profuse illustrations depicted many of the plants showing differences in construction and explaining the necessities for changes or differences in the plants followed.

Ross Dobbin, chairman of the meeting, expressed appreciation on behalf of the society for the instructive nature of the lecture.

Reinforced concrete will be the subject for the next meeting.

VESSEL SUNK WITH ALL HANDS IN STORM

Margarita Went Down Off Coast of Cape Colony.

CAPE TOWN, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Greek steamer Margarita, which left East London, Cape Colony, yesterday with a cargo of maize, is believed to have gone down with all hands during the heavy weather yesterday morning off the coast.

The last wireless message received from her reported the ship almost unmanageable and listing heavily. The steamer Edinburgh Castle hastened to the position given by the distressed vessel, and is cruising in the vicinity but has found no traces of the Margarita.

The Margarita is a vessel of 4,448 tons gross, owned by N. B. Metaxas.

TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Avoid Indigestion, Sour Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Gas on Stomach, Etc.

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder or a couple of five grain tablets taken in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

AMERICAN PLANS WEATHER STATION

University Professor to Establish Post in Central Greenland.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9.—(United Press).—Plans looking toward the establishment of a Danish-American meteorological station in the heart of Greenland are being made here today by Professor William Hobbs of Michigan University.

"Meteorological observations made during the last 150 years indicate that the storms which sweep Northern and Eastern Europe," said Professor Hobbs, "have their origin in the icy wastes of Greenland. The establishment of a meteorological station in Greenland's interior at a height of 3,000 feet would, I believe, enable observers to notify Europe with absolute certainty of the approach of storms.

"I am here laying the groundwork for an expedition we will make next year under the leadership of the Danish explorer, Lauge Koch, into the heart of Greenland for the purpose of making experimental observations. If these experiments prove my theory correct we will make a drive for funds to establish a permanent station there manned by Americans and Danes."

BANK NOTES WILL REPLACE CURRENCY

Monetary System Then Be at True Gold Standard as in 1914.

LONDON, Oct. 9. —(Canadian Press.)— The Daily Express gives the Midland bank, of which Reginald McKenne, former Chancellor of the Exchequer, is president, as authority for the statement that British currency notes will probably be replaced some time in 1926 by Bank of England notes of the same denomination, namely, one pound and ten shillings. The monetary system, it is pointed out, would then be the true gold standard as in 1914, except that no gold would circulate, notes being used instead.

TOURIST DEPARTED AFTER GOOD SEASON

Caught Seven Maskinonge, Largest Being 16 1-2 Lbs. —Highly Pleased.

R. C. Allen, a promipent motor sales representative of N[illegible]ch, N. Y., has returned home after a highly satisfactory vacation spent in the Kawartha Lakes district.

So well pleased is he that in addition to predicting a great future for the lakes as a stamping ground for vacationists he promised to return again next year and bring a number of his friends with him. In the meantime he will tell many of his acquaintances of the advantages afforded devotees of the rod.

In the few days which Mr. Allen spent in fishing he caught seven masginonge at weights varying from five to 16½ lbs. Four weigher above 10½ lbs.

This is only one example of the advertising that this district is receiving as a tourists' paradise, largely the result of the splendid work of the Trent Waterway Development Association and the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

C. H. ACKERMAN IN NEW DEAL

One of Group That Obtains Controlling Interest in Insurance Company.

UNIFIED CONTROL.

A controlling interest in the Merchants' and Employers' Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company of Montreal has been purchased by a group of men closely identified with The Toronto Casualty, Fire and Marine Insurance Company, and include A. E. Dawson, Toronto; G. L. Smith, Toronto; W. W. Evans, Toronto, and C. H. Ackerman, Peterboro, and associated with these gentlemen are J. H. Fortier of Quebec, president of Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and a director of Canada Steamships, Limited, and C. E. Taschereau, M.P., also of Quebec, a prominent and wealthy business man and brother of the present Prime Minister of Quebec.

This brings into close co-operation and under one control three important "All-Canadian" insurance institutions.

There was first organized in 1921 the Toronto Casualty Fire and Marine Insurance Company, which company met with immediate success, and is now transacting the largest volume of automobile insurance among all the companies doing business in Canada.

This group then secured control of the General Animals Insurance Company, changing its name to Canadian General Insurance Company; and now they have just completed the purchase of the Montreal company.

The Merchants' and Employers' Insurance Company has been operating for thirteen years, confining its business to the Province of Quebec, and the new interests are maintaining very largely the French-Canadian character of the company by including in their group two such prominent natives of the Province of Quebec as Mr. Fortier and Mr. Taschereau.

By far the greatest bulk of fire and casualty insurance business in this country is transacted by British and foreign companies, but it is expected that this strong combination of purely Canadian companies, controlled by Canadian capital, will provide a challenge to the existing situation and, by the reduced cost of operation resulting from unified control, be able, effectively, to meet competition in their own field.

PROGRESS AT LOCARNO.

Chamberlain Says Real Move Made Toward Peace in Europe.

LOCARNO, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Optimism over the outcome of the security pact negotiations is shared by all delegates except the Germans.

The feeling of the majority was notably voiced to-day by Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of Great Britain, who declared he was convinced the delegates would leave Locarno with real progress achieved toward the assurance of peace in Europe. Failure in this respect, he added, would mean disaster.

Mr. Chamberlain asserted that no secret engagement would be negotiated here.

IN PUBLIC EYE.

CHARLES H. ACKERMAN

who has been much in the news recently in connection with mining activities in Rouyn district and now in a big Insurance Company deal. He is hailed by The Globe as a Canadian financial magnate. Mr. Ackerman was nominated at the Conservative convention for West Peterborough, but was defeated on the ballot by E. A. Peck.

CHURCH DECISIONS ARE HANDED DOWN

Two Requests For Setting Apart of Buildings Are Refused.

TORONTO, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press).—The first two decisions of the Ontario Church Property Commission were issued today at Osgoode Hall by J. C. Falconbridge, K.C., chairman of the commission. The decision dealt with the application of the First United Church congregation at Stratford, asking that either St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church or Knox Presbyterian Church be set apart for their use. This was refused.

The other petition was made by the minority congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church at Embro, near Startford. They requested that either Knox Presbyterian Church at Embro or St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at Brooksdale, near there, be set apart for their use. This application was also refused.

The commissioners, however, suggested that the minority congregation should be given the use of Eberneezer Congregational Church, which now belongs to the United Church. They have now power to make this order, however.

GERMANS WANT LANDS IMMUNE

Say They Must Take Back Tangible Assurances Protecting Land.

LEAGUE ARTICLE.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). — The German delegates to the security conference are insisting that they must take back to Berlin some tangible promise that wars initiated under the League of Nations' covenant against aggressor states shall not be fought on German soil.

In an endeavor to meet German views, judicial experts of the conference are striving to construct a formula which may be made part of the Rhine security or be attached as an annex committing the signatories to support the German interpretation of article 16 of the covenant in their capacity as members of the League Council.

(This article, outlining the procedure to be taken against an aggressor state binds league members "to take necessary steps to afford passage through their territory to the forces of any of the members of the League which are co-operating to protect the covenant of the league").

ABDUCTOR OF GIRL TAKEN FROM POLICE

Band of Men Seized Prisoner and Fled in Car.

MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 9 (United News).—A band of men whose identity has not been learned, Thursday took Norris Raynor, 28 years old, from the custody of a policeman, who had brought him here from Akron, on the charge of abducting a young girl.

After overpowering the officer, the gang fled with Raynor in an automobile. It is not known whether they were friends of the youth or were seeking to take the law in their own hands in his punishment.

The girl alleged to have been abducted is said to be of a prominent family in Newton County, Miss.

CUSTOMS OFFICIALS CANT STOP RUNNERS

No Law in Canada Against Rum Running—Reply to Critics.

OTTAWA, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—There is no law in Canada prohibiting the shipment of liquor to the United States, and the Customs officials of the Dominion have therefore nothing to do with stopping such shipments. This was the answer given by the Customs Department this morning to a news despatch from Hamilton, stating that the United Church Conference had gone on record as opposing "unrestrained rum-running from Canada."

Smelters Dominate Market Net Advance Over 8 Points

TORONTO, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press)—Consolidated Smelters dominated this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, providing the most spectacular advance in a long time. Smelters was run up to 145 3-4 and eased only one-eighth from this high mark to close at 145 5-8 for a net advance of eight and one-eighth points from yesterday's close. Dealings in Smelters during the morning session aggregated 4,577 shares. Brazilian advanced one and a quarter points to 73 3-8 and Canada Steamships Preferred gained seven-eighths at 58 3-8. Sales Book Common, though active, closed the morning five-eighths lower at 58¼.

Quiet Sessions at Toronto Mining Market Was Firm

TORONTO, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Lorrain and Barry-Hollinger were the active leaders of a quieter session on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, the market continuing to show a mixed trend but being generally firm.

Lorrain eased down five-eighths at 8 5-8, but Barry-Hollinger gained a point at 26½. Bidgood, also prominent, sold up 7-8 at 8 5-8, and Teck Hughes a point to 199. Castle Trethewey eased one at 128 and Tough Oakes one at 52 3-4.

Rumors Of Crop Shrinkage Cause Brisk Rise In Wheat

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—Aggressive buying which found offerings scarce led to a brisk early advance in wheat values today. Accompanying the advance were persistent reports of frost in the Argentine, together with associations of an appreciable shrinkage of crop prospects there. On the other hand, word that 100,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken for importation to Minneapolis failed to have more than a passing bearish influence, despite estimates that 1,500,000 bushels had already been worked from Canada to Minneapolis, Duluth and Buffalo. The opening, 5-8c lower to 1-4c higher, new style, December 136 3-4 to 137 and May 138 to 138 1-2, was followed by a rise to 138 3-8 for December and 140 for May.

Corn prices reflected the scanty runs of receipts, and wheat strength tended also to lift the corn market. After opening at 1-2c to 1c higher, December 75 1-4 to 75 3-8c corn continued to advance, December touching 76 7-8. Oats were inclined to lag. Starting at 1-8c decline to 1-8c gain, December 59 5-8. The market later showed only a slight upturn.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

LONDON, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press).—Reconsidering the decision of last night, the delegates of the Miners' Federation to-day voted to participate in the Royal Commission recently appointed to inquire into the coal industry. Montreal Man Tells of Mountains Full of Minerals.

COVERED BIG AREA.

MONTREAL, Oct. 9. Canadian Press. — Colonel J. Scott Williams returned to Montreal yesterday from a 6 months airplane prospecting expedition for gold in British Columbia and the Yukon.

The expedition, probably the first of its kind, made its headquarters at Laird, 500 miles north of Prince Rupert from which point parties were taken into the surrounding wilderness, left with supplies in a favorable looking locality, and picked up a week or two later.

Colonel Williams speaks in glowing terms of the discoveries made, describing "mountains" of gold, silver and coal. He said that by means of a 450 horse power flying boat more territory had been covered in six months than could have been explored in a lifetime by any other means.

A new form of steel has been invented by a Swiss named Mosshard, which is claimed to be 40 per cent. lighter than ordinary steel and to afford 30 per cent. saving in construction costs.

RIGHT-HANDED PITCHERS AGAIN ON MOUND TODAY

Kremer for Pittsburgh and Ferguson for Senators to Fight It Out.

McKECHNIE PLEASED

Improvement in Batting, He Thinks, Will Bring Victory to Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Managers McKechnie of Pittsburgh and Harris of Washington said the Pirates' victory in the second world's series game yesterday that they would continue right-handed duels, at least in the first contest at Washington today.

Ray Kremer, youthful Pittsburgh moundsman, will face Alex Ferguson, obtained by the Senators from the New York Yankees this season formerly pitcher for the Boston Red Sox. The statements of Harris and McKechne upset the "dope" somewhat, as it had been expected that Emil Yde and Dutch Reuther, two capable southpaws, would fight out the third contest.

"We are now one and one," said McKechnie after his Pirates had triumphed. "I rather expected it, and the super-pitching of Aldridge could not be denied.

"If we start to hit, and the boys showed a better grip on the bats today, I expect my men to romp away with the series. They got to Covelskie today, especially Glenn Wright whom I expect to become to become one of the greatest players baseball has known. Cuyler, a heavy hitter always, delivered today after several failures and we have reason to be smiling."

NOT DIFFICULT TO GET PLAYERS

Scarcity of Hockey Stars is a Thing of the Past.

AMATEURS TURN

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The bottom has fallen out of the hockey player market, according to Tommy Gorman, manager of the New York Hockey Club. Recent raids by the professional clubs on the ranks of the amateurs have been so successful, he says, that competition for places on the various teams in the East and West will be very keen.

"We have eighteen players on the roster of the New York Club" said Mr. Gorman today. "And six or seven of these will be disposed of before the season gets under way. We secured eleven from the Hamilton Tigers, three from Edmonton and four from other clubs in the National Hockey League. We have two men for every position and we intend to carry only ten or eleven. The same situation obtains at Montreal. The Montreal Hockey Club has no fewer than seventeen players under contract. Signed four first class amateurs in Stewart, Kitchen, Seibert and Horne, and have all of last year's material. Besides the St. Patrick Hockey Club has landed four brilliant amateurs, all of whom were sensations in O.H.A. company. Charlie Querrie's team will be the one to beat for the National League championship. Leo Dandurand has signed three or four very promising prospects at Montreal, and Lionel Connacher has sixteen amateurs at Pittsburgh, all ready for the coming season. Art Ross has captured two or three marvellous youngsters from the western states and Boston will also be strong. Percy Thompson will have no difficulty in getting a first class team for Hamilton if he decides to remain in the National Hockey League."

ORIOLES SINGING

Drew Up Level With Colonels in Championship Series at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Baltimore Orioles came back yesterday behind the stellar pitching of big George Earnshaw and drew up on even terms with the Louisville Colonels by winning, 5 to 3, the sixth game of the annual series for the championship of the Class AA circuits.

The teams are now deadlocked with three victories apiece.

While Earnshaw held the American Association champions to five scattered hits, the Internationals fielded brilliantly behind him and hit Ed Holley, Louisville box star, hard and often. Score:

Louisville ..... 100100100—3 5 2
Baltimore ..... 10101020x—5 9 1

Holley, Dawson and Meyer; Earnshaw and Cobb.

WON SECOND GAME

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—The Detroit Tigers took the second straight exhibition game from the New York Yankees by a score of 7 to 6, here yesterday. The final contest of the series will be played today.

HOMERS OF WRIGHT AND CUYLER CARRY PIRATE FLAG TO VICTORY

Spectacular Finish to a Thrilling Contest—Aldridge Rose to Greatest Heights When Danger Was Nearest—Bluege's Withdrawal Fatal to the Senators.

PITTSBURGH DEFENCE SHONE

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Undaunted by their first setback, the Pirates rallied forth yesterday, armed to the tooth, and came home with the booty of the second world's series battle after a rousing hand to hand grapple that was packed with thrills right down to the final thrust.

On the hazy battleground of Forbes Field, flanked by a wildly cheering throng of 43,000 non-combatants, the bold Buccaneers turned the tables on their Senator conquerors of the day before, broke up the sharpshooting of one of Washington's biggest guns, Stanley Coveleskie, and took the second game of the championship in a dime novel finish with a home run by Kiki Cuyler and the stout-hearted pitching of Vic Aldridge turning the tide victoriously.

The final verdict was gained only by the hair-line margin of 3 to 2, with the outcome in doubt until the last putout, but it was enough to put the Pirates on even terms with the world's champion Senators as the rival forces set sail last night for the capital, prepared to renew the engagement inthe third tussle at Griffith Stadium today.

Two Disasters

There was a double portion of disaster for the Senators as they withdrew toward their home port, for besides losing the game and their brilliantly won advantage of Wednesday, their ranks suffered a hard blow in the loss, at least temporarily of Ossie Bluege, star third baseman.

The loss of Bluege, whose play has been a feature of the series thus far came at a critical moment for the Senators who were battling to break the 1-1 deadlock brought about when Glenn Wright Pirate shortstop walloped a home run into the right field stands in the fourth inning that offset the advantage gained by the Senators on Joe Judge's round- trip smash into the right field grandstand extension.

Even with Bluege in the lineup, however, it is doubtful whether the Senators could have survived the final Pirate drive, in which Cuyler's homer broke the deadlock and scored Eddie Moore ahead of him with the deciding allies, while Aldridge, making the last of a series of gallant stands, kept the Senators from boarding the Pirate craft in a desperate ninth inning rally that fell only one run short of tying the count.

Through the earlier stages of the game, Aldridge was outpitched and hit harder than his veteran rival, Coveleskie, but his courage and control lifted him close to invincibility when danger lurked nearest. Besides, his great stands in the fifth and ninth, Aldridge choked off Senator threats in two other innings when the fleet-footed Sam Rice was in a position to score from second or third if the needed hit could only come through.

Coveleskie himself twirled capably pulling himself out of bad holes in two innings, the third and sixth, but his downfall was accomplished by two master strokes—the home runs of Wright and Cuyler—although the big Polish star's moist ball silenced the main Pirate guns for the most part.

Fortune Favored Pirates.

There was no doubt, too, that two separate but distinct breaks helped Pittsburgh's eighth inning spurt. The first was an error by the usually reliable veteran Peckinpaugh, who couldn't handle the moist ball driven at him by Eddie Moore before the runner got to first. The second "break" came a moment later when Cuyler's hard drive to right, scoring Moore ahead of him, took a sharp hop that ended in the front part of the temporary stands. It was a fluke homer, a hit that would have given no more than two bases on the regular playing field, but it was sufficient to clinch the battle.

Regardless of these turns of fortune, however, the Pirates probably would have tallied twice in this inning. Moore, on second at the time, would have scored even if Cuyler's blow hadn't jumped out of the field. Barnhart followed with another hit and Peck contributed a second error on Traynor's bounder but these blows were wasted as Coveleskie steadied and checked the onslaught.

Predictions Wrong.

Thus the much vaunted Pittsburgh attack broke through the enemy's bulwarks decisively for the first time in the series while on the defense, the young National League champions again outshone their more seasoned rivals to the confusion of pre-series predictions, with Grantham and Barnhart scintillating particularly in fielding performances.

The victory was scored, too, in a dramatic setting—made so by roaring spirit of the capacity crowd, the presence of old-time heroes of Pittsburgh's last world's series victory sixteen years ago, and by the tributes paid to the memory of one of the greatest championship heroes of all—Christy Mathewson.

INTERSCHOLASTIC GAMES ARRANGED

Peterboro Collegiate Institute Squad Open Season Next Week Against U.T.S.

Representatives from P.C.I., University of Toronto Schools, and Oshawa High School met in Oshawa yesterday afternoon to draw up the schedule of games in this group of the Interscholastic O.R.F.U. University schools sent down Joe Cook, captain and quarterback, Ed. Sinclair, fullback, and Mr. Carlyle of the staff. P.C.I. was represented by Lawrence Killaly, middle wing and President of the B.A.A. Oshawa had a small contingent, notable among them being "Mollie" Clarke, captain of the team, and Johnnie Haire, secretary.

The following schedule was drawn up:

Friday, October 16.—University Schools at P.C.I.
Wednesday, October 21.—University Schools at Oshawa High School.
Saturday, October 24 — P.C.I. at Oshawa High School.
Saturday, October 31—Oshawa High School at University Schools.
Saturday, November 7—P.C.I. at University of Toronto Schools.
Saturday, November 14 — Oshawa High School at P.C.I.

There was a lively discussion on suitable officials for the games. The officials approved by the three schools were Reg. De Gurchy, Alex. Sinclair, and "Toots" Lalonde. Sweeny Davis, well known in local rugby circles, and whose name was sponsored by P.C.I. was not approved by Oshawa or U.T.S.

As will be noticed by the schedule P.C.I. open the season with University of Toronto Schools here a week from today. This will certainly prove to be one of the smartest tussles of the whole rugby season, as U.T.S. have always carried a reputation for clean hard play around Toronto, and have generally deserved that reputation.

Most of the P.C.I. students have been giving their attention to the big athletic field day meet that takes place at Exhibition Park this afternoon, but next week will see the Garnet and Grey squad out every afternoon in final grooming for the big U.T.S. game.

CHAMPIONS MEET NIAGARA FALLS

Coppercliffe and Power City Meet to Decide Ontario Baseball Championship.

STUDENT SOUTHPAW

SUDBURY, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—At ten o'clock last night, Coppercliff Baseball team entrained for Niagara Falls where on Saturday they will meet the Power City nine in a sudden death game for the Ontario Baseball championship.

Idle since last August when they finished their season in the Nickel Belt League, which they won with little difficulty, the Cliffites are eager to go. Manager Bert Flynn, one of the leading amateur players in the province and at one time a member of the Toronto Leafs, is confident that his team will make a worthy bid for the title. The Smelter Town nine are pinning their hopes almost entirely upon Art Cloutier, a young southpaw, last year a student at Toronto University. Cloutier is in good condition and this has been his best season in ball. He has a crossfire that rivals that of Joe Spring, the famous Osler twirler.

The only fly in the ointment is that Leo. McLaughlin, the regular second baseman will not be able to participate. On Monday, Leo was called to Detroit on account of the serious illness of his brother.

DREW FIRST BLOOD

National League Put One Over White Sox in the Chicago Series.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press)—The National League drew first blood in the annual Chicago city series yesterday when they defeated the White Sox, 2 to 1, in the first complete game of the series. On Wednesday the two teams played nineteen innings to a 2 to 2 deadlock, which was halted on account of darkness.

Wilbur Cooper the Cubs' star left-hander held the White Sox to five hits while the National Leaguers hit Ted Lyons and Dickie Kerr for eight safe blows. Score:

Sox ..... 001000000—1 5 1
Cubs ..... 10000100x—2 8 0

Lyons, Kerr and Schalk; Cooper and Gonzales.

MATCH WITH BARRIE

Local Junior O.R.F.U. Team is Without Grouping—Lack of Rivals.

The local Junior O.R.F.U. is without grouping as there are no teams east of Toronto with which Peterboro could be grouped. However, it is likely that the locals will play Barrie in the first round of the O.R.F.U. as Barrie is in the same boat with the locals, as far as grouping—all alone. Home and home games will be played beginning a week from Saturday.

Max Sloane has had the boys out regularly for practice, and the plays and signals are being rounded out nicely.

TO VISIT CANADA

Football Association Likely to Send All-Star Soccer Team Here.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 9.—(By Canadian Press Cable).—The Evening Standard in yesterday's issue states that the football authorities have been so pleased with the results of the recent Ausralian tour of an all-star soccer team that there is a great likelihood of there being a representative English team being sent to Canada at the end of the present season.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Stiffening the left knee at the moment of impact stops the natural tendency of the body to move forward too fast, or ahead of the clubhead. The ball often will skid to the left when this happens. The stiffened left leg lets the arms sweep through after the ball, which means, of course, that the clubhead sweeps through, whereas if the left leg is loose or not positively in resistance to the sideshift of the body, the clubhead will be shoved through with a body-pushing movement. That loses effectiveness on the ball. In the back swing turn away from the ball, then keep turned away from it as long as you can stay that way while the club is swung forward. When you can no longer keep turned away—when the body must come forward—let the left leg stiffen immediately to arrest it, for by that time the clubhead will be just about at the ball.

NEW TRICK PLAYS TRIED BY QUEENS

PLAYERS FIT

KINGSTON, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—From present indications the game between Queen's and Varsity at the Richardson Stadium will be played on a sticky and wet field. Rain has fallen all week, and this afternoon there was a steady light rain which continued all the afternoon. The field just now is in a muddy condition, though, is certainly better than might be expected.

Yesterday afternoon the players were given their toughest work-out of the week. The team was divided into two squads, coach Hughes in charge of one, and "Baldy" Baldwin handling the other side. Several new trick plays were worked. The players hopping to it with a vengeance. The only player missing was" Chick" Mundell, who sprained his ankle in yesterday's practice, and may not be able to play on Saturday. All the other players are in the pink of condition.

The seat sale is bigger than expected, and indications are that 8,000 or more fans will be on hand. The grandstand has been completely sold out, while the bleachers are going rapidly. This afternoon there was a lineup for tickets and by tomorrow night every seat in the stadium will likely be sold.

VETERAN TWINS INJURED ALIKE

CASE UNIQUE

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Ernest and Harry Gridley are two brothers, and both were wounded on the western front during the war. Strangely, their wounds made them more alike, for both are minus their left leg, and both were operated on nineteen times for war injuries.

As far as records show, they are the only twins who suffered wounds during the war of 1914-18, almost identically alike.

The brothers were wounded precisely at the same time on the morning of October 30. The only difference is that Ernest was put out of action in 1916 at Regina Trench, while Harry was wounded exactly a year later at Cambrai.

Ernest lives in Winnipeg, while Harry has established his home in Toronto. They were united at the Dominion convention of the Amputations' Associations held here recently. Both were among the first members of the organization.

ESKIMO SLAYER BACK TO IGLOO

Released From Penitentiary as Climate Impaired Health.

HOMELAND REJOICES

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press).—Noo-Ked-Lah, primitive slayer of the northland, has been returned to his igloo.

He was recently released from Stony Mountain Penitentiary because his health was impaired by the climate here, and because it was considered he had erred through savage instinct rather than criminal intent. That there was great rejoicing in his homeland upon his return, is the word received by officials of the penitentiary.

Noo-Ked-Lah was sentenced to 10 years in prison for killing a Newfoundland trapper at St. Pond's Inlet, Labrador, in 1920. He was freed last July and taken to Quebec. He sailed with Capt. Barnier on the Arctic.

TIGERS AND ARGOS IN ACTION

A scene during the game between Argonauts, of Toronto, and Tigers, of Hamilton, when the former were defeated. An Argo line lunger dropped the ball at Argos' 40-yard line in the first five minutes of play and Tigers dribbled it over the Argo goal line and forced a rouge. The photo shows how Tigers were upon the play and ready to take advantage if the Argo man with the ball dropped it when tackled.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY LAKEFIELD SCHOOLS

All Events Were Keenly Contested—Some Good Showings.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 9.—The annual Field Day of the High and Public Schools was held on Wednesday afternoon on the school playground, under the direction of the Principal of the High School, Mr. J. M. Simpson, assisted by Misses Duff, Curtis, Connell, Kennedy, Simpson, Payne, Northcott and Kidd.

A number of parents and friends of the school were present, also Mrs. W. M. Graham, Messrs. J. W. Ridpath and C. S. Tanner representing the school board.

In the main, the weather was ideal, but for the later contests was chilly, which rather depleted the crowd. There was plenty of interest shown in the races and each was contested hotly.

Clare Irwin, who broke his arm two weeks ago, made a remarkable showing in spite of this serious handicap.

Kenneth Kemp, son of Rev. S. A. Kemp, is a newcomer in the school and made an excellent record.

The work of Donald Kidd, Gordon Porter, Norman Lemay, Frank Madill, Gerald Sherin and Solan Nixon in the Senior sports was good, and with Clare Irwin and Kennth Kemp, the Lakefield School could turn out a team which would well represent the village in the Inter-Collegiate sport.

The result of the races was as follows:

GAME POSTPONED.

Rain Causes Abandonment of To-day's Game at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). — To-day's scheduled world series game between Washington and Pittsburgh was postponed on account of rain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 — The postponement was welcomed by the players of both clubs but was hailed as a distinct boon bythe Washington Senators who hope that by tomorrow their star third baseman, Ossie Bluege, will have fully recovered from the effects of being hit by a pitched ball yesterday. Physicans are doubtful of this but he is counted upon to return to the line up on Sunday.

Washington's veteran pitchers Walter Johnson and Stanley Coveleskie, will also benefit and will be prepared to go back into the fray sooner than called for under the original plans. The delay also will benefit Pittsburgh's sharp shooters Lee Meadows and Vic Aldridge, but the Pirates are expecting big things of Yde and Kremer while Bucky Harris is placing his main dependence on "Covey and "Ask Barney" Johnson.

The pre-war custom of decorating married couples who celebrate golden wedding anniversaries is to be revived by the Prussian Government. A specially coined medal will be presented in each case.

They will be joined here by C. G. Graham and other friends, and Mr. Hooper himself is expected home during the week-end from Pittsburgh where he has been watching the Senators and Pirates in their opening encounters. Friends of his insisted that Mr. Hooper go down as their guest at the world's series.

RUSSIA ACTIVE AS ALLIES TALK

Security Pact Will Be New Alignment For War in Russia View.

SEEKS ALLIANCES.

BERLIN, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press.)—A Moscow despatch shows that Russia is not idle while a new balance of power is being sought at Locarno. Beleiving the security pact will resolve itself simply into new alignments for war, rather than a compact for peace, Russia has launched a diplomatic manoeuvre to split the little Entente of the Balkans and gain new allies for herself. These new allies are Jugo-Slavia, Greece and Poland. Ustinoff, Soviet minister to Greece, spent a fortnight in Moscow working out a new Balkan policy. He has returned to Athens with definite instructions to explode the little Entente.

LABOR OCCUPIES MELVILLE TALK OF PREMIER KING

He Tells of Government's Success in Restoring Pension Rights of Strikers.

LABOR ON C.N.R. BOARD

Says Expenditure on H. B Line Worth While to Show East Not Indifferent.

MELVILLE, Sask., Oct. 9—(Canadian Press)—Closing his campaign in Saskatchewan, Premier King last night spoke in the Canadian National Railway centre of Melville, the constituency in which Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, is the Liberal candidate.

Questions of labor occupied a considerable portion of his speech. He emphasize that the present Government had succeeded in getting the restoration of pension rights lost by the Grand Trunk strikers of over a decade ago. When the previous Government had failed, his Government, he said, had given representation to Labor on the Canadian National Railway Board and given a fair trial to Government ownership and fair play to the C.P.R.

He thought the Canadian National Board might well be enlarged with representation given to the railway workers on the Hudson Bay Railway, and he declared that the expenditure necessary for the completion would be worth while if only to let the West realize that the East was not indifferent to Western needs.

URGE GERMANY TO JOIN LEAGUE

Chamberlain and Briand Advance Arguments Showing Desirability.

NO AGREEMENT.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 9. — (Canadian Press.) — Germany yesterday heard arguments why she should enter the League of Nations without making reservations or insisting in advance on position of privilege. Austen Chamberlain, British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, in what was styled a masterly discourse, and M. Briand, French Foreign Minister in two brilliant speeches before the Security Conference urged upon Dr. Luther, German Chancellor, and Gustav Stresemann, Foreign Minister, the desirability of Germany, in the interests of Germany and world peace, adding her power to the strength of the league so that the Geneva organization may develop into a really effective body for world tranquility. Yesterday's discussion, which occupied three hours, was animated without being dissagreebale or venomous. The conference adjourned until yesterday when two meetings will be held. No agreement was reached.

Mr. Stresemann said last night; "I am optimistically pessimistic."

Another German delegate declared "We have now arrived at the brink of the precipice and can gauge its depth.

THEATRES

CAREY FILM STANDS ALONE
"The Bad Lands" Finest of Famous Actor's Screen Career.

In all former Harry Carey productions it has been comparatively easy to pick out just why this finished western actor has maintained his leading place in the field.

In "the Bad Lands," the Hunt Stromberg supervised production, which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre for a three day run, this actor has taken all the tricks of his trade, all his typical traits of screen personality and all his acquired knowledge of character presentation, and played upon them to the 'nth degree, making a production never surpassed for real entertainment.

In "The Bad Lands" Carey assumes the role of Sergeant O'Toole, assigned to Fort Sumner, along the Western frontier, to clear up a band of smugglers supplying the Indians with guns and liquor.

Before arriving at his destination he makes a friend an enemy, and falls in love. On arrival all these three combine to make his life there a series of ups and downs. In spite of this chaotic existence he comes through, and proves himself worthy of his title "Famous," and also worthy of the girl's love.

A happy tale and humorous too, in spite of the undercurrent of tragedy that lurks bchind every tree and bush; in spite of a stray shot in the dark that cripples O'Too temporarily; and in spite of the many enemies on all sides of him. He plays a lone hand, aided only by Freckles, a youth of 10 years, who also proves himself when called upon. Trilby Clark plays opposite Carey in this Producers Distributing Corporation release, which was direct d by Dell Henderson. Others in the cast are Wilfred Lucas, Gaston Glas Buckmund Breese, Mildred Ryan, J. Barney Sherry and Bradley Barker plenty of opportunity for good acting.

As a "go-getter" in "The Live Wire," Johnny Hines goes through the six reels in a veritable burst of action that gives a tang of invigoration to the picture that is very refreshing. It possesses the elements of racy speed, thrills of a high order and a spontaneous comedy vein.

Hal Roach's Rascals provide extra laughs for the programme in their hilarious comedy, "Circus Fever," with the pickaninnies presented in a speckled condition, suffering from fever.

The music for "The Live Wire" is exceptionally good. As played by the Capitol Orchestra, it adds immensely to the attraction of the programme.—Jeannette.

AL PLUNKETT in "Lucky 7," at the Grand Friday and Saturday, October 16 and 17.

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS HAVE GREAT SCENIC EFFECTS IN "LUCKY 7".

Canada's premiere entertainers, "The Dumbells", will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House for two nights and matinee, October 16 and 17th when they will offer their latest and greatest musical revue, "Lucky 7".

That his seventh annual revue since the way may be unanimously acclaimed the greatest of them all. Captain Plunkett has almost doubled the production and operating expense of the company this season and has spent the summer searching Europe for new and novel material for the present production.

Stagecraft has advanced by leaps and bounds in Europe since the war. Many great artists and craftsmen have turned to it as the quickest way of re-establishing themselves. The theatre has come into its own. The artistic element has superceded the desire for realistic effects and settings. This is amply evidenced in "Lucky 7". As a scene after scene is set, used and struck with lightning-like rapidity one wonders how a space so compact as the average stage can accomodate so much paraphernalia. That is the trick which has been so perfected on the continent in the last few years. Utilizing top, bottom and every side of every set piece and hanging drop for a dozen different setting solves this difficulty to a marked degree.

Of the songs and sketches that provide the action for "Lucky 7", so much has been written and published lately that Dumbells' patrons are fully conversant with this angle of the show and everyone is keyed up in the expectation of hearing Al. Plunkett sing "Whiter Than Snow" and "As Long As She Loves Me", Ross Hamilton trill "Darling, I Love You", "Red" Newman thrill with his latest topical songs, Stan. Bennett drawl "Reckless Reggie" and "Stop, Look and Listen", and Pat. Rafferty sing his knock-out number, "I'm Not All There". Captain Plunkett's orchestra and his own song, "Yawning" are eargerly awaited, as are the three sketches, two of the comedy variety and one in a more serious vein.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE DANGER SIGNAL."
A Drama of Love Amid Great Railroad Thrills.

Gaston Glass, the dashing young French picture favorite, is in the cast of "The Danger Signal," the new Columbia release which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next Monday. Jane Novak heads a fine cast which includes Robert Edeson, Dorothy Revier and Robert Gordon. This first feature for 1925-26, a romance of the thundering rails and the men and women whose lives they sway, promises a series of thrills and struggles between the rival forces of a great railroad.

JOHNNY HINES IN "THE LIVE WIRE."

The audiences at the Capitol Theatre yesterday got plenty of laughs out of "The Live Wire," with Johnny Hines as "The Great Maranelli," the circus clown who suffers an injury to his neck and descends to the company of a band of hoboes, becomes a bouncer in a tough cafe, and later, through the intervention of a charming young lady, arrives on the staff of the Meadville Electric Light and Power Company, as a lamp and power salesman who doubles the sales of the company. The several roles thus enacted by the sparkling comedian give him plenty of scope for his versatile powers and there is something doing every minute in his presentation of the "live wire."

The picture starts out with a punch when the likeable star is seen as the star performer of a circus, and successfully keeps up the high tension and the laughs when he becomes a knight of the road and ultimately, in his business career, is the means of frustrating the villainous attempts of the "heavy" and winning the girl of his dreams. The audience is kept on edge throughout the entire six reels, for the plot is rich in melodramatic as well as humorous incidents, and gives the supporting cast, which includes Ed-

AT THE ROYAL

"LILIES OF THE STREETS."
Powerful Drama With Moral.

Never was the power of the screen more fully demonstrated than last night when, before a large and enthusiastic audience, Manager McGeachie, of the Royal Theatre, presented the Metropolitan policewoman's picture, "Lilies of the Streets."

As, in the course of the gripping story, there was revealed the dangers and perils, the pitfalls of crime that surround innocent and ignorant girls in our modern life, the sympathies of those present were aroused to a degree that proved the deep impression made upon them by the realistic presentation.

Made under the supervision of Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, Chief of New York's force of policewomen, the story is based on actual cases, situations and incidents, which she personally has handled in her official capacity.

Virginia Lee Corbin, as the innocent victim of criminal wiles became the pivot of action of a plot that grew in dramatic intensity to the stirring climax. Her youth, grace and beauty made her an instant favorite, while her portrayal of the wilful flapper, impatient of restraint proved her to be a player of uncommon ability.

Johnnie Walker, as the devoted young attorney, again proved the loyalty of his large following: his first appearance calling forth delighted expressions of approval.

Irma Harrison and Peggy Kelly gave excellent performances, one as the victim and the other as an accomplice of the "gentleman" crook, whose suave and ingratiating manners were skilfully enacted by Wheeler Oakman, a veteran "villian" who is always effective.

No mention of the cast would be complete without that Mrs. Hamilton herself, who appears as herself in some of the strongest situations it has ever been our privilege to witness. An actual "community mother," as she herself describes the role of the policewoman she presents on the screen the very work she is doing from day to day, and as she has done since becoming New York City's first policewoman in 1917.

The balance of the cast was, seemingly, chosen both for ability and faithfulness to type. The actuality of the scenes from both high life and the haunts of the criminal seemed directly traceable to the fact that, as stated, the dramatic story has been built up from carefully selected cases on record in New York's police department.

The atmosphere of the entire drama was a delight. Photographed in New York City, where every possible assistance was given by the Metropolitan police, there is a reality, a sophisticated, great city air about every scene, that can never be equalled by any built up street or studio scenes, regardless of the money spent on them. That this rounds out in the most effective and satisfactory manner a most enjoyably directed screen play goes without saying.

BIG MOTION PICTURE OPENS AT ROYAL THEATRE

Next Monday will see the debut of the G.B.S. film production, "The Unwanted," which is now riding on a whirlpool of popularity throughout the country.

"The Unwanted" presents something unique in motion picture art. Despite vast sums expended in staging the spectacle and the innovation of salvaging for the first time motion picture records of sanguinary engagements on the battle field of the late war, the story is the thing.

The romance starts at Venice on the Adriatic. The famous submerged metropolis is en fete, aglow with lanterns of romance and moonbeams of intrigue, and the spirit of carnival time. Lady Carrington is a woman of mercurial temperament. She believes quite firmly in donning a new fabric of morals with every change of evening gown, "When in Rome, do as the Venetians do."

The husband, as is usual with husbands, does not take kindly to Lady Harington's sprightly quadrilles.

A man with stern conceptions, a thoroughgoing idealist, he is rudely buffeted again and again by his wife's vagaries. Finally he flees for refuge to the mountain of fastnesses of Switzerland.

Here, of course, Fate plays one of her tender ironic pranks. And so, he that would walk amongst the clouds finds that it is perhaps more reverberating, more comforting, even if a little duty, to tramp along the highroads. Lord Harrington falls in love with a young Canadian girl.

But the blare of trumpets is not missing. The imperialistic avarice of nations comes into play. War is fought. Blood is shed. Lives are ruined, made, confounded and amazed.

The Great War as depicted in "The Unwanted" is alone enough to distinguish this great riotion picture from its fellows. Films taken by a German camera-man from behind Teuton dugouts and from shell-holes in the sear vistas of No Man's Land are now brought to light for the first time. We see hand-to-hand fighting between the Boche and the Allies. Cold steel. Fear. Reckless bravery. Shelbursts. Confusion. Chaos. Victory. Defeat. Oblivion. The public of Peterboro will be flooded anew with realization of the sheer folly and the mighty awfulness of war.

The development of the story at this point is woven with suspense and surprise that is ever such an important attribute to a good story.

Next week the people of Peterboro will see the march of a great event in filmdom.

57th Regimental Chapter Holds Tea and Sale in Armouries.

The 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E. held a very pretty tea and sale of home-made cooking and fancy work in the officers' quarters at the Armories yesterday afternoon, with an attendance which was fairly large, considering the inclement weather. The rooms were arranged with a quantity of lovely flowers provided by one of the members of the Chapter, Mrs. R. T. Hounsell, and the tea table was attractively centred with a silver basket of bronze helenium, with yellow candles in silver holders. Mrs. C. S. Stapleton acted as general convenor. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. H. Bradburn and Mrs. A. Stevenson. Tea room assistants were Mrs. R. Cottrell, Mrs. E. Clark, Mrs. A. A. Fowler, Mrs. H. Dodds and Miss Sara Robinson. The sale of home-made cooking was in charge of Mrs. T. W. H. Young and Mrs. B. H. Poole, and the sale of work was supervised by Mrs. B. B Gillespie and Miss Laura Belleghem. Mrs. W. Sharpe officiated at the door.

TRY PEPALL AT GENERAL SESSIONS

Judge Coatsworth Says That Court is Competent.

TORONTO, Oct. 9 (Canadian Press)—Trial of Andrew H. Pepall, on charges in connection with Ontario bond transactions scandal, might properly proceed in court of General Sessions now being conducted by Judge Coatsworth. An application to have Mr. Pepall's trial expedited which was heard yesterday and adjourned until today, was granted by Mr. Mowat today. Judge Coatsworth confined his remarks to expression of opinion rather than court order. He said he had no doubt that the Court of General Sessions had all the facilities and qualifications for trying the Pepall case "and so far as it is in my power I will direct the Crown to have the bill of indictment brought before this court."

Pepall's case was to have come before General Assizes commencing next week.

SUBURBAN RESIDENTS UNITING IN PROPOSED APPEAL TO THE HYDRO AGAINST HIGHER POWER CHARGES

Smith, Otonabee and Douro Represented at Monaghan Meeting in May's School.

OVERFLOW CROWD.

Committee Appointed to Interview Hydro-Electric Commission—Rates Nearly Double.

Suburban householders at May's School last night appointed Warden H. B. Rye, John Barnes and Frank Pratt a committee to interview the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario to secure the best possible relief from the increased charges for electric power for domestic purposes, which, becoming effective on November 1st, will almost double the present rates.

Representatives of Smith, Otonabee and Douro townships, promised to co-operate with North Monaghan in the proposed appeal to the Hydro-Electric Commission, which will be presented as soon as possible. The domestic consumers present last night pledged themselves not to sign any new contract for power until a report has been received from the joint committee.

A Record Crowd.

The largest room in May's school was too small for the indignant householders, the great majority of them being constituents of Warden Rye. They filled the small seats of a primary class stood two or three deep around the walls, clustered about the Warden's chair at the front, and overflowed throughout the hall. It was the biggest meeting in the history of that part of the township, and Mr. Rye remarked that at least one question had arisen in the community's affairs that could bring out a great number of the ratepayers. He expressed the wish that they would take a similar interest in other problems of the township.

If the residents of North Monaghan just across the city's south and west borders imagined that they were alone aroused to protest against the new power rates, they were distinctly surprised by the presence of Reeve Middleton of Smith township with a quasi-official delegation of ratepayers, another group from Otonabee, and one lone Douro representative, Mr. H.

MINISTER EXPLAINS EFFORTS MADE

Cattle Will Now Be Transported in Boats Built For Purpose.

MELVILLE, Sask., Oct. 10 (Canadian Press)—In an interview with Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, here today with regard to the comment of Major Curry, general manager of the White Star Dominion Line at Montreal, respecting cattle space on boats to the markets of Britain, it is pointed out that the question is one involving space only.

"We simply used our good offices with the proper authorities," said Mr. Motherwell, "to ensure proper space on cattle boats to take care of our cattle going to the British market. Arrangements have been made for the handling of cattle on four deck boats devoted exclusively to cattle. Prior to making this arrangement cattle were transported on boats not used exclusively for cattle shipment. Because of this these companies could not afford to use their boats in this way as they were not equipped for the purpose."

STIRLING, Oct. 10.—There is not much excitement here as yet over the coming election, although the village is on the border and a part of two electoral districts. Detonator Hidden In Coal Caused Fatal Explosion

LONDON, Oct. 10 (Canadian Press)—A message from the steamer Roman Star from Capetown for London, says an explosion which occurred on board while the vessel was off the French coast last night and which caused the death of one fireman and the injury of three others, is believed to have been caused by a detonator concealed in the coal.

The Roman Star had great difficulty in clearing from South Africa owing to the shipping strike. She has a cargo of oranges.

PREMIER ENDS WESTERN TOUR

Speech on Canadian Unity Was Made in Winnipeg.

NAMES MINISTERS.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 10 —(Canadian Press). — "Above all questions which confront the Canadian people declared Premier King here last night, in his last address in the West, "That of Canadian unity is by all odds the most important—how best we can act as Canadians first, Canadians last, and Canadians all the time"

Canadian unity depends, he declared, on:

1—Representation in the Parliament of Canada, which included representation in the Government.

2—Importance of policies that might be enacted.

Mr. King declared that Mr. Meighend, judging from his own declarations had some scheme of amalgamation between the C. P. R. and the Canadian National at the back of his mind.

Norris in Cabinet.

The Premier announced last night that if elected Hon. T. C. Norris, former Premier of Manitoba would be taken into his cabinet. He further intimated that four portfolios would go to Western Canada

Others mentioned for cabinet posts were: Hon. C. A. Dunning and Hon. Mr. Motherwell; Saskatchewan and Hon. Chas. Stewart, Alberta, (two last are already in cabinet).

He announced a "vigorous" immigration policy directed by a minister giving his whole time to work. But the immigration would not be indiscriminate. It would have regard for quality as well as for quantity.

There were rapid fire interruptions and comments, followed by equally swift retorts. Mr. King had hardly begun when one interruptor wanted to know his war record. The Prime Minister warmly retorted that he would be proud to compare his record with that of the reckler. He told of his family obligations when the war broke out, and of his age and spoke of his work in settling labour disputes in concerns shipping war materials to the Allies.

FLOCK OF PIGEONS KILLED BY PLANE

Birds Flew Into Propeller of Machine—Departure From Custom.

Usually birds avoid airplanes, and the pilot was surprised to see the pigeons fly straight towards the machine and apparently pass through the rapidly revolving propeller.

Roaming Roman Cats May Be Given Painless Death

ROME, Oct. 10.—(Associated Press).—For many generations Romans have disposed of their cats by dropping them—some twenty feet below the level of the street—into one of the dry moats of the Pantheon or the pit containing the remains of the Trajan Forum. There the felines, unable to scale the walls, have lived and multiplied, depending for their food upon the generosity of passers-by and restorting during lean days to the cannibalism of their tiger cousins.

Not much longer, however, will the visitor see hundreds of these gaunt animals wandering about their prisons. Serious efforts are being made to get the Government to remove the cats and to put them quickly out of their misery. It is also planned to ask the authorities to impose penalties upon persons who repopulate the cat prisons.

A memorial to Mustapha Kemal Pasha, now being erected in Constantinople, will be the first public statue in Turkey.

GERMANY WANTS TO JOIN LEAGUE BUT IS ANXIOUS TO EVADE DUTIES

Is Unwilling to Join With the League in Taking Action Against Aggressor Nations — Desires Reservation Tacked on to Article 15.

PRIVATE CONVERSATIONS BETWEEN LEADERS.

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 10. —(Canadian Press).—A gentleman's agreement for Germany designed to lessen her responsibilities as a member of the League of Nations was the particular problem wrestled with yesterday by the Locarno Security Conference.

It is not an easy matter. France doesn't like it, Great Britain would prefer to have nothing to do with it, but Germany pushed the idea of such an agreement vigorously.

The plan is that the Allied Powers, all of which are members of the League Council, would jointly and individually undertake to bring into existence at Geneva some reservation to Article XVI. of the League covenant, whereby Germany would be free to abstain from punitive expeditions ordained by the League against aggressor nations.

To-day's plenary sessions will doubtless throw some light on this issue, which may be referred to as a crucial question of the conference, for if Germany can get into the League, it is generally presumed that France would be content with a special declaration proclaiming her Eastern alliances inviolable.

Secret conversations between the leaders, including Count Skrzynsky, the Polish Foreign Secretary, and Dr. Eduard Benes, Foreign Minister of Czecho-Slovakia, marked yesterday's feverish activities. Everybody was optimistic except the Germans, but they were described as "pessimistic for home consumption."

The feeling here is that Germany "wants somethings, evacuation of Cologne, diminution of French occupation of the left bank of the Rhine, and colonies."

It is pointed out that the German delegates hesitate about returning to Berlin shouldered with an engagement to join the League, but with empty pockets.

The Germans, however, attach such vast importance to the League issue, that they suggested yesterday that a special session of the League Council be convoked at Locarno to consider Germany's demands as regards her entry into the League.

Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Secretary, brought out some illuminating points regarding the views of his country at Thursday's session of the conference. He insisted that Germany was being asked to join the League unconditionally and to agree under Article XVI. to allow foreign armies to march through Germany if this was necessary to defend countries allied to France. He insisted that Germany wanted a solution which did justice to her present state of disarmament, as compared with other nations where disarmament had not yet been begun.

"It is not Germany's intention to complicate or retard the process of restoring the political balance, which is indispensable to world peace, by a question of universal disarmament, which is provided for in the Treaty of Versailles, though moral justification for such a step could hardly be denied," Dr. Stresemann declared. "Likewise, Germany does not wish to exclude herself from co-operating in the tasks of the League.

"But as long as Germany is disarmed and the other nations are in a state of fullest armament, we wish to be exempted from participation in any future armed conflicts which this highly strung state of general armaments may provoke. We wish to give the German people a safe guarantee of future peace."

The German spokesman said that the decision regarding future Franco - German relations rested mainly with France, and he warned that the choice was between military hegemony on the continent and financial and economic restoration.

Italy made it clear yesterday through Signor Scialoia that her position at Locarno was like that of Great Britain, that she expected to sign the Rhine pact as a guarantor but would undertake no responsibility covering Germany's treaties with Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. He said he wished to repudiate rumors that Italy was merely an observer at Locarno.

Count Skrzynsky contributed a note of harmony to the situation by asserting that Poland wanted to find a fair compromise based on existing treaties and within the scope of the League covenant. His remark, however, that Poland stood ready to arbitrate all disputes provided they did not affect existing treaties was construed as an admonition to Germany that the Warsaw Government would reject any move to re-open the question of restoration of the Polish Corridor.

Institutions Of Laziness Rather Than Of Learning Is Professor's Criticism Of Universities Of To-day

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press.) — Branding modern universities as "institutions of laziness, rather than of learning," and expressing a belief that the salvation of the nation lies in the hands of young men who "cannot go to college or university," Dr. J. Finley, former University of California professor, sailed for Mexico City yesterday to become Dean of English in the university there.

"The universities of to-day turn out 75 per cent. of their graduates unable to speak and write the English language correctly," Dr. Finley said. He added, "We do not want a race of molly coddles. The manicure shop is not the place where men are bred. I would rather trust the fate of the nation to the genuine roughneck than to a highbrow."

A MUNDSEN WILL SEEK NEW LAND NEAR THE POLE

Vast Unexplored Region Beyond Pole Contains Some Land.

GUIDED BY BIRDS,

Explorer Will Use Dirigible For His Flight Next Summer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Roald Amundsen arrived here yesterday with most of his preparations already made for another flight next May, this time in the dirigible Norge, recently purchased from the Italian Government.

In the next flight he plans to go into the vast unexplored region beyond the Pole. There, he believes, lies somewhere amidst the ice, Peary's Crocker Land.

"There came to us on the ice three birds, flying north-west," said Capt. Amundsen. "Instinct of those birds was leading them toward land, somewhere."

"In the dirigible we will be able to remain stationary and make accurate observations. I think, too, we will be able to descend without a landing crew, if we wish."

"The Pole does not interest us. We seek the region beyond the Pole, still unexplored. It may prove a new air route for commercial use."

MUSSOLINI SURE OF PERMANENCE IN GOVERNMENT

Italian Premier Emerged From Re-organization Colors Flying.

IMPORTANT CHANGES.

Sparsely Populated Townships Will Revert to Podesta Plan of Middle Ages.

ROME, October 10. United Press. Out of the fundamental re-organization of the Italian government just ordered by the Fascist Cabinet, Premier Benito Mussolini emerged as virtually the permanent ruler of Italy. Scarcely is a king so firmly settled upon his throne as is Mussolini upon the pinnacle of power to which he ascended following the spectacular march of the Fascisti on Rome in October, 1922.

The vital changes in fundamental government which are taking place are three in number.

The cabinet has decided that all townships of less than 5000 inhabitants shall be governed under the Podesta scheme of the middle ages. In place of an elective municipal government these townships numbering 7300 of the 900 townships in Italy, will be governed by an appointee of the central government.

The Podesta was largely adopted in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. Then it was a means of arbitrary government. The Fascisti explain that the resumption is designed merely to centralize government and to bring the administration of the townships directly under the Ministry of the Interior.

Six Weeks Along Coast Mariner Uses Sail Boat

BALBOA CANAL ZONE, Oct. 10.—(United News.) — Captain Francis Drake has arrived in a 35-foot sail boat which he navigated alone from Seattle by way of San Diego. The voyage thus far has required 42 days.

Drake plans to proceed southward and to pass through the Strait of Magellan.

CONSERVATIVE LEADER IN WEST

Mr. Meighen, at Calgary, Talks of Equalization of Freight Rates.

HELP EXTREMITIES.

CALGARY, October 10. — Canadian Press. — In his address here last night Right Hon. Arthur Meighen laid down his policies, particularly urging that the equalization of freight rates must be effected by the Board of Railway Commissioners; also that the problem must be treated as a national one. No one reduction should be made for one part of the country which has been already refused to another.

The Petersen ship subsidy contract came into Mr. Meighen's speech for the first time in weeks. It was a "grotesque farce" and had been laughed out of parliament," but it was the only panacea the government had been able to offer for Canada's transportation burdens.

The western extremity of Canada was in the same position as the extreme east. Both carried an undue share of the transportation burden, and were entitled to assistanec from the whole dominion. "We propose to give assistance as a Dominion measure to the transportation of coal from Alberta to the more eastern parts of Canada," said Mr. Arthur Meighen.

The Conservative party, he said, recognized that the west and the extreme east bore undue shares of the burden of transportation cost.

When the basis of rates was fixed by the proper tribunal, the requirements of equalization might necessitate contributions by the whole dominion to the reduction of unfair burdens borne by the west and the Maritime Provinces.

MOROCCAN WAR ROUSES RED IRE

GOVERNMENT READY.

PARIS, October 10. — Canadian Press. — Communist transport workers of Paris region were called out to-day in what is regarded as a curtain raiser for a general strike arranged by the Reds as a protest against the French policy in Morocco. Early this afternoon the movement had apparently made but little headway although two or three auto bus lines were operating with reduced staffs.

The French government is taking measures to insure order in view of the immense general strike which is being arranged by the Communists as a protest against the war in Morocco. At the conclusion of the meeting of the heads of all the police organizations yesterday under the presidency of the Minister of the Interior Scgrameck, it was officially announced that "any attemps to interfere with men desiring to continue at work against the strike orders will be energetically repressed."

Republican guards, the terror of all strikers, will patrol the streets.

The general strike is reported to have been fixed for next Wednesday. "Moscowteers," as the Communists are dubbed, are in the minority in the trades unions, and their apeal to the workers is not expected to meet with a very general response.

Three Communist members of the Chamber of Deputies, M. M. Auxfray, Bourlois and Baroux, were arrested last night, while distributing strike leaflets, but were at once released.

The Reds have announced six mass meetings in Paris to-night and twenty four in industrial suburbs to protest against the Moroccan war, the high cost of living and the hint of new taxes.

Federal election in Australia is fixed for November 14.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING WAS HELD IN GORDON'S COMMITTEE ROOMS INCORPORATING SOCIAL ELEMENT

Special Songs Lend Rousing Effect to Campaign Oratory.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

John Dewart Sketches Historical Features of Party Reigns.

The meeting for the Young Liberals in Gordon's Committee Rooms last night, was of a decidedly vivacious character, with Joseph Wearing cast for the heavy role. In his capacity as director of entertainment he led the singing, a number of special compositions being used for the occasion. These selections were rendered with feeling and power, which compensated for any possible deficiency in harmony.

Hon. G. N. Gordon was present, his remarks being confined to organization arrangements and the correction of impressions concerning himself, which had been created by members of the Opposition.

J. Dewart took upon his shoulders the burden of the oratory, presenting a brief but comprehensive review of the political situation from the time of the National Policy, as introduced by Sir John A. MacDonald. In addition he briefly summarized Canada's trade situation and commented upon financial conditions.

Wilfred Huycke, the last speaker, and as a consequence cramped for time, generalized broadly mixing witty anecdotes with personal references commending the Liberal candidate and defending his policy of Immigration as enunciated subsequent to his appointment.

R. Deyell, Chairman.

That young men should interest themselves in the political situation, carefully weigh the policy and performance of each party and commit themselves unreservedly to the support of that which was doing the greatest good, was the advice of Ronald Deyell, chairman, as conveyed in his opening remarks.

Canada has passed through a period of war, and as was natural there followed a depressed state of affairs,

Divers Are More Afraid Of Clams Than Of Sharks

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 10—Deep sea divers here are learning to fear the giant clams in the water, even more than they fear sharks.. The monstrous bivalves lie half open on the bottom of the sea, and should a diver step into them, the shells snap shut, holding the diver fast. Sharks are dangerous, but they do not always attack.

BANK OPENING IN MEXICO CITY MARKS NEW ERA

Revival of Currency After 15 Years of Uncertainty.

PAPER MONEY.

Metal Coinage Bulky and Inconvenient to Handle, Count and Store.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 10—(Canadian Press). —"A new era in the financial history of Mexico began on September 1, when the Bank of Mexico was formally opened by the President of the Republic," states Trade Commissioner C. Noel Wilde, Mexico City, in a communication received at the Department of Trade and Commerce.

"This event marks an important step in the rehabilitation of the currency system of the country after fifteen years of uncertainty. The principal result is the re-introduction of paper money which is already in circulation and which is being readily accepted at par by commercial houses. Paper currency has been reintroduced owing to the bulkiness of metal coinage and the inconvenience of handling, counting and storing it. The notes, backed by a fifty per cent gold reserve, are payable at par, in gold, on demand, and are legal tender in Mexico."

WEATHER

This Saturday morning provided much the sharpest frost of the present season. The temperature was down to 24 degrees. This is eight degrees of frost. One effect of this sharp frost will probably be to make the woods, and, in fact, the whole country side, a blaze of brilliant hues. The latter half of October last year was much the finer portion of the month, and perhaps the same conditions may prevail this year.—W. P.

COW MADE DRIVER FEEL VERY SMALL

'Dead Animal' Walked Away From Employee of Fertilizer Plant.

INGERSOLL, Ont., Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—There is a humorous cow in North Oxford. She was the leading star in a practical joke recently which is unique. The cow had been bloating badly. She lay down and apparently died in a field one afternoon. A fertilizer plant was called the next day by the farmer and asked to send out for the animal. A driver went out in the afternoon. He backed his wagon up to where the animal lay, let down the side and tail boards and prepared to attach a chain to one leg. He sought to turn the cow over to facilitate loading and as he turned, she jumped up and walked away. Moreover, she followed him through the field. He was mad, feeling a joke had been played. He soon learned, however, that it had all been serious.

The cow is again contributing to the milk pail daily in her usual way after her long lay in the field and her close call from a trip to the fertilizer plant.

"BRINGING UP FATHER" — Geo. McManus

G. A. BRETHEN ADDRESSED PEOPLE OF DUMMER ON THE ELECTION

A Large Audience Was on Hand to Hear Progressive Candidate.

TALKS ECONOMY.

Promises to Work For Reduction of Taxation if Elected.

WARSAW, Oct. 10.—G. A. Brethen, M.P., East Peterboro held a meeting in Warsaw on Wednesday evening. Considering the work the farmers have on hand, a good number attended. Quite a few ladies were present.

A little change was introduced. J. Stanley Weir sang "The Little Shirt My Mother Made For Me" and "The Friends of Yesterday". Wallace Anderson recited "Paddy's Leather Breeches."

E. N. MacDonald, ex-M.P.P., gave a short address in which he stated that Mr. Brethen had done well in the last four years and can stand on his own record.

He asked if the Conservative party is what it was in Sir John A. MacDonald's time. Sir John was an optimist if ever one lived. He put the C.P.R. into, what was then, an almost unknown country. Today's Conservative leader is the greatest pessimist in Canada, and he (Mr. MacDonald) would be inclined to call the party the "pessimistic party." The policy used to be to keep the country as it was. Now Mr. Meighen thinks everything bad, and it was bad just after the present government came into power so it must have been pretty bad before they did.

Mr. Brethen.

In Mr. Brethen's address he mentioned that four years ago East Peterboro elected him as its representative at Ottawa. It might have been better had all gone to Ottawa, but, for obvious reasons, that was impossible. The call comes to each constituency every four or five years, to choose some one to represent it, that is to do as the people wish, at Ottawa.

To do this he should know and perform these wishes at Ottawa, said Mr. Brethen, adding that he had tried to do so. The people had given assistance by co-operation, and lack of adverse criticism.

When Mr. Brethen went to Ottawa he said he expected to be everybody's football, but he has not felt so. He has had but few knocks, and no cause for complaint.

The people of this riding are in a peculiar position. The riding comprises part of East Peterboro, part of north, and part of West Hastings and that is not because the people at Ottawa wished to please the people of the ridings, but to make it easier to elect certain members for parliament. Very few wanted this change. Practically every one, said Mr. Brethen, wanted both Peterboros together. East Peterboro really has a small population, but this particular change was made to satisfy the Liberals in Peterboro, and Conservative in Wentworth. While the redistribution was being discussed Mr. Brethen said he was in the corridor for a time. Conservative and Liberal members came out and consulted. After their return to the Chamber, redistribution was made and it was supported by every Conservative and every Liberal member. Mr. Brethen fought it on the floor of the house, but, when the vote was taken every one of the Government and of the Conservatives voted for it except Mr. Thompson of Hastings who supported Mr. Brethen.

Before he entered Parliament Mr. Brethen said he looked on doings there as an outsider. After four years he sees things from the inside so he has seen them from both sides. He has become disgusted with the servile allegiance to party. It is party first, and welfare of the country second. He described the plans of the House of Commons, explaining the "lobby."

After this vote on redistribution took place, some Conservatives met him in the lobby and said, "Brethen you were right." Even Mr. Meighen himself did, but they were sorry they could not support him, as they had to serve their party.

Hastings feels as badly as we do, he said, but the union is for ten years at least. So far there has been no resentment shown, and he expressed the hope that there might be none, as neither party in the union was responsible.

About the Tariff.

It is said that the tariff is the real issue, said the speaker. There are two policies: that by Mr. Meighen, to make Canada progressive, by building up the large cities, manufactures, and such like, and that advocated by the Government, to remove every handicap from basic industries. Progress would be made and reflected in the banks, and all business.

This is always true, he said. Prosperity depending on the great cities is always sectional. It may have been all right in long past times, but certainly is not now, in Canada. Some great Conservatives realize this.

Some say we should raise tariff to higher than the United States, said the speaker. "I am not opposed to tariff—if it would do any good," he added.

What is received for cheese in the world market as Liverpool influences the price in Canada. This applies to nearly everything there is to sell, although not so much to hay and other bulky substances. Tariff does not raise the price of what the farmer has to sell but it does raise the price of what he has to buy, said Mr. Brethen. He instanced the price of Ford cars. In Canada there is 35 per cent. duty on them. Though there are factories in Canada, they sell the articles at the cost plus the tariff and so the large industries make a very great profit 37 voted for a higher tariff some time ago, and 141 against. It is not the policy of the many, but the few—and would tend to disunite Canada.

The policy has been in operation in the U.S. since 1920. The U.S. had made money at a tremendous rate during the first two years of war, and there was a building boom, which was halted during the war.

From 1920 until now, in six large states where farming was the great factor, said the speaker, 95 national and 457 state banks have gone bankrupt because they held farmers' notes. "We do not hear of farmers going there", he said. The tariff questions comes up at election times. It is a good thing to bring out an argument. If the opposition were to ge in there would be very little real change.

The real issue is reduction of taxation, said Mr. Brethen. Canada is the fourth most heavily taxed country in the world. Other countries, including Great Britain have made drastic reductions in taxes, Canada is piling up her expenses. The leader of the opposition blames the government for waste and extravagance. When he was in power people had more money than they have now, and he should have started reducing debt then.

At present there is not a leader who has moral back bone to actually get at it, and Mr. Brethen said he would support any leader who does.

When it was brought up to spend some immense sum on a harbor in Quebec, said Mr. Brethen, they were asked to justify the expenditure. There would be large elevators built. But the elevators were not needed as the grain did not go to there. The Progressives fought it. When the vote was taken of the fifty members who were supposed to oppose waste, forty-one were not in their places, and six of the nine stood up for the expenditure, three against it.

The Progressives asked why they did not come in and oppose. Mr. Meighen said he did not, because he was in bad enough already. Party first, Canada second.

Mr. Brethen said he would not ask for an expenditure for this riding, unless it is absolutely needed. If he does, how could he oppose unnecessary expense elsewhere?

Farmer Economizes.

When the farmer found he had less money he economized, patched up the old barn, instead of building a new one, made the old binder do.

Canada has to stop unnecessary spending, and it can be done.

Another instance of unnecessary expense was building a fine new post office. Interest and other expenses including depreciation in value make the cost of simply having the building $2,000 a year, when a building which answered purpose was rented at cost of $180.

Mr. Brethen was not so much impressed with Mr. Coolidge at first, but says that he thinks it would be good thing to have him here. He began at his inauguration and expenses were only $5,000 instead of the usual, about $100,000. In the departments he cut down expenses from five million to three million. If a head of a department said he could manage he was told to step out, a further reduction of a half a million is being made.

In Canada the head of each department asks for a little more than he needs each year. In the civil service alone there are sixty thousand, who work only six hours a day and not really that. The numbers could easily be reduced by one quarter, but neither government nor oppositions feels like so doing.

Since Coolidge came in the U.S. has reduced the per capita tax from $54 to $27.

They could easily get along with fewer departments at Ottawa, says Mr. Brethen. The solicitor-general and his staff could be dispensed with. The minister of justice could do the work, with practically no extra expense.

There extra offices do make it better for some one, but the people have to pay, pay, pay.

Mr. Brethen said that he would support any party that will give surety of reducation of the taxation. He would not be gin to economize, byfailing to make just payments to returned soldiers or soldiers' dependents. He spoke of several cases of want among soldiers' families, saying that many letters from people in different parts of the province which he always investigated, and not by proxy. He would find out the right and then get to work to get it for them.

Temperance is an issue, he said, and Canada will never get away from it unless the people elect representatives who stand firmly for it.

He said he was proud to say that on any moral question the Progressive party stood a unit. The members might differ on the budget, and other things, because they were an independent bunch, but on moral question they were one. He had not always voted with the party, he said.

He wished people to vote for him, only if they thought he would represent them better than Dr. Embury.

He reminded the people that all should vote, who have the vote, and that the last provincial election was lost because many did not come out to vote.

ST. ANDREW'S SERVICES.

St. Andrew's services on Sunday are marked by the postponed rally day services in the Sunday school session. Parents and friends are invited. A bouquet of flowers for the oldest and youngest scholar present.

Rev. A. H. McConnachie of Springville will preach in the evening. Rev. J. W. Gordon is preaching at Fairmount United Church anniversary services, at 7 p.m.

SUBURBAN RESIDENTS

O'Heron from Auburn. And they were unanimous. There was no divergence of opinion last night, and the only disappointment was the incapacity of the school room. Unable to hear the discussion on the inside the gathering in the hall apparently exchanged their grievances with the same unanimity as the main body surrounding the Warden. It was stated that Otonabee people were holding a meeting simultaneously, Smith will immediately fall into line, and Mr. O'Heron will gather the Douro clan. So the heather about the city will continue to flame until these householders have secured redress or until their lights are cut off, if in the long run they refuse to sign the new contracts.

Wardens Explanation.

Warden Rye opened the meeting with an explanation of its purpose and of the circumstances which have preceded the issuance of the new rates. "The Hydro think that the Utilities Commission overstepped their authority in extending their power lines into the township," he said. "A survey was made and the Utilities were ordered not to make any further extensions until they had heard from the Hydro. About a week ago the Utilities Commission were notified of the rates which they have passed on to you. I think they are needlessly heavy."

As an example of the increase Mr. Rye quoted the charge upon a house under the new and old rates. The highest reading was 58 kilowatt hours for two months and the net bill was $2.38 including the fixed service charge of 90c under the old rate as against $4.34 for the same reading under the new rate an increase of $1.96 or 82%; and under the new rates the fixed servie charge for two months in that instance is $2.50 or $1.25 a month.

For the lowest reading of 29 kwh, probably for two summer months the lowest net bill was $1.60 under the old rates and $3.30 under the new, the increase being $1.70 or 107%. From these increases Mr. Rye figured the average for two months at 90%.

"It seems almost out of reason," he continued. "I haven't noticed that the Utilities Commission has been going into bankruptcy that would call for an increase like this, being put on us. I don't see what we can do except form a committee from say the townships of Monaghan, Smith and Otonabee and interview the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto. Mr. Bradburn is willing to make an appointment for us at any time and to go with the deputation when they wait on the Hydro."

Some Suggestions.

Mr. Rye pointed out that not only residents of North Monaghan, but also of Smith and Otonabee were affected by the new charges. It had been suggested, he said, that the townships might be allowed to take over the transmission lines in their territory, and that it would be better to have the Utilities Commission operate them for the Hydro than to have the Hydro operate them for the townships. The Utilities Commission had expended between $30,000 and $36,000 on extensions into the three townships, and if these extensions were taken over by the townships that cost would be quite an item to be carried by debenture issue. Mr. Rye wasn't positive that better rates could be obtained under the Suburban Development Act. "If the townships did buy the transmission lines and have the service operated by the Utilities Commission the Government would make a grant to the townships of 50% of the purchase price.

"It is a question for the ratepayers to consider and give us some idea on how they want us to fight" the Warden suggested. "If we get the townships to stay together we may get some concessions from the Hydro. We are so close to the city and fairly thickly settled that I can't see why there should be an increase now of 80 to 90% on distribution outside the city.

Water Service Refused.

There is another matter which I wish to mention on this opportunity. Ratepayers in the Clarady section have been asking for a water service from the Utilities and have met with a flat refusal. They feel sore and are blaming the Council of North Monaghan. I say that the township Council has done all it could to get that water service. We took all the preliminary steps and made application for an extension of the water service and were turned down. They told us "we have no more water to sell."

If the petitioners for water think that the Council has not done all that it could do to get that water, I would suggest that they also strike a committee and see what they can do. I have done all that I can. I was informed that the demand for city water is so near the capacity of the filtration tanks that they can't take on any extensions out of the city."

Warden Rye explained that the Utilities Commission must maintain the safety factor for fire protection, and additional expansion of the filtration plant would require an expenditure of $150,000.

Worth Considering.

John Barnes remarked that it might be worth while buying the transmission system if the Government would pay half the price. If it cost $36,000, the township would have to pay $18,000. The people would have to pay more than that in one year above the present rate. He advised that the townships ask for a stay of execution of the new schedule of rates until something could be done. "The time is so abominably short we have no chance to turn around."

Frank Wallwork said he understood that the Hydro was applying the same rate all over the province. In that case, he asked, why was an exception being made here.

Mr. Barnes enquired whether those ratepayers who had installed power services before the Hydro took over the local system would have any special claim in view of that priority.

Bought By Hydro.

"I built my own lines," Mr. Rye replied. "The township lines were included in the valuation at the time of the purchase by the Hydro. They became the property of the Hydro Commission. The city took over all the lines within the city."

The Warden said he was not eager to take on the fight singlehanded. North Monaghan was only a small township compared with Smith and Otonabee. He asked whether these townships were represented and was informed that Otonabee people were holding a meeting at Stewart's Hall.

Smith Will Help.

Reeve Bert Middleton of Smith answered to the Warden's roll call. He said he was not familiar with the problem but was interested and wished to help in any way he could. He noticed several Smith ratepayers present, and this remark was a cue to Thomas Shields who said that he and J. D. Manley and Allan Brown had been delegated to attend the Monaghan meeting. The Smith people had not yet held a meeting, but intended to get together and join with the affected residents in the other townships.

"Three of us were asked to represent the ratepayers of Smith" said Mr. Shields. "They knew this place would be filled and that all who wished to come could not be accomodated. So were were asked to come and tell you we wish to work with Monaghan and see what can be done."

The voice of Otonabee was heard from Robert Wilson, Clifford Cox, George Smithson and others, who assured Monaghan and Smith that they could get a committee to join the movement, and that their Reeve would be with them.

One Douro Resident.

Mr. Rye asked whether any one was present from Douro, and Maurice O'Heron was greeted with applause as he answered with an affirmative. He had tried to communicate with Mr. R. B. Rogers and Mr. Curtis of the brickyard, and then took it upon himself to go alone and hear what was said.

"I am safe in saying that Douro will fall into line," he stated. "I have no authority in saying that, but it is what I expect. I'd just like to recall how conditions have changed. Perhaps twenty years ago we were solicited to put in the lights. There were no electric lights in our vicinity. The Peterboro Light and Power Company told us that if twelve of us would get together and take the lights the company would put up the poles and wires. We did so and got a flat rate for three years of 60c a month, and could burn what we liked. If we could have that flat rate of 60c, say fifteen years ago, why is there such a difference now? We have been advised to put in stoves and we have been looking forward to the price getting cheaper, but they have turned around and made it dearer. I will get in touch with our residents and I feel sure we will all fall in line."

"We'll soon have the whole county into this," remarked the Warden, in jest. "This is a matter for the ratepayers rather than for the Council. There is no agreement between the Council of North Monaghan and the Peterboro Utilities Commission."

Peter McArthur said that the Council should not but the onus of the problem on the ratepayers. "The Council should take up the matter of supplying power from the Utilities or the Hydro, rather than leave it to the individual ratepayers."

Council Will Act.

"If the Council had made a power contract," replied the Warden, "it would be our duty to see that it was carried out. The Council has actually no knowledge of a contract between ratepayers and the Utilities Commission. If you appoint a committee and they reach the decision that the Council should make an agreement with the Hydro you will find that the Reeve and the Council will do all they can. Except the Brinton Carpet Company, and I don't know what they are charged, I am the heaviest hit in the township. The new rates will cost me $940 more a year than I am paying today. So you will appreciate the fact that I am a little interested in getting the best rates we can."

To Mr. McArthur's question as to who would benefit by the increased rates, Mr. Rye said: "The Hydro will. The Utilities Commission will have to turn the money over to the Hydro for the power we use, less the Utilities' charge for operation."

LADIES' AID OPENS ITS WINTER SESSION

Good Turnout of Members of Millbrook Church Society.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 10. — The opening meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, for the fall and winter season, was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Herb. Ball, Fallis' Line, cars being provided to convey the thirty or more members who were in attendance to the gathering.

The president, Miss M. E. Needham, occupied the chair, the usual devotional period taking up the first fifteen minutes of the meeting.

The pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard, presented the report of the committee appointed to confer with the architect from Peterborough regarding the lowering of the organ and choir loft in the church. This is the objective which the Aid has in view, and the desire is to have the work done with the least possible delay, the necessity for the proposed change being obvious.

In order that further steps be taken in the immediate future, the committee, Rev. Mr. Howard, Messrs. H. W. Johnston, W. E. Ball, and G. E. Burnham, was re-appointed to proceed with plans, engaging workmen, etc., the hope being that the needed improvement may be an accomplished fact within the next few weeks.

A general discussion of plans for the annual fowl dinner, to be given on Tuesday, October 20, under the auspices of the Aid, led to the appointment of canvassers for the village and country, to secure supplies for the event. The canvassers will meet at Mrs. J. McKnight's home on Saturday, October 17, and report progress. All the territory assigned must be covered before that date.

The Aid contributed five dollars to the thank offering at the anniversary service held at the Fallis Line appointment last Sunday and will give a similar amount for the Zion anniversary next Sunday. The matter of contributing to the church anniversary here was left over for further consideration the general feeling being that if the Society undertakes the expense involved in lowering the choir gallery, it will have assumed its full share of responsibility.

Two of the older members, Mrs. John Fallis and Mrs. W. H. Byam, who were present at Tuesday's meeting in spite of the unfavorable roads and weather, were given special greeting during the social hour at the close, when tea was served. Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. A. J. Brown, Mrs. F. H. Howard, were some members of the committee who assisted the hostess in serving the guests, and in providing the refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. S. Burnham on the second Tuesday in November.

Among those present were Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Mrs. F. W. Smith, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. R. H. and Mrs. Ross Edmunds, Mrs. G. E. Brunham, Mrs. W. Mullen, Mrs. J. H. George, Mrs. W. H. and Mrs. J. L. Byam, Mrs. G. Freelove, Mrs. J. McKnight, Mrs. Geo. Locke, Mrs. J. Fallis, Mrs. Edgar Fallis, Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. Stewart Fallis Mrs. A. J. Brown Mrs. F. H. Howard. Mrs. O. Williamson, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. C. C. Garside, Misses L. Crocker, E. Krieger, M. Duncan, M. Needham, E. Sheppard, N. Finnimore, and others.

The Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training held its reopening meeting, after the holiday season, on Tuesday evening, twelve members being in attendance.

The president, Miss Jean Burnham, took the chair, and during the business period discussion was held regarding the social which the group purposes holding as near Hallowe'en as can be arranged for. The salute to the Christian and Canadian flags will form part of the opening ritual of the group at its subsequent meetings.

During the devotional session a talk was given by the mentor on the deliverance of Israel from Egypt, as most of the members had seen the "Ten Commandments," the previous evening, the film being presented in the Town Hall, and interest in the full story was keen.

Jean Stinson and Pearl Davis were appointed games committee for the next meeting with Wilma Fallis and Hazel McMahon responsible for preparing a missionary programme.

FEW ACCLAMATIONS.

Although the official nomination day, except in the case of a small number of ridings, is nearly two weeks away, the Federal election campaign has developed so rapidly that a small army of candidates is already in the field.

The indications are that this election will be memorable for the small number of elections by acclamation.

From present signs not more than half a dozen aspirants will slid into office without having to fight for the honours.

And there may not be that many.

The Progressive leader has no opponent so far in Brandon; Dr. Preston, Conservative, may be returned without a fight in Lanark; L. W. Humphrey, Progressive-Labour candidate in West Kootenay, had, according to last reports, the field to himself, and there may be a seat or two in Quebec without a contest.

It is a long way to nomination day, however, and even these ridings may be the seat of a battle at the polls.

HOW ABOUT YOUR BRAKES?

The Border Cities Lions' Club have recently been conducting a safety campaign out of which has come some interesting information.

A test of forty-eight sets of motor brakes at police headquarters revealed the fact that six were in such bad shape that certificates were refused.

It would be interesting to know how a similar test would work out in Peterboro.

The importance of having brakes in proper condition cannot be overestimated; it is undoubtedly true that good brakes go hand in hand with safe driving.

No matter how careful, no matter how skilful a motorist may be, he is taking chances and causing a risk to others if the machinery by which he checks his car is not in proper working order.

Every driver should be careful to have his brakes examined periodically, both for his own sake and for the sake of the public generally.

As the Border Cities Star, referring to the test, puts it: "Eternal vigilance in this, as in other aspects of motoring, is the price of safety and peace of mind."

This question of properly-working brakes is too often neglected by motorists, even by those who are known as careful drivers—and the defective mechanism offsets the care exercised by the man at the wheel.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

A few days ago the Examiner said that the people of London, Ont., were to be asked to express by means of a plebiscite their views on the question of cadet training in the schools.

The matter, however, will not get to the plebiscite stage, as the City Council of London has decided not to submit the question in spite of a strong request from a number of organizations.

The Aldermen took the right stand.

This fear that cadet training and Boy Scout work and war pictures and war history in the schools seems to be an obsession with some people.

The idea that a boy cannot get the fun and benefit out of cadet training or Boy Scout work without growing up to be a fire-eater who'll want to go out and try to fight the world is as absurd as the Namby-Pamby theory that the children of this generation must not be told of the brave fighting of their fathers and older brothers in the World War because such things glorify war.

Why people waste so much time and work up so much excitement over minor issues when there are so many real problems that call for attention is a mystery to the bulk of Canadians.

A MINISTER OF HEALTH?

While the average Canadian is inclined to think that with twenty-one Cabinet Ministers already on the job there is not the slightest need for another, the resolution passed by a public meeting in Toronto called to discuss health matters that Canada should adopt a co-ordinated campaign against preventable disease directed by a Federal Minister of Health, will cause much interest.

What is aimed at, of course, is Federal leadership, such as has been given in connection with the campaign against venereal diseases, and the exponents of the plan declare that on the same lines a much wider programme of effort could be made possible.

It is too often the case that he health of the country is about the last thing considered by the Government, just as the health of a municipality receives the least consideration of all the matters that come to the attention of the municipal council.

Millions are spent to protect livestock from the attacks of disease, the whole country is stirred into action against the corn-borer, but when it comes to the question of protecting human beings it is difficult to secure action.

There are enough Cabinet members, it is true, but it should be possible to readjust the Ministry so as to include a Minister of Health without increasing the size of the Cabinet.

The Toronto resolution, endorsed by political candidates on both sides, may pave the way to national health measures of great importance.

TEACHING CIVICS.

Much has been said of the disinclination of adult workers to take up the study of history as a subject in the Workers' Educational Association courses arranged by the universities. It is indeed a regrettable fact that they should show themselves indifferent to the past, but it is of more importance, after all, to think about the future. Though it is true that the past is the "mighty teacher of the future," it must be remembered that those engaged in daily occupations have only a limited time to spare for study and are compelled to choose those subjects which they consider to be of the greatest value. There is not much to complain of in the courses arranged by students in this splendid educational movement. It is obvious that those who attend the classes are determined to get the fullest benefit from them. Their earnestness of purpose is evident. Civics, economics, literature, psychology—these seem to be the most popular subjects with the students, and yet they are not commonly regarded as popular. In the selection of subjects such as these the workers set a good example to educationists in general. What is of more importance to the state than a sound grounding in civics and economics? Yet nothing is more neglected in the average scholastic program. In the popular demand for expert instruction in these matters, which are the very foundation of civilized society, the need is seen of doing something more effective in the schools to train our future citizenry in the responsibilities and duties they will be called upon to fulfill.

The process of enfranchisement has been so rapid that it has outpaced all efforts to prepare the enfranchised for their new tasks. That the people can be trusted is a maxim of democracy, and it is a sound maxim. There must be no interference with the full liberty of the electorate. The voters are free agents whose will is supreme. But it is impossible to expect an intelligent participation in governmental responsibilities from people who are uninformed on the principles upon which all government rests. It is not the fault of the people that such ignorance prevails; but the fault of those whose clear duty it is to afford the facilities for instruction. It is gratifying that educationists are themselves recognizing past neglect in this respect, and are endeavoring to repair the situation. There is a movement just now in Great Britain, inspired by eminent educationists, for the teaching of elementary economics in the schools. The curricula is already crowded, but the subject is considered of such importance that it is proposed to make room for it by eliminating from the syllabus what are considered to be less useful subjects. It is to the credit of the workers that they are making up for themselves the deficiencies of their earlier training. There is a suggestion here for the educationists of the Province to do more than has been done to provide the rudiments, at least, of political science as part of the educational bill of fare of public schools. Such instruction would come in very handy for future politicians also, for it is to be feared that many of our legislators are woefully ignorant of the essentials of the science.—Hamilton Spectator.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

The advent of the series of games for the baseball championship of America brings near a close a baseball season tame in some respects—the chief picturesque feature being the disciplining of Babe Ruth—but reported to have been as warm as usual in respect of the behavior of the "fans." One Brooklyn player recently announced his intention of throwing up a contract which awards him a salary of $12,500 a year(more than the average Cabinet Minister, by the way) because he cannot tolerate the abuse of "fans" in the stands. The player was First Baseman Fournier of the Brooklyn National League team, and he said:

> "Every vile name has been hurled at me over and over again, because I made the ordinary run of errors or had not done what foul-mouthed persons in the stands had expected me to do. . . . These "fans" have acquired the right to throw unlimited verbal filth upon a professional baseball player."

Anybody who has attended a baseball match between important teams has likely had ample proof that such complaint is not ill-founded. Nor is it necessary to go to baseball games to get a sample of the style of some of the crowds that patronize athletic sport. You can find it at lots of our hockey matches in this country.

Why do they do it?

Is it really honest excitement? Or is it largely show-off? The "fan" who is yelling at some playtr, or throwing something at him, or beseeching some other player to murder him—does he really feel that way? Or is he just trying to impress his fellow "fans" with the idea that he is a terrible fellow who does feel that way? Is he really as hot as he makes out, or is he just a wind-bag half drunk with the exuberance of his own blatancy? We imagine the latter is the truth in most cases. It is a species of wilful hysterics, supposed to represent vast valor. And it is a valor of the crowd. It's the presence of the crowd that both prompts and protects the noisy braggart. If he were all alone by himself, no "fan" would ever dare to shriek foulness at an able-bodied baseball or hockey player, or throw anything at him. He would hardly dare to let out so much as a squeak. The "fan" does not really have to yell and riot. He only thinks he has to when he is one of a mob, and his yelling is done just to prove to himself and the rest of the mob that he is a terribly fierce fellow, capable of such frightful indignation at times that it carries him completely out of himself and could make him a menace to the whole of the world if he only were to let himself go the limit.

Do not let us flatter ourselves that that sort of hysterics is only an Americanism. It is seen to some extent in Canadian sport; a similar spirit has appeared at some of the football games in England, and a famous Spanish bull-fighter is just dead from the effect of a bottle thrown by a spectator. It is a manifestation of the hysterical spirit of combined ferocity and cowardice which is always liable to appear in a mob. It is a good thing for decent people to frown down, and for police to interfere with sharply.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Dear Sir,—I fear Mr. Burnham does not quite understand my reply to his enquiry in respect to the prohibition question. I said Mr. Burnham's views were well-known. I think they are. My own personal view I repeat, and that is no further brewery or distillery licenses should be issued. There are plenty of licenses, it seems to me, at the present time, and my personal opinion is that no further brewery or other licenses should be issued,other than those that at present exist.—Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON.

FROM MR. MERRILL

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—It has been by privilege to travel over a portion of four constituencies since the dissolution of parliament, and I find that the independent elector is largely considering the principle of the candidate, not his politics. It has been a great pleasure to me to hear from people of all religious faith and shade of politics the tribute paid to one of the candidates of Peterboro, that he is clean. Clean in his community life and absolutely clean in his professional life. No better slogan can be hung over any man's head that HE IS CLEAN. If we want a clean nation, we must have a clean Government; and if we will have a clean Government, we must elect clean members. Thanking you, I remain. Yours truly, etc.,

W. H. MERRILL.

FROM MR. ACKERMAN.

The Editor of The Examiner.

The electorate of the riding of West Peterboro is going to the poll on October 29 for the purpose of selecting it s representative to send to Ottawa—influenced to a very great extent upon their analysis of the two candidates, as expressed by the press, together with what personal opinions they may have formed.

This riding is composed of an electorate who represent the highest type of Canadian citizenship to be found anywhere in the Dominion. This statement cannot be taken in any sense as flattery. Nowhere in Canada can be found a riding like West Peterboro'—essentially an industrial centre, surrounded by a good Anglo-Saxon farming community, that has a lower per capita percentage of foreigners than has this riding. This electorate will judge the two candidates from the personal angle and from the political angle that will, in their opinion, best serve their own constituency.

The majority of the electors are undoubtedly either employees of industry who, to a very large extent, depend upon them for a market for their produce.

These electors will most certainly decide who their representative will be.

The city of Peterboro' is a manufacturing centre. The industries responsible for the solidity of this riding are dependent upon a measure of protective tariff for their ability to afford employment. The workingman and the farmer know this.

These issues will not be lost sight of by the statements of our present representative, who states that he attributes his unpopularity in the riding to his opposition to the Big Interests. He should name openly the Big Interests that he is opposed to, and state in a way that every person can understand, what his reasons are for opposing them and then give these Big Interests an opportunity of defending themselves, if the criticism merits a defence.

Jealousy is not the reason many of the electors are opposed to the bestowal of a portfolio upon Mr. Gordon, so much as their lack of confidence in his ability to fill a position requiring much experience and a much fuller realization of his responsibilities than was evidenced by the scheme to which he has openly committed himself and his Government towards the purchasing of many portions of farms in his own riding. Most people in the riding are not so much interested in Mr. Gordon s advancement as they are in the welfare of the riding.

More work for the workingman now unemployed is essential, and a perfectly honest and well-considered expression of opinion from the electorate will reveal that a lower tariff will not help towards the relief of these unfortunate people. Yours truly,

—C. H. Ackerman.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

More than the average run of cattle were on the Union Stock Yards this week, but this was not detrimental to prices, which held remarkably steady. Two firms were operating for export, and this forced prices a little higher, at least in one instance and a load of steers sold at $8.40 a cwt. Both firms were not able to buy more than 600 on this market and the average quality of these was not good. Rogers & Maybee had to find 1,000 through the country to complete their shipments this week.

In the butchers' stuff, nothing was good enough to get above $6.75 a cwt. except the baby beeves which were taken to fill up in place of handyweights. These sold firmer by 25 to 50 cents a cwt. on the average, with tops at $11.50 a cwt. Good handyweight butchers' were $5.75 to $6.25 a cwt. Butchers' below this in quality were difficult sellers as the packers had plenty of about like quality from the West. Draggy sales accounted for all the butchers' on the market by Thursday noon.

There has been a good ready market for cows from canners up, and prices were steady to firm. Choice cows are holding from $5 a cwt. up. Bulls have also been well bought, with bolognas $3 to $3.75 a cwt. and export and butchers' bulls $4.25 to $5.50 a cwt. Fewer western feeding cattle were in this week and prices are higher all round by 25 cents a cwt. Milchers and springers are easier. The export demand will not be as heavy next week, and a short age of really good butchers' cattle is expected to continue.

Not too many calves and a number of these taken for Buffalo has and good but not choice calves have kept this market strong all week sold freely at 12 to 13 cents a pound. Good medium calves have brought up to 1 11-2 cents and common ones have touched as high as 9 cents.

Lambs fell back half a dollar a cwt. on Wednesday and steadied at 12 1-2 cents a pound for the ewes. No sheep have been good enough to get beyond 7 cents a pound.

Packers made two 25-cents cuts in hogs this week and got them down to $12.25 a cwt. f.o.b. Any further decline will meet strenuous opposition, although only $12 a cwt. is being bid for next week's hogs.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 10 (Canadian Press)—Efforts to prepare for surprises in the government crop report as well as for a holiday on Monday were largely responsible for a material up-turn in wheat prices today. Contrary to general expectation, the official forecast showed a decrease instead of a substantial increase of the 1925 domestic yield of spring wheat. On the other hand the government estimate of corn production exceeded by 48,000,000 bushels the average of private estimates.

Wheat closed unsettled 1-2 to 2 cents net higher, new style, Dec. 138 7-8 to 139 and May 139 3-4 to 140, with corn 1 1-8 to 2 3-8c up, oats 1-8 to 1-2c gain, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 17c.

Lively buying, which set in soon after the opening, hoisted the wheat market quickly, and throughout the remainder of the day kept prices well above yesterday's finish.

Announcement that wheat exports from North America for the week amounted to 7,700,000 bushels attracted considerable notice as indicating either that business with Europe is of larger volume than has been generaly admitted or that liberal overseas consignments are being made. Increased demand for wheat in store here, was also the subject of a good deal of attention. Highest premiums yet this season were paid both here and at St. Louis for wheat to be delivered at once to the mills.

Rough weather and scantiness of receipts gave a lift to the corn market. Oats followed corn.

In sympathy with the hog market, provisions averaged lower.

CHEESE MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 10 (Canadian Press) — The receipts of cheese were 6,286 boxes, as against 8,793 for the same day last week, and 13,085 for the corresponding day a year ago. Owing to the lull in the foreign demand for supplies an easier feeling has developed iu the market and prices on spot were reduced 1-8c per lb.

MONTREAL GRAIN.

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 10—Canadian Press.—There was no improvement in the export trade in the local grain market yesterday. The demand from local and export buyers for grain in the domestic market was again limited and the volume of business small. Prices were practically the same.

A good business was done in the local flour market but prices showed no change. Spring wheat flour was in good demand for both domestic consumption and for export account. The market for winter wheat flour was without a feature. Prices were steady.

The undertone in the mill feed market was easier and millers in some cases were still cutting prices $1 to $2 per ton, but no actual price change was announced. The domestic market for baled hay was steady. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

The trade in eggs war fairly good, there being asteady demand for small lots to meet immediate requirements. The tone of the market remains firm and prices were unchanged.

The tone of the market for potatoes remains steady owing to the fact that receipts are rather small for the season of the year for which there was a fair demand and prices were unchanged.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 10 (Canadian Press)—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand: $4.83 1-8.

Sterling Cables: $4.83 5-8.

Beans were quoted at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel.

The trdae in eggs was fairly good.

Fall unfurls her Banners—

Nature calls the city dwellers

Autumn days in Ontario are days of brilliant sunshine and fresh, clear air. Autumn nights are cool and restful.

Nature calls the city dweller at this season. She is yielding her crops of grain, fruit and vegetables. She is dressing her trees and shrubs in gala attire. The green of summertime is breaking into resplendent reds, and gold, and burnt copper.

Everywhere in Ontario good roads lead past good scenery. You may spin by laden orchards or colorful farms, or you may go further afield to spots where Nature meets you unadorned; but everywhere the mellow fruitfulness of Autumn is in the air, and the blue haze beckons.

Mile after mile of improved highway will bring to you a realisation of the immensity of the good roads problem and the money and work which must be devoted to construction and repair.

You have a responsibility, for by the manner in which you use the roads you may save or destroy them. The law places the maximum speed limit at twenty-five miles an hour. Every mile above that means needless damage to the road. Do not exceed the speed limit.

Money for repair work comes from you, and other users of the roads. You will display public spirit, as well as self-interest, if you drive sanely and intelligently.

While the Government is receiving co-operation from the great majority of those who use the roads, it gives warning to others that the provisions of The Highways Act in regard to fast driving are being rigorously enforced.

OPEN LETTER NO. 17

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

You will agree with me, won't you, that one of Canada's biggest problems to-day is to make the income of our national railway system balance the outgo? Granted that, does it not follow that we should keep its welfare prominently in our minds when debating policies by which its revenues will be affected?

Has your Government duly considered its welfare when enacting tariff reductions? Does your Government, for instance, clearly understand what happens when, due to lower custom duties, a wholesaler in Winnipeg finds it advantageous to switch his orders from, say, a Sherbrooke manufacturer to one in Albany? It's perfectly clear to any one who stops to think!

First, Canadian railways lose all the business arising out of the hauling of raw material to the factory. If the Sherbrooke factory used Canadian raw material, that haulage might have been over considerable distances, and might have amounted to quite an item. Even if it used imported raw material, some Canadian railway would still have had the haulage of it from the international boundary, or from a seaport, to Sherbrooke.

Next, it loses practically all the haulage of the finished product. The Albany manufacturer is too patriotic to route his shipment via Prescott or Niagara. He sends it via Chicago and St. Paul. And if he doesn't Washington will want to know the reason why! All the haulage that Canadian railways get out of it is from Emerson to Winnipeg, which is a vastly different thing than from Sherbrooke to Winnipeg!

And should the factory worker follow the job from Sherbrooke to Albany, Canadian railways lose the haulage of all the merchandise he consumes!

In all seriousness therefore, I ask you on behalf of the Canadian public—the stockholders in the C.N.R.—what are you doing, what are you prepared to do, to protect their investment, to spare them further losses?

Yours respectfully,

J. J. GIBBONS,

WEDDING BELLS.

MITCHELL—HOGG.

On Wednesday, October 7th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew S. Hogg, North Monaghan was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding when their younger daughter, Elizabeth Irene, was united in marriage to Mr. Arnold C. Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell, Belleville, Ont. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and the ceremony took place under a bridal arch of flowers and evergreens. The Rev. Mr. Totten of Cavan, formerly of Belleville, officiated.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Miss Hazel Mitchell, sister of the groom, the bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father. She was becomingly gowned in white crepe-back satin with embroidered veil in cap style, caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and lily-of-the-valley. Master Elmer S. Hogg, nephew of the bride, made a cunning little flower-bearer, and Mrs. Percy Mott of Belleville sang "Because" in a very pleasing voice during the signing of the register.

A dainty wedding repast, catered to by Hooper's, Peterboro, was served to about thirty-five guests after which the happy couple left amid showers of confetti and good wishes on a two weeks' motor trip through the States, the bride wearing a blue tailored suit with hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will reside near Belleville, Ont.

MAY MAKE PAPER FROM WASTE STRAW

Experiments Conducted Proven Satisfactory to Interest Capital.

EDMONTON, Alta., Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—As the result of successful experiments in the making of paper and paper products from waste straw, which have been conducted under the direction of the Alberta Government, efforts are now being made to interest capital in the proposal to establish manufacturing plants in the Province.

Government officials express confidence in the success of such an enterprise, and state that the result of the experiments made to date, have been of the greatest importance, not only to the farmers, but the general industrial development of Alberta.

A special report on the experiments has been made by Trade Commissioner Stutchbury to Premier Greenfield, covering the following points:

1, Availability of straw within an economic radius; 2, Availability and cost of coal; 3, Availability and cost of salt and sodium sulphate; 4, Railway facilities and freight rates; 5, Labor conditions; 6, Water and sewage facilities.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETING AT NORHAM

Good Programme Was Put On—Next Meeting at Warkworth.

NORHAM, Oct. 10.—The Percy Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Charles Pierson on Wednesday afternoon. There were about three dozen members and visitors present. An interesting feature of the meeting was an astor bouquet contest for which Mrs. William Hermiston of Warkworth won the prize. The judges were: Mrs. J. F. Everson, Mrs. Lorne Evans and Mrs. Lewis Denike. A word contest deriving words from the letters in the word voters was won by Mrs. Lee Isaas and Mrs. James Greenly, each of whom formed 33 words. Mrs. James McCracken won second prize. Mrs. James Greenly represented the Institute at the Canadian National Exhibition and gave an interesting report of the house dress competition held in Toronto, in which 62 persons competed.

The following program, over which the president, Mrs. William Hermiston, presided, was rendered:

Reading—Mrs. Lorne Evans.

MORE THAN HOPEFUL MEIGHEN DECLARES

CALGARY, Alta., Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Apparently in the prime of health and certainly in the best of spirits, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative Party of Canada stepped off the train from the West this afternoon, and was greeted by a large number of friends.

"I have been having the most wonderful meetings I have ever known," he stated.

"What do you think of the general outlook, Mr. Meighen, are you hopeful?"

"I am more than hopeful. I have something better than hopes.

Accompanying Mr. Meighen and his party is Richard Law, son of the late Hon. Bonar Law. Mr. Law came from England for the purpose of unveiling a memorial to his father at Rexton, N. B. This is Mr. Law's first trip to the West and his is now returning to England, where he will resume his studies for the bar.

GERMAN MENNONITE COLONY TO MEXICO

Trek Director States Government is Allowing Concessions.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—The last batch of the German Mennonite colony which is migrating from Western Canada to Mexico, will be transferred to their new homes so soon as their holdings on the Prairies are disposed of, according to J. F. D. Wiebe of Herbert, Sask., who is directing the "trek" from the Canadian end.

"Since we obtained the concessions in 1921, comprising 300,000 acres of land in Mexico, more than 6,000 German Mennonites, who are conscientious objectors, have settled in Mexico. They have received a fairly good crop this year and their stock operations have been successful," Mr. Wiebe declared.

The Mexican Government, he added, has honored its side of the bargain and lived up to the terms of the concession. The newcomers were permitted to have their own schools and churches where the German language was spoken exclusively. The settlers were also permitted to manage their own internal affairs and are exempt from military service.

In Mr. Wiebe's opinion, the exodus from Canada hardly represents a loss in population. Incoming Russian Mennonites, he pointed out, were taking over the land.

Ford Working On Airplane Flying Lizzies Are Coming

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 10—Graphically illustrating his ideas of the value of aircraft with a jab of his hand and the words "Zip—and you are there," Henry Ford described work being done on his laboratory toward developing an airplane for common use. His laboratories at Dearborn, Ford said, are already developing a motor for this type of airplane. It will be an eight cylinder, air cooled X type motor developing 200 horse power and weighing about two pounds to the horse power. It will have, he said, all of the economical characteristics of automobile motors.

Love Me, Love My Lady

THERE are a good many people who would like to make love to pretty Betty Compson, a beautiful and clever screen player. But remarkably few of those so minded have even got so far as the first stages. "Big Fella," the stern-eyed dog at Betty's side, does not believe in romance and as Miss Compson's guardian he is able to put these theories into practice. Persons who show undue attentions to jealous "Big Fella's" pretty mistress are apt to find themselves summarily chased across open lots. Probably this dog will have his hands—or paws—full after Betty's work in the George Loane Tucker production, "The Miracle Man," a superb Paramount-Artcraft picture has been seen and admired.

CZECHS AND YANKS TALK DEBT FUNDING

Points of Difference Creep Up in Informal Conversations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — The points of difference between the American and Czechoslovakian Debt Funding Commissioners were considered in informal conversations today between Dr. Vilem Pospisil, head of the Czechoslovakia Commission, and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Garrard B. Winston.

Czechoslovakia has objected to the American contention that the principal of the debt to the United States amounts to approximately $91,000,000, accrued interest not included, and suggested that settlement should be made on basis of approximately $80,000,000 principal, contending that some of the charges made by the Government were incorrect.

CHINAMAN FREED ON MURDER CHARGE

Had Himself Been Abducted By Fellow Countrymen—Tangled Case.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press). — The Chinese houseboy in the Shaughnessy Heights residence, where the girl met her death, had been kidnapped last March, held for more than a month and released only to be arrested for murder, and was committed for trial last June by Magistrate McQueen in Point Grey Police Court. He had been out on $10,000 bail since that time.

The death of the young Scottish nursemaid is left in the position that one coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, another jury returned a verdict of murder, and the grand jury has decided that the Chinese was not guilty.

Of the many features indirectly connected with the death of Janet Smith, there remains the case against Wong's alleged abductors. One man has pleaded guilty and several others are to appear in court if the grand jury returns a true bill in their case.

The only man who is down is the man who thinks he's down.

ATTENTION, AUTOMOBILE OWNER!

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE

Sells for 2c More a Gallon —and is worth it

1 The Canadian Oil Companies, Ltd., has never made, or sold, but two grades of gasoline—White Rose and Red Seal. Our Red Seal sells for 32c a gal.

2 They are pure as gasoline can be made.

3 For nearly a half-century White Rose Gasoline has been sold for more a gallon than the market price of ordinary gasoline.

4 White Rose is the only gasoline for which those who know its merits have willingly paid a higher price for nearly fifty years.

5 White Rose Gasoline is made by a Company that drills its own wells, owns its own pipe lines, tank cars and refineries.

6 The sale of White Rose Gasoline has increased from a few hundred gallons to many millions of gallons a year.

8 The results claimed for White Rose Gasoline are based on facts gained from actual usage and not on theory or experiment.

9 Recently, there have been many "price" imitators of White Rose Gasoline. But never has White Rose had a "quality" imitator.

10 No artisan in any line takes greater pride in his product than do the men who sell White Rose Gasoline.

Continuous use of WhiteRoseGasoline will soon convince you of these facts:

11 That it creates a smooth, turbine-like flow of power—never jerky, cranky, sputtery or "bomb-like."

12 That White Rose Gasoline will "drive" your engine to the maximum of its capacity.

13 That White Rose Gasoline can not injure in the least those finely-machined parts with which it comes in contact.

14 That the instantaneous ignition of White Rose Gasoline gives you that most desirable feature—"pick-up."

15 That White Rose Gasoline makes your car run more quietly and smoothly, because it "pushes" instead of "blasts" its way through to the exhaust.

17 That it gives greatest load-mileage.

18 But, only at the end of a year's daily use of White Rose Gasoline will you fully appreciate how much it has saved you. This evidence you will obtain by a comparison of your engine repair-bills as against those of the previous year.

En-ar-co Motor Oil Saves the Silk Surface of Polished Steel

En-ar-co Motor Oil is softer than velvet. It preevnts friction of moving parts. It allows noiseless freedom. It has "body" that withstands the severest heat, always preventing metal-to-metal contact.

En-ar-co Motor Oil forms a perfect protective film between rings and pistons, between pistons and cylinder walls. This prevents seepage of "gas" into the crank case, prevents excess oil reaching valves and plugs to form injurious carbon.

These are the reasons why White Rose Gasoline sells for 2c more a gallon—and is worth it.

GEORGE AND SMITH STREETS

The Merry Men of the Greenwood can hardly wait until Saturday arrives, and the first experience in the log cabin.

Don Bonter met Big Bill Davis, on the way to school, and Bill was telling some of the boys about the great time the Merry Men would be having this winter, in the Greenwood.

"Say, Little John," said Bill, just to impress the other boys with the reality of the Robin Hood band, "I have just been telling these fellows about a cave we discovered this summer, on the hill in the Greenwood, and——"

"Ah, cut that out!" frowned Don, "that's a secret for the Merry Men alone, and besides, to-day is only Friday and we have to go to school. First thing you know, the teacher will be calling me Little John and——"

"Oh, all right, Mr. Bonter," said Big Bill, with a magnificent bow. "I hope you have as much trouble locating the answer to your arithmetic this morning, as these fellows will have finding our cave, and if they make as many errors as you do, maybe they will disappear down some rock crevice and go clean through to China."

"Oh, is that so!" said the resourceful Don, a bit on the peeved side, "I may guess a little, but I finally learn by error, following your excellent example, but not getting stabbed in the hand twice, as you did. I was beaten up by a barred owl but I learned my lesson. You got stabbed once by that blue heron but could not see the joke, so he had to show you all over again, by stabbing you once more."

Mention of the stabbing, caused all sorts of questions, and it finally came out that Big Bill had found a young Great Blue Heron in early September, but it was able to defend itself even though it could not fly far at a time. The first time Bill went to grasp it, he got its beak through his hand, and his determination was greater than his common sense, so he tried again, receiving stab number two.

"Well, I may have been stabbed twice, but I know twice as much about that beautiful stabber as you do—— Oh, there's the bell. I'll tell you more about him some time," added Bill.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

VACCINATE FOR THE SAKE OF SOCIETY.

A California reader has written me, asking two questions:

"What is your opinion about vaccination?

"Is it harmful?"

Not very long ago I prepared an article on this subject, reciting the fact that I had been vaccinated recently. Perhaps the fact that I submitted to vaccination is the best answer I could make to this correspondent.

Naturally, I would not be vaccinated if I considered it harmful. Nobody would assume the inconvenience and discomfort of the experience unless he believed it to be important.

It is easy in these days of comparative freedom from small-pox, at least epidemics of small-pox, to take a stand against vaccination. Things are entirely different now than they were two or three generations ago. Then small-pox was almost as common as pneumonia is to-day.

It has been stated by contemporary writers that almost every public man of Napoleon's day was pockmarked. If they did not die of the loathsome disease, they bore its scars to their graves.

We have read a good deal during the last year of an unusual incidence of smallpox. It is very significant that when there was a single unvaccinated person in a household it was that particular person and no other who contracted the disease.

A thing which has given credence to some critics of vaccination is the fact that successful vaccination does not always give immunity against the disease. The susceptibility to small-pox is so great in some persons that a single vaccination is not sufficient to ward off the attack. It is very significant, however, that in every such case the disease is very mild, sometimes almost negligible.

Within reasonable limits vaccination is a certain protection against small-pox. My own observations here and abroad confirm me in this opinion.

I feel like this about vaccination: What right has an individual to set up his opinion against that of the scientific world? If it affected nobody but himself, it would not matter, but every unvaccinated person in a community is like tinder and shavings laid against a frame building. A spark will start a fire which may destroy a city. An unvaccinated person offers soil for the growth in numbers and virulence of germs of a terrible disease which may be spread to innumerable other persons.

For the sake of society, then, as well as for you own sake, I advise vaccination. It is a simple procedure, done with most remote chance of serious results.

Answers to Health Queries.

A. C. Q.—Is there anything that will reduce fat legs?

A.—Exercise and massage should help to reduce fat legs. Running, dancing, brisk walking, climbing, etc., are all good for this purpose.

* * *

F. D. Q.—What causes aching pains in the knees after sitting for any length of time?

A.—This is probably due to a rheumatic condition, caused by some infection in the system. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

M. J. O. Q.—I am eighteen years of age and blush very easily. How can this be overcome?

A.—This is due to self-consciousness. Forget yourself and become interested in other people's conversation and the things happening around you. Go out among young persons of your own age and join actively in their amusements. Read good books so that you will not be at a loss for conversation. All this will help you to overcome bashfulness.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY AND MONDAY
OCTOBER 11-12.

Sunday's astrological forecast is for lively conditions, with the prospect of removal or travel. But business affairs are not promising and the change may not be entirely satisfactory.

Those whose birthday it is may change or travel during the year, but not wholly to their satisfaction. A child born on this day may be active, but of a restless and unsettled nature.

Monday's horoscope holds promise of lively conditions and favorable, especially for those in the employment of others, but there is the menace of setback unless the physical condition be kept up to standard. Beware of treachery.

Those whose birthday it is may have a successful year if they care for their health and are on the alert for betrayal by false friends. A child born on this day should be clever and have very good abilities, but may make its best success in the employment of others rather than on its own account.

REAL CLEOPATRA STUFF.

A few evenings ago, Miss Evelyn Laye, who is playing "Cleopatra" at Daly's Theatre, London, had a pretty compliment paid her. It did not take the usual form of flowers or chocolates, either.

A Parision, M. Cartier, saw the play, and was immensely impressed with Miss Laye. It occurred to him that she was worthy of the jewelry actually worn by Cleopatra, and as he possessed some, he decided to lend it to her for one evening. It is not known whether there is any definite proof that the ancient Egyptian queen wore these jewels, but the fact seems to be accepted, and one of the most magnificent jewels was certainly altered from its original Egyptian setting by the Sultan Abdul Hamid.

The jewels valued at $150,000, and were brought to the theatre for the special performance by detectives, and taken away afterwards by an armed escort.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE NATURE'S GLORIES ARE PRESERVED.

The tremendous growth of cities in the United States has inevitably encroached upon the natural beauties and the scenic grandeur of the country. Many of the most beautiful stretches of woodland have been destroyed to make way for the increasing population.

But the Government has taken the matter in hand and has made reservations called national parks, where the beauties of the country may be preserved. One of the most beautiful of these reservations is the famous Yellowstone Park. It is the largest national park, situated on the summit of the Rocky Mountains.

Yellowstone Park is a wilderness, concealing in its depths untold fountains and streams which grow into the large rivers of our country. The centre of the park is about eight thousand feet above the level of the sea.

Riotous colors, all of the deep and harmonious shades of natural scenery, make the park a joy to the eye. There are geysers springing from boiling springs embedded in basins of exquisite colors. There are volcanoes, petrified forests, hills of crystal, of sulphur, of glass, of ashes. None of the phenomena of Nature seems to be missing from this spot of beauty.

The altitude of the park, which varies from six to thirteen thousand feet above sea level, makes it a delightful health resort. It is always cool. The famous Yellowstone Lake, in the centre of the park, is twenty miles long and fifteen miles wide. A rushing river flows from it into that most remarkable formation, the Grand Canyon.

The Grand Canyon Is a Miracle.

The Grand Canyon cannot be described. It is a miracle which our eyes can scarcely comprehend. Every color weaves its shade of glory into the whole. It is the beauty of natural wilderness and overawes the senses of mere man.

The Government protects this spot from any abuse at the hands of tourists. The woods are guarded against fire. The animals that live among the woods are cared for and cherished.

Yellowstone Park is as large and, indeed, larger than many whole kingdoms of the old world. It is one of the glories of the country.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY MEETS A NEW FRIEND.

One day while Dotty was sitting on the bank of the pond near her house, she was startled by a scrambling in the bushes not far from her, and something jumped into the water with a splash.

The little animal soon appeared and crawled out on the bank beside Dotty, holding a fish in his claws.

"Hello, there, Dotty. Did I frighten you?" he laughed, shaking the water from his shiny dark-brown fur coat. "I just spied that fish and I knew if I didn't get him quick I'd lose him. Have a bite?"

"We Feel Safe When Hidden."

"No, thank you," laughed Dotty. "But tell me, who are you and how did you know who I was?"

"I'm Minty Mink," laughed the little fellow. "I couldn't help but know you, for I've lived in your Daddy's pond for a long, long time. I've seen you with Happy Giggles and Squeedee, too, so I wasn't afraid of you. Any friend of theirs is a friend of mine."

"Well, you must like fish," Dotty laughed as Minty Mink devoured the last bit of the fish. "Do you find hunting on land as easy as you found your fish?"

"Well, I don't know," replied Minty Mink. "I'm a good swimmer, but I'm a good hunter on land, too. In the first place, I have two perfectly good ears which I use to good advantage. I'll not take my hat off to anyone when it comes to good hearing, good sight and good scent. If there is food anywhere around and I'm hungry, I'll search it out and capture it. Now, there's my cousin, Biddy Weasel; she hunts and kills more than she can eat. That seems wrong to me. I very seldom kill more than I can eat. She, like a good many fur folks, hunts for the love of the killing, but I never do. Have you met my wife and youngsters yet, Dotty?"

Dotty laughed and shook her head. Do you live around here?"

Minty Mink laughed and led Dotty over to an old stump. There, in the side of the bank in a cozy nest, was Mama Mink and her family of baby minks.

"I've seen you so many times," she greeted Dotty. "But somehow you have never noticed us."

"My goodness, no," said Dotty, patting the babies' heads. "And you've lived here a long time? Don't you ever come out to play?"

"Of course we do," laughed Mama Mink. "We have lived right in this bank for a long, long time. But, you see, folks like our fur so well that we feel safer when we are hidden. I'm mighty glad you came to call on us. I sure hope you won't give our nest away."

"I should say I won't," promised Dotty. "And I'll surely see that no harm comes to you or your family, either," and bidding Mr. and Mrs. Mink and their happy family goodby, Dotty ran on back to the house to tell her mama about their new neighbors.

A LITTLE BOOKLET MOTHERS SHOULD HAVE

It Tells What a Mother Ought to Know For Baby's Sake.

Above all things every mother wishes that her child, or children, whatever their age, may be bright, healthy, good-natured, rosy boys and girls; clear eyed, clear skinned babies; good sleepers, bright wakers. Every mother's wish for her little folks is that they may be well.

It is natural for little folks to be well. No wise mother thinks that her child at any age is in a natural state unless it is well and happy. No mother can expect, though, that the child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to make baby's battles for health easily won.

A valuable little booklet entitled "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness" has been prepared and as it is something every mother should have, on request who will mention this paper by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Nature never spoils its work by being in a hurry.

EGYPTIAN BRIDES FORESTALL DIVORCE

"Look before you leap," is the motto of the brides of Egypt. For, according to Mme. Hoda Charoui, leading feminist of the country of the Nile, the Egyptian wife, with an Oriental eye for business, always stipulates in the marriage contract that a certain amount of money must be paid her in the event of a divorce.

Mme. Chaouri, accompanied by her son Mohamed and Miss Ceza Nabaraw editor of Le Revue Egyptienne, the leading feminist magazine in Egypt, recently arrived in Washington to visit her son-in-law, M. Sammy Pasha, the Egyptian minister.

"Divorce is a necessity, but hasty divorces must be avoided. Therefore we do our best to make divorce both expensive and troublesome," explained Mme. Charoui.

CITY OF ST. THOMAS IS FAMOUS OVER CONTINENT FOR FLOWERS

New York Paper Gives Space to a Long Article.

PRAISES DR. BENNETT.

Gives Him Credit as Being Responsible For Beauty of City.

So much has Dr. Bennett and horticulture done to advertise the City of St. Thomas that the New York Herald Tribune gives the following article space in a recent issue. It can be read with profit by Peterborough citizens, many of whom through the Horticultural Society have done splendid service to this city and it might induce others to participate in the work of making Peterborough still further a beauty place an a well worth community in which to live.

The picturesque little city of St. Thomas, in the province of Ontario, Canada, has gained international distinction from two sources, says "The Dearborn Independent." One is the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, the largest organization of its kind on the North American Continent; the other is Dr. Frank E. Bennett, the president of the society. The two are synonymous.

Speak to an Ontarian about the society and ten to one he will say: "Oh yes, that's Dr. Bennett's organization!" or refer to Dr. Bennett and you'll receive the response: "Sure, I know him! He's the head of the St. Thomas Horticultural Society." The affinity between the organization and the organizer has existed for fifteen years and together they have gained for St. Thomas the title of "The Flower City of Canada."

Dr. Bennett is as well known in Canada's banner province as its Premier and in the United States he is perhaps better known— and all through his horticultural activities. He is a tireless worker and a supreme optimist, often described as "a man who thinks, talks, dreams and acts florally." A dentist by profession, for years he has sacrificed his profession, that he might devote his time and energy to civic beautification and the advancement of horticulture in all its branches. Almost single-handed he has developed the St. Thomas society from a few dozen amateur gardeners to an organization of over 3,000 active members with an annual revenue of nearly $25,000.

Heads Gladiola Society.

In appreciation of this flower-idealist's efforts, the executives of the American Gladiolus Society made him their president. He was the first Canadian to fill that office. The largest gladiolus nybridizer in California recently named one of his latest and finest creations, "Dr. Bennett", while the Dominion Department of Agriculture has recognized his ability and worth by designating the society's extensive gardens in St. Thomas as official trial grounds. There thousands of varieties of gladioli, irises and other flowers are grown each year, and in August and September those grounds are the mecca for floriculturists from miles around.

It is in his native city that Dr. Bennett has achieved the most remarkable results. St. Thomas is a railroad center, the Canadian divisional point of three big American roads. The average railroad city is not usually a thing of beauty and a joy forever, and St. Thomas ten years ago, was in every sense of the word an average railroad city. The environments of the yards were largely ugly waste spaces, the repositories of rubbish. Today those unsightly places have entirely disappeared.

Blooms Hide Cinders.

A wide expanse in front of one depot on the main business street that was a sand lot for years and years is a lovely little park, with cinder walks meandering through the shrubbery. Paralleling the railroad tracks that dissect the city, north and south and east and west, are miles of velvet lawn, dotted with orderly flower beds and shaded by tall maples. Where the buildings adjoining the tracks are disorderly, high ornamental fences have been erected, flanked by thousands of flowering shrubs. One thoroughfare that bore the title "Railway Street" had the name changed to "Princess Avenue." It is now one of the show streets of the city.

Dr. Bennett received his inspiration to engage in this line of civic endeavor at a convention in Rochester many years ago. Stretched across the convention hall was a huge banner flauting the words of the late Elbert Hubbard—"Do Nothing, Say Nothing, Be Nothing."

"My resolve to devote more of my energies to public service," said Dr. Bennett, "found expression in horticulture. I have always loved flowers. When I am among them I have better and nobler thoughts. I saw in them the immeasurable medium through which I could brighten lives. If flowers had an elevating effect on me, if they dispelled pessimism and made me see how beautiful the old world really is, would they not have the same effect on others? I asked, for in the final analysis human natures are very much alike.

"My deductions proved correct. Horticulture is a common meeting ground, through which men get to know each other better. It creates enthusiasm, an appreciation of the beautiful and a civic pride, and in doing that it can't help but make better citizens."

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

"At a time like this," he declared, "the Conservatives with one accord cry 'The Government's wrong. It's all the fault of the Government.' In reality the government has nothing to do with falling prices, but the people themselves are to blame for lack of foresight in planning business to contend with any possible exigency."

The thing for the party to do, he continued, was to educate the people above this narrow limit of thought, and lead them to accept existing conditions, knowing that improvement will follow. Mr. Deyell illustrated his contention in citing an example provided by a shoe manufacturer who had built up a small business before the outbreak of the war. Inflated by the heavy production demand created in war time his business attained an abnormal growth which shank rapidly after the armistice was signed. The manufacturer had not prepared for this retraction and as a consequence, in an abortive endeavor to maintain production his business failed.

Mr. Deyell stated that Peterboro citizens had always been boosting Gordon; "both Liberals and Conservatives have been boosting him—are you going to let him down now when he has attained to a position that will enable him to make direct returns in service for the support which you can give?"

With this stirring appeal the chairman concluded his remarks.

Hon. G. N. Gordon.

In defense of the Immigration policy which he had promulgated after the portfolio had been allotted, Mr. Gordon maintained that intensive farming methods could be used to profit on thousands of acres in the County of Peterborough—acres which were barren because the farms were inadequately supplied with labor. The speaker predicted that were the Liberal party returned to power "as it will be, that policy will be pursued, and provisions will be made for ascertaining where such useless lands are available, and steps will be taken to place them under profitable cultivation."

Mr. Burnham had requested an insight into Mr. Gordon's attitude toward Prohibition. Everyone knew Mr. Burnham's view, the speaker said; his idea of proper saturation would be to have each street corner equipped with a barrel and dipper. Mr. Gordon declared that in his opinion the country was sufficiently supplied with distilleries and breweries.

Evidences of prosperity were witnessed by Mr. Gordon when he was on a campaign trip to the Border Cities. Windsor, he said was humming with activity, motivated by the huge western crop, "a harvest of wealth garnered from the top six inches of soil—a crust which is fully capable of providing the same or increased results next year, should the weather be suitable.

Meighen's Policy.

Press reports which indicated that the Conservative leader would erect a tariff bar against coal from the United States, were viewed with concern, by Mr. Gordon.

If this plan was put into force, said the speaker, it would necessitate the carrying of Albertan coal for a distance of 1,500 miles as against the comparatively short distance of three hundred miles from the Pennsylvania field. The coal secured would be of an inferior quality while the price would soar to heights above the level of the average purse.

With an announcement that the Hon. Charles Murphy would be present in a few days for the purpose of speaking of campaign issues, Mr. Gordon concluded his remarks.

John Dewart

"It is a heartening thing to see the young men take the interest which they are showing in this campaign. In order to get good government the business of the country must be carefully studied. By doing so it is possible to select men who will best represent those interests. We must have an intelligent electorate supporting the right men.

"One might ask, 'Why are there Liberals?' or 'Why are there Conservative ' As a matter of fact I have often wonderful why people were Conservatives." Thus Mr. Dewart launched into his subject.

He submitted that the Conservative party catered to the leading financial interests while opposed to them were the Liberals who fought for the masses of the people. "As I am one of the mass and not a big financial interest then it is up to me to fight for the Liberal party," he stated.

Harking back to the life of Canada as an infant, Mr. Dewart reminded his hearers of the situation which caused the proposal, and subsequent adoption of the national policy. Immediately prior to 1896 hard times were rampant in Canada, horses were practically worthless while wheat sold at 40 cents a bushel so it was conceivable that the farmer led a meagre existence. Then in 1896 Sir Wilfred Laurier came into power with Clifford Sifton as Immigration Minister. During his administration thousands of immigrants poured into the country and a home market thus created. That parallel, however, did not apply as well to present conditions as the national debt now is billions when in those days it amounted to just a few millions.

Industries grew then, continued the speaker, the cities grew and Laurier did not interfere with the tariff. While the development of the West was dimly conceived there was the difficulty of procuring a suitable market. The logical answer was the United States with its swiftly increasing population. Then it was that Laurier designed and proposed the Reciprocity treaty which, Mr. Dewart averred, was the greatest move ever evolved for Canadian prosperity.

"Conservatives immediately invented the slogan — No Truck or Trade with the Yankee—and circulated their insidious publicity which turned hundred of thousands against the best interests of the country," he said. Following this the Conservatives were handed the reins and during the year previous to the opening of the war times appeared to become slightly harder again.

However, the war spurred industry largely because many producers automaticaly became consumers. War years, according to the speaker, were characterized by the reckless indulgence of the government which misspent millions of dollars at a time when conservation methods should have been employed.

In the fall of 1920 the great collapse came — unemployment was rife in the cities and bread lines were common agencies to prevent starvation— the winters of 1920 and 1921 were the most severe as regards financial worry which the country had ever experienced.

Sir Henry Drayton who was finance minister at the time has a solution for every ill now but his contribution towards solving the problem then, as embodied in his speech at the House of Commons, was to the effect that there was a great task but that the sun still shone, "as if," commented Dr. Dewart, "the sun's rays could lead one to any definite conclusion regarding living costs and the employment solution.."

Another speaker at the time supplemented this by a statement to the effect that the working man could not expect employment when the manufacturers are insolvent; the cause for insolvency was not only the fact that workmen were exorbitantly paid but were not doing a real day's work and that a period of depression would be essential to cure them. At the time there was no proopsal to raise the tariff, said Mr. Dewart.

King in Power

When the King Government took control in 1922 the country didn't show any immediate sign of improvement but today after for years of Liberal legislation the Canadian dollar is the only unit above par which fact might used as a fairly accurate barometer of national prosperity.

Mr. Dewart declared that the trade balance was improved as goods sold to the United States now approximates goods purchased while the trade balance for world trade is vastly advantageous to Canada. The Canadian National financial standing is greatly improved and industries are thriving as was graphically illustrated by a news despatch which indicated that more men were now on the pay-rall af the International Harvester Company than at any other time in the past four years.

As regards foreign trade it is essential that relations be maintained with other countries. Canadians cannot utilize the wheat crop and if Canada is to sell the surplus it must accordingly buy goods to maintain a compensating equilibrium.

Mr. Dewart pointed out that when Laurier proposed his Reciprocity pact the Conservatives refused to give it consideration but formulated the British preference scheme. Lately a treaty had been effected ebtween Canada and Australia but the Peck platform had been decrying that pact as ruinous. The speaker said he "would like to know who Conservatives did want to trade with."

With a tribute to the candidate Hon. G. N. Gordon, the speaker concluded his address.

Wilfred Huycke

An unsigned letter had stated that Mr. Gordon had done nothing but boost himself. Mr. Huycke cited seevral instances which were intended as proof of the fact that the assertion was erroneous. A tribute was paid regarding the candidates readiness to exercise his authority in aiding soldiers who had suffered during the war.

Mr. Huycke said that in a way he agreed with Meighen his policy of high protection. It developed that the tariff referred to by the speaker was one calculated to bar the entrance of time worn American campaign jokes.

The meeting closed with cheers for the candidate and the Premier.

National Advertisers Fool Themselves

when they fail to appreciate the fact that it is the small city daily which really reaches the firesides of Ontario.

For intimate family circulation, the small city daily has no substitute. Every evening all over Ontario hundreds of thousands of people read of the doings of themselves and their friends in their own city papers.

In Peterboro, for instance, all outside papers put together do not total more than a very small percentage of the Peterboro Examiner's circulation. The outside papers are taken mostly by politicians, by men interested in certain stocks, etc. A recent survey shows that over 50 per cent. are left in the office,—not taken home at all. "I do not open my big city paper except when I wish to see certain stock quotations," said a prominent Peterboro man on July 15. "I find everything in the Examiner," said another. "My family never look at any other paper but the Examiner," said a third,

"Sometimes I like to read an editorial in the ————, and I take it home, but the paper the family want is the Peterboro Examiner. The wife actually makes the privilege of seeing it first a reward of merit among the children."

These conditions obtain to a greater or less extent throughout Ontario.

The Small City Daily Is the Fireside Paper

These small city dailies have intimate knowledge of the market conditions in their centres, and can give a sales co-operation not otherwise available. Manufacturers can get a close-up of every section in Ontario through them. Don't fire with a blunderbus any more!

Look at the way the Fireside Dailies of Ontario cover the Province, except Kingston, all are one-paper cities:

NEW CANADIAN INSURANCE COMBINATION TO INCREASE SCOPE OF OPERATIONS

TORONTO, Oct. 10 —Official announcement is made of the most important step recorded in the Canadian Insurance field for some years, the effect of which is that a new combination has been formed, which will mean considerable enlargement of the volume of business transacted by purely Canadian corporations. Heretofore, the great bulk of the fire and casualty business has been handled by British and foreign companies, but it is hoped that a larger volume can be secured by a stronger group of Canadian companies, better able, by reduced costs of operation, to meet competition in their own fields.

This has been brought about by the purchase of a controlling interest in the Merchants and Employers Insurance Company of Montreal by interests identified with the Toronto Casualty, Fire and Marine Insurance Company, a strong group of Quebec, Montreal and Toronto men being associated in the transaction, including Mr. J. H. Fortier, President of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, and a prominent business and financially man of the City of Quebec with interest scattered over the whole Province. This will in effect be a combination in operation of three companies. The Toronto Casualty was first organized; the Canadian General Insurance Company was added later and now the Merchants and Employers is brought into the combination through the present transaction

The latter company was organized in 1913 under Dominion Government charter with Head Office in Montreal and has confined its operations mainly to the Provinceof Quebec. Additional capital is to be put into the company which will enable it to extend the scope of its operations over the entire Canadian field instead of a restricted area as in the past. The combined surplus to policy-holders in these companies will amount to over $400000,00 and an immediate premium income of over $1,000,000,00 per annum.

Smelters advanced during the session to 146 1-2 then eased at the close to 145 1-2, a gain of a point and a half.

Heavy Buying Boosts Prices Wide List Of Shares Dealt In

NEW YORK Oct. 10 (Canadian Press)—Stock prices swept forward under another avalanche of buying orders in today's brief session of the stock market. Motor and accessory issues wee bid up sharply at the expense of an overcrowded short interest and group strength also developed for public utility and merchandising shares. Speculative belief that coming gold shipments assure the continuation of easy money rates and the expectations of steadily increasing trade until after the holiday season influence the buying movement.

HANDLING GRAIN RECORDS BROKEN

BARLEY EXPORT .

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Oct. 9.—(Canadian Press). —The report of E. A. Ursell, statistician to the board of grain commissioners, on the September movement of Western Canada grain crops, says the very favorable weather conditions of the later part of August continuing through the greater part September throughout Western Canada enabled harvesting operations to be continued at full speed. With the result that marketings and movements from country points to the Lake head terminals have eclipsed all previous record for the month. On two days in succession the totals unloaded at Fort William-Port Arthur exceeded all previous records for a single day's unloading, the new highest being 2,484 cars, with net contents of 3,492,247 bushels of all grains.

Towards the end of the month cold wet weather with snow in some districts caused a complete cessation of harvesting operations and much grain stocked but unthrashed, is in danger of damage by the soaking it received. Bad roads have seriously hampered marketing at country points also, cutting deliveries by almost one-half.

The grading of the new crop now indicates more of number two Northern wheat than of any other grade. up to September 30, 43,644; cars of new wheat had been inspected, of which 36,696, or 84.1 per cent graded into contract grades as follows: 1 hard, 72; 1 Northern 18,205; 2 Nor. 12 682; 3 Nor. 5,737. One Northern was then in the lead but a very marked falling off in the proportion in that grade has since taken place. A year ago new wheat inspections up to September 30, totalled 12,733 cars, of which 10,559, or 82.9 per cent graded 3 Northern or better.

Some features connected with the early movement of the new crop noted in the report are the large quantities of barley which have been received at and shipped from the Lake terminals and the increase in the volume of Canadian grain moved via Duluth. This port received:

More barley has been received at the head of the lakes already than in whole seasons prior to the last five years and the fact that a large proportion has already been exported suggest that there will be no difficulty in disposing of the remaining surplus.

BUTTER MARKET.

The receipts of butter were 2,675 packages, as compared with 3,561 for the same day last week, and 7,433 for the corresponding day a year ago There was no important change in the condition of the market, business being reported quiet in all directions, but as there was no pressure on the part of holders the undertone was steady.

WARKWORTH FAIR CARRIED ON DESPITE DRIVING SNOW STORM

Crowd Was Good, Although Not as Good as in Former Years.

CLOSE RACES.

Farm Exhibits Were Plentiful and of Good Quality.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, Oct. 10.—Warkworth fair directors have established a new record and made another bid for fame. So far as heard from no other fair board in Ontario have conducted an exhibition in a snow storm as they did at their annual show held Friday. In their advertisement the directors claim that while they may not be the richest nor yet the biggest association they are absolutely the best. No other association of the kind in the Province could carry on in the face of the wing of a western blizzard and smile through it all, neither discomfited nor dismayed. There was a great crowd on hand in spite of the unfavourable weather conditions but nothing like what there would have been if atmospheric conditions had been different. W. H. Nelson, the treasurer of the society, carried the gate receipts to the bank but did not have the heart to count the money in his satchel and the total will not be known until today. Mr. Nelson, however, has tuition and he believes that the amount taken in yesterday would not exceed $1,000 as compared with an average of between $1,500 and $1,600 in former years.

The Warkworth fair board is not without justification in tooting its own horn occasionally. Every member of it is a live wire. When they set out to do anything their lexicon contains no such word as fail. They have the best set of fair buildings of any town of its size in Central Ontario. Their grounds are in good shape, their prize list is generous and every care is taken to provide for the comfort of their patrons. They spend more for advertising than any of their class in Ontario, and recognize the press representatives, to whom they accord every courtesy, as their best allies. All their buildings are complete from the horse barns where the racers are sheltered to the pens for hogs and sheep. All that they lack is a building for poultry which is now shown in tents. The big cattle barn yesterday was packed with dairy and beef cattle of all breeds, as comfortably houses, fed and bedded as they would have been in their own stables.

The Horse Races.

Horse races at a fall fair in a snow storm are certainly a novelty. With a little more snow yesterday and a few degrees of additional frost the owners of horses might have changed the vehicles that carried the drivers and converted the contests into ice races. Still the track was not in bad condition and considering the temperature good time was made.

George Kingsley Still on Deck.

For the last decade George H. Kingsley has been known to declare that he loves a quiet and peaceful life and will retire from the position of starting horses in a race but every time there is an event of the kind in Warkworth he is on duty, as urbane as ever, just as inclined to give all contestants a fair show from the pole horse to the outsider, reason with the drivers, to keep the spectators in good humor, and to admit his own mistakes on the rare occasions that he makes an error of judgment. Mr. Kingsley was the starting judge yesterday and his confereres in the stand were S. Bennett of Port Hope and J. P. Richards of Cobourg, judges; E. J. Baird, of Port Hope and J. C. Anderson of Campbellford, timers, and J. Nelson Stone of Campbellford, clerk.

Rex Hal in Action.

Rex Hal, the blue tinted pacer, recently purchased by Charles Armstrong, of Havelock, and driven by Jimmy Sutherland of Peterboro', was seen here for the first time and so much had been heard of his distinguished lineage, that the was the chief centre of interest in his class, the 2.40 race. He won this in straight heats without being pushed, the best time for the three-quarters of a mile, twice around the Warkworth track, being 212 1-2.

Mack R., the other pacer belonging to Mr. Armstrong, the horse that has won so many events this year, had an off day yesterday, probably owing to the storm, winning only third money in the 2.30 race, but in two heats, coming far from behind to a bunched position with the leaders, he showed fine bursts of speed. The following is a summary of the three races:

2.18 Race.

Peter Direct, George Cowell, Port Hope	1	1	1
Jim Todd, Jr., Ed. Jones, Peterboro'	3	2	2
Bob, Ed. Jones, Peterboro'	2	3	3
Viola Belle, R. Turley, Frankford	4	4	4

2.30 Race.

Daisy McKenzie, James Thorne, Colborne	1	1	1
Irene Hal, Frank Montgomery, Peterboro'	2	2	3
Mark R, Charles Armstrong, Havelock	3	4	2
S. Winger, S. Blewett, Peterboro'	4	3	4
Babe Direct, Art. Elmhurst, Indian River	5	5	5

2.40 Race.

Rex Hal, Charles Armstrong, Havelock	1	1	1
Si Mack, S. Harrison, Frankford	2	2	2
Butcher Girl, Stacey, Wooler	3	3	3

In this race, Bourbon Boy and Capt. Brian, after finishing fourth and fifth, respectively, in the first heat, were drawn.

The School Competition.

A special event was the cash prizes offered for competition among the nine winners of the parade the school fair held in the county of Northumberland this year. Of those eligible, five were here yesterday, these winning in the following order.—

1—S.S. No. 3 and 29, Percy and Brighton, known as the White School, Miss Jennie Dillworth, teacher.

2—S.S. No. 12, Murray, Miss Margaret Teal, teacher.

4—S.S. No. 22, Cramahe (Castleton School), Allan Aird, teacher.

5—S.S. No. 21, Haldimand (Burnley School), Miss Baker, teacher.

The pupils of the prize-winning school, in keeping with the name of their institution, were dressed in white, decorated with black and yellow ribbon. Earl Fariman, too, had his pupils in cashmere, but, owing to the cold weather, he allowed them to go into the parade wearing their outer wraps, so that the effect of the uniform was lost.

In the Cattle Barn.

There was considerable rivalry in the cattle barn between those two well-known breeders of Holsteins, R. Honey and A. F. Ward, both of Dartford, especially as to the merits of the herd sire of each exhibitor. Mr. Honey's bull was given the red ticket, and he secured a number of prizes for the other 17 head of cattle he had on the ground.

Garnet Kerr, who resides in Seymour, near Campbellford, showed 14 Jerseys and won 11 first and four second prizes. His brother, Thomas, who specializes in Ayrshires, with 16 exhibits, won five first, six seconds and three third prizes.

John Doherty, of Brickley, with nine Durhams, took six firsts, two seconds and the special for the best dairy herd of that breed.

A Sweep in Ayrshires.

F. M. Rutherford, of Bonar Law, one of the youngest breeders of Ayrshires in the district, and one of the most successful, made a clean sweep in his class. He had only five of his herd here yesterday, but with these he won five firsts and two specials. One of the specials was the prize offered by Don W. Douglas of Campbellford for the best herd of Ayrshires and the other was for the best calf, of any breed, under 8 months old. Mr. Rutherford regards the latter as the best prize he won yesterday as the competition was open to all other classes.

So far this year at the different fairs, Mr. Rutherford has won 59 firsts, 37 seconds and 19 thirds, besides three championships, and two silver cups.

"The Poultry King."

James Coyle, who resides near Warkworth, who has been styled the poultry king of Percy, had 27 entries yesterday, including White Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds and Barred Plymouth Rocks. His score with these exhibits were: 23 first, 10 second and four third prizes, besides a number of specials.

W. J. Abernethy, of Campbellford, with birds of a different type, was equally successful.

Winner From Hilton.

W. J. Lawson, of R. R. No. 1, Hilton, won first prizes for horses and vegetables, the latter including seven premiums for citrons. Mr. Lawson has been a winner at seven fairs this years, taking four firsts and two seconds for horses at Campbellford this week.

No Prize For Cabbage.

S. P. Terrill, of Wooler, who made the circuit of the fall fairs, winning in every class he entered, failed for the first time yesterday to get anything for his 18-pound cabbage. He was as successful as ever in the classes for grains and seeds and Mrs. Terrill won second prizes for fancy work.

Dr. J. H. Hess, of Hastings, offered a special prize of $5.00 for the best specimen of grain but through some misunderstanding the directors awarded this in the vegetable department. The mistake was rectified yesterday and Dr. Hess' special went to Mr. Terrill.

Won Examiner Special.

With his pair of splendidly matched and groomed Clydes, W. J. Ross of Meyersburg, first won the society's prize and then captured The Examiner $5 special for the best heavy team.

Pigs Are Still Rung.

George Hutchinson, superintendent of the exhibit of pigs, has scored again. Hogs at the Warkworth fair are still "rung," instead of "ringed." There has been a long standing dispute between Mr. Hutchinson and his fellow directors, as to which is the correct term but the stickler for the proper use of the English language has been permitted to take his syntaxical way.

Notes of the Fair.

Police Chief John Brown, of Campbellford, was on duty here yesterday and for once the directors had an officer who was able without undue exercise of authority, to keep the crowd off the race track during the various heats.

The Junior Band of the Salvation Army, Peterborough, under the leadership of Commandant Smith, furnished excellent music, which was much appreciated.

Owen Hindy, the 13-year-old horse expert of Seymour, equally at home in a saddle or vehicle, got third in the riding class yesterday.

Their First Snow Storm.

In the 96 successful years of its hustory, the Percy Agricultural Society has remembered come bad weather, but the record was broken yestezday, when snow fell on the celebration. Mr. J. Baker, one of the oldest visitors at the Fair yesterday, recalled that 14 years ago rain fell all day, so that it was impossible to carry on. That night it started to snow and the ground next morning was coated with six inches of the beautiful.

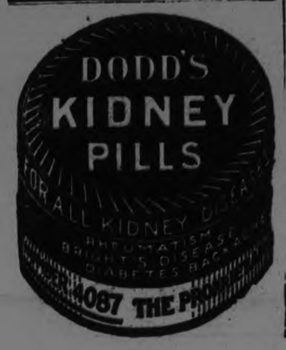
That was in the days of the open bar, and the crowd, disappointed in seeing a fair, gathered in the local barrooms and, abandoning themselves to hilarity, set a new pace for community blowouts.

Moral results followed this lapse. A few months later, Percy township was voted into the dry column, the bars were closed in May and never since the historical occasion referred to has liquor been openly sold at a fall fair.

The receipts fell off yesterday while the expenses were as high as ever but no public institution is ever allowed to go by the boards for lack of support in Percy Township. Warkworth Fair directors will be rather more virile than ever next year.

Politicians on the Ground.

Milton E. Maybee and F. J. Slade rival political candidates for Parliament, and Sam Clarke, M.L.A., of Cobourg were among the crowd, the two former busy meeting old and making new friends and the latter as placid and urbane as only the man who has enjoyed the confidence of the electorate for a quarter of a century can possibly be.



THEY TAKE THEIR CHOICE

"Suppose the University of Toronto were entitled to return a member to the House of Commons, as was originally intended, how many graduates would vote?" This is the question which the alumni federation of the University of Toronto is asking every graduate through the University Monthly. Under the direction of Alex. Gibson, director of the alumni association, a "straw" vote is being taken, balloting being upon two questions: "Do you favor the continuance of office and the policy of Mackenzie King?" and "Do you favor the policy of Arthur Meighen?" "There is nothing of political significance in the fact that we are sounding our graduates," said Mr. Gibson. Above are shown pen and ink sketches of Premier King and Mr. Meighen, which adorn the alumni questionnaire.

LAZINESS CAUSED MANY INVENTIONS

Nobel Prize Winner as Youth Prepared Coffee While Sleeping.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 10.—(Associated Press).—Difficulty in awakening and his fondness for a cup of hot coffee in bed, were two factors that led Dr. Gustaf Dalen, winner of the 1912 Nobel prize, to become a successful inventor.

Dr. Dalen as a boy, living in a humble country home, was required to arise early, but he found it hard to awaken on time. A discarded old wall-clock was repaired to which was added an alarm mechanism with a piece of tinplate taking the place of the bell. He combined the clockwork with a little friction wheel covered with emery paper that began to rotate 15 minutes before the alarm went off. Friction against the rough surface of the paper lighted a match.

The match was attached to a rod that swung over a gasoline lamp, the cap of which was simultaneously removed by another contrivance constructed from a couple of empty wooden spools and a piec of string. Over the lamp he had placed a coffee urn containing coffee prepared the night before. When the slumbers of the little inventor, then 14 years of age, were interrupted by the alarm going off the room was lighted and his coffee was boiling.

It was during Dr. Dolen's experiments with gas accumulators for beacon lights that he lost his sight through an explosion. His inventive genius, however, did not seem to suffer as he has since then given the world a number of new inventions and still continues to direct the work of his plant in spite of his blindness.

Over one hundred were in attendance. Games and music and cards, with service of light refreshments, were the order of the eevning. The prize for cards was won by Miss Marguerite LeFave.

WOMAN ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Taken From Moncton to Roberal, Quebec, to Stand Trial.

MONCTON, N.B., Oct. 10—(Canadian Press). — Charged with the murder of her husband at Aylmerville, Que., in August last, Mrs. Abraham Gollop, a woman about 40 years of age, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Sergeant J. Harris, of the local police, at the instance of Provincial Detectives Alfred Poussin and C. H. Michaud, of Quebec, the warrant being issued by the Attorney-General's Department of Quebec. The Quebec officers left with their prisoner for Roberval, Que., where the trial will take place.

CHINESE CHIEF ASKS CESSATION OF WAR

Civil Contention Should Cease in Order to Face Foreign Insults.

PEKING, Oct. 10. — (United Press). — Civil struggle should be suspended forthwith in China in order "to face the foreign insults" and defend the country against the outside foe, Tang Chi-yao, tupan of the province of Yunnan, declares in a circular telegram sent to other provincial leaders and to Peking officials.

In view of the fact that more than five civil wars of varying importance are being waged in China even in the present "quiet period," Tupan Tang's advice is considered of some weight.

"Since the establishment of the Republican Government, wars and fighting have been torturing the people and the country," says the telegram. "Though the authorities of the different sides may have different principles, at any rate they are ruining and wrecking the nation."

Tang points out that the fighting in Yunnan is of course much different, being waged to protect the Government and preserve the constitution, after which statement he continues:

"At present, since all in the country are insisting on defending against insults from outside, it is useless to speak instead of acting. It is suggested that the movement be started from his province.

"The troops at the front have accordingly been ordered to return to the original defence areas as soon as possible. Instead of using the troops to fight and do harm to their fellow citizens, it is hoped that they will be put under such training as to make them useful in defending the country."

TAX REDUCTION IS CHIEF ISSUE AVERS BRETHEN

Tariff Question Introduced Merely as Subject For Debate, He Declares.

FIRST ESSENTIAL.

To Send to Ottawa Men Who Put Country Before Party.

APSLEY, October 10. — The first shot in the election campaign in this sector was fired by G. A. Brethen, the Progressive candidate for Peterboro-Hastings riding, in St. George's Institute, here ,on Thursday evening.

The meeting was billed to be held in the town hall, but owing to there being no seating accommodation Mr. Brethen asked for the use of St. George's Institute, which Mr. Spence kindly granted.

About 50 people were present when Mrs. Hawkes, who was voted to the chair, introduced Mr. Brethen in a brief speech, in which she emphasized the importance of everyone being interested in the political questions of the day.

G. A. Brethen.

Mr. Brethen in opening, said he was here for two purposes: one was to conduct an election campaign, and the other, which was the more important, to report on his four years' work at Ottawa.

He dealt first with the redistribution, and the change in the riding, and knowing that the change was contrary to the wishes of the electors of East Peterboro, opposed it strongly in the House of Commons, but it went through, because "party" was put first. Members voted for it, not because they knew it was right, but because it was a party question.

"Party means," said the speaker, "that you can't vote as you think right." "We are faced in this election," he continued, with two policies, that of Mr. Meighen, who would make Canada more prosperous, by building bigger cities and toyns, and the Liberal policy of making Canada truly and permanently prosperous by removing every handicap from the four basic industries, farming, lumbering, mining and fisheries. By reducing taxation these industries would be made more prosperous. Prosperity that would last must be built on a permanent foundation. Meighen would build cities and towns by taxing the rest of Canada, a policy that will not be accepted by Canada. It would disunite and divide Canada into several sections. As an illustration of Meighen"s policy the Ford Motor Car Co. was induced to manufature cars in Canada, a policy that looked good on the surface. Windsor, Ford City, Oshawa, benefited no doubt, but everyone buying a Ford car has had to pay $110 to $200 more than they would pay across the line. The Ford Co. made 13 million dollars in three years. Of this it paid 9 million in wages, and 2 millions in taxes. It simply meant the government saying to Henry Ford: "We can pay all your wages, all your taxes, and give you 2 million dollars every 3 years." This illustrates the policy that Meighen would extend to other industries and make Canada prosperous thereby.

Tariff not an Issue.

Tariff is not an issue in this election. It is only brought out every four years because it is a good subject for debate. We hear no more of it after the election. It has been talked about for 50 years, and only slight changes have been made. The real issue of this election is the reduction of taxation. Canada is the fourth most highly taxed country in the world. France, in spite of the tremendous cost of the great war, is not taxed so highly as Canada, and the U. S. only half. Why Canada has not reduction of taxation is because there is no leader. There will be no reduction in Canada until Parliament has enough members who are more concerned about the welfare of Canada than they are about the welfare of their own party at election time. That is the curse of parties. There is only one way to reduce taxation—stop spending.

Pulpwood Embargo.

The speaker then dealt with the pulp industry and the embargo.

Quoting from Hansard he gave Mr. Meighen's reply to Mr. Carvel on June 2 when he was asked "Would he advocate prohibition of the export of pulp from privately owned lands?" "Certainly," said Mr. Meighen, "What I apply to one man I apply to another." "That means," said Mr. Brethen, "the pulpwood you own, you will not be allowed to sell, except to Canadians. If Mr. Meighen is put into power that's what he will do about pulpwood."

DEATH RAY SOUGHT BY MANY INVENTORS

Plan for Stopping Airplane Magnets Given Consideration.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(United Press).—Stuck away in amateur laboratories here and throughout Europe, enthusiasts are busy trying to perfect a "Death Ray" that will actually kill.

One such ray "invented" here some time back killed a dog. Another killed a cow. Both manifestations, however, failed to bring wealth and fame to the respective inventors, because it was proved that the animals died from other causes than the "ray."

In case of the dog the inventor prepared his Death Ray which involved a considerable amount of power. He arranged the source of his ray near the focus of a huge concave reflecting mirror. At a distance of 20 feet the dog was held in chains, so that the emergy of the Death Ray was concentrated on him.

After about an hour—the dog was dead, baked to death in the terrific glow of the search light.

The cow, investigators ascertained later, was killed dead enough, but not from the mysterious "Death Ray."

The inventor had rigged up secret electric wires and electrocuted the creature by merely pressing a hidden button.

Both these episodes go hand in hand with the famous case of a continental inventor who claimed to have discovered a ray to be used for blowing up a battleship.

A claim of this nature could not be completely ignored by the British Admiralty to whom the suggestion was made. The inventor was offered a test and the Admiralty provided a ship to be destroyed.

The offered test apparently proved too severe, for it was never carried out, and the inventor quietly disappeared from this country

He next tried to give some form of demonstration abroad. The Admiral in charge of the tests there imposed similar severe conditions, with promise of great reward if successful, but penalties if unsuccessful. Again the inventor disappeared.

Most recently the character of the supposed Death Rays has changed. The most frequent suggestion put forward is to stop the engines of airplanes, and thus put the airplane out of action.

The principal method is to stop the magneto from functioning. In some way energy is to be directed to the airplane in the form of electro-magnetic waves. If sufficient energy is directed, and if it is in the correct form, it is quite conceivable that a magneto can be stopped.

On the first rumor that another Death Ray has been discovered, all Europe is roused to excitement.

There have been so many marvels of science in the last thirty years that the public mind is ready to believe that science can achieve practically anything, but there is no scientist of any distinction who will be stirred by the rumor of a Death Ray consisting of radiations of any form, the experts say.

WHY DOESN'T HE LET HIS OWN GROW?

Nineteen girls entered the contest held at Thorold Fair to discover the best head of unbobbed hair in the district. The two winners are shown above. Eleven-year-old Gertrude Wallace of Thorold, with her fair and wavy tresses, won the first prize of $10, donated by J. H. Thompson, editor of the Thorold Post and originator of the contest. Thirteen-year-old Irene Grant, who is a brunet, came second. The judges in making their decision considered not only the length, but also the texture and general beauty of the hair. Many of the contestants confessed that the only reason they had not followed the prevailing fashion was because their parents would not permit them to have their hair bobbed or shingled. Three Thorold girls upon whom this parental prohibition had not been laid are seen watching the judging with manifest delight. In commenting upon the reasons which had led him to hold the contest, Editor Thompson, who recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding, said: "I am opposed to bobbed hair on principle. If I had a thousand daughters not one would have bobbed hair. The Creator made it that way and I am in favor of leaving it that way."

Pup Population Pained As Patrons Park Pets Apart

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (United Press).—The rapidly increasing dog population of New York has forced restaurant owners here to make drastic regulations governing men and women who eat out with their pets. From now on, the Society of Restauranteur decided, no canines will be allowed in public dining rooms of its members.

Patrons who insist on taking their pets to dinner with them will have to check them at "checking kennels," just as mothers leave their children in nurseries in Department stores.

Mattress Is Prescribed To Cure Mysterious Malady

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(United Press).—Thousands of Londoners are sick with a mysterious malady that none of the doctors have been able as yet to diagnose.

The symptoms of the sickness are a sore throat, throbbing headache, general lassitude and a low temperature. The unknown germ appears to enter through the nose or mouth attacking first the throat and next the nervous system.

There have been no deaths to date from it, but doctors throughout the city and especially in the poorer section have been swamped with patients suffering from the malady.

The medical order is: "Go to bed at once, and stay there until the danger is passed."

ADVICE TO GIRLS
By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and am very much worried. I have been going with two boys. I think lots of both of them.

Both boys object to me going with the other. I don't know which one loves me more. They both want me to marry them. Please advise me what to do. BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: Marriage should be founded on mutual love, my dear. It should make very little difference to you which young man loves you more. What is important is this: Which do you love? Only you can answer that—and, consequently, only you can decide which to choose. But it, on the other hand, you merely admire both these young men and love does not enter into the relationship at all, continue your friendship with both. Since you are not engaged, it is your privilege to do so—and you must convince them of this.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens. I do not dance or go out much. Of course, most of my friends do. The young man I love does these things and he wants me to learn how to dance.

Do you think he should give up dancing or should I learn how?

B. F.

B. F.: Dancing is no longer considered one of the ten greatest evils, my dear. It is a social art which should be on the list of accomplishments of every modern girl. And it is a form of expression which is health-giving and graceful. Learn to dance, my dear, and you will realize why most people enjoy it so much. Incidentally it will serve as a bond between you and the young man in question. You can really have such good times together if you are both fond of dancing.

English Censors Blanket Uncle Tom's Cabin Slaves

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(United Press). — "Liza," "Topsy," "Uncle Tom" and all the slave girls of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" fame have been rescued from disaster quite as tragic as ever threatened the original characters of the famous story. And they have been rescued by blankets.

On the eve of the presentation in London of a musical version of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the censor withdrew the license for its presentation on the grounds that the costumes worn by the slave girls in the slave market scene were so abbreviated as to bring gasps even to the most hardened first-nighter.

Disaster stared the slaves in the face, as there was no time in which to secure new costumes before the initial presentation. At the last minute someone suggested that the censor might be satisfied if the slaves wore blankets to conceal their nudity. Bedrooms were raided, blankets donned, and the censor called in again all within a short space of time.

"All right," he said. "The blankets are better than nothing."

Whereupon the license was re-issued in the nick of time, and the show staged with the slave girls wrapped in blankets

FEEDING RATS COSTLY.

350 Million Dollars is Estimated Value of Food Consumed.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—(Associated Press).—Rat experts estimate that it costs England 70,000,000 pounds, or about $350,000,000 a year to feed its rats. This is the food charge and does not include the damage done.

Home-Making Helps
By Wanda Barton

By Wanda Barton.

What do you talk about at table? This question is one not easy to answer off-hand by most home makers. Sometimes when they stop to think they don t want to answer it, for the reason that, looking back on the conversational topics used on most occasions, they are not very proud of them.

The family table is one of the greatest educational helps in the world. Customs, manners, courtesy to one another, instructive exchange of ideas, hopes and plans of mutual interest—all may and should come under discussion, forming the close and intimate bond that should exist in families. Above all, the table is the place for happiness, good cheer and as much merriment as can be crowded into the meal hour.

Simple meals, attractively served in cheery surroundings, may become veritable banquets. It is the atmosphere around the home table that the children eventually establish in their own homes. Happiness aids digestion and promotes good health. It is the happy home table that people love to visit and they frequently wonder what makes the food so good. But when they try to explain it or have the same things home they cannot seem to make them taste the same. It is the sauce of cheeriness that does the trick.

Quarreling at table among children—or grown-ups, for that matter—is a forerunner of undigested food. Eating in an angry state of mind is bad for any one, big or little. Bickering and unkind criticisms create an ugly atmosphere, and food is often eaten hurriedly just to get away from the table.

There are certain things that should be taboo in all family table conversation. First, all unpleasant subjects should be left for a private audience at a convenient time. Scandals and horrors should not make table talk, especially where there are growing children and minds easily influenced by unpleasant things.

The cost of food, while it is a vital subject to the householder, should not figure as a theme for table talk. No one wants to know the price of every mouthful they are swallowing. The mother is usually the business head of the household, and she must be a poor manager if she brings all her little business worries to disturb the family's pleasure in the enjoyment of the good things she has prepared for them.

Suppose a neighbor should have had an accident or an illness. It is not necessary to talk over the unpleasant details at table. It does not help the sufferer, it disturbs your own meal and may upset you so that you would not be able to help if asked to do so. Any unpleasant details can wait for a suitable time for their discussion.

Mealtimes should be the happiest of the day, and it is up to the fathers and mothers to make them so.

YOUNG ENGLISH RUM RUNNERS LOSE FORTUNE TO HI-JACKERS

Four Officers in the War Ventured in Liquor Business But Failed.

CAME TO CANADA.

Firm They Worked For Was Aggrieved at Their Departure.

LONDON, Oct. 10. — (United Press).—New light on the ways of the rum runners and their greatest enemies, the "hi-jackers," has been shed here by four young Englishmen who are back in London broke after two adventurous years of smuggling liquor into America.

All four men were officers during the war, and after its close went to Canada to make their fortunes; but instead they lost what little money they had and shortly found themselves up against it for funds. They drifted first into bootlegging and next into rum-running.

"For one succession of adventures and a life of concentrated thrills there is nothing in the world like rum-running," said one of the ex-officers. Working for a syndicate they made good money running whiskey between the West Indies and Florida. The game looked so good they decided to go in for themselves.

"We saved all the money we could," he continued, "and a few months ago we set up on our own and put $13,000 into buying and outfitting a rum-runner. The people we had been working for were very annoyed at our private venture and threatened us with dire penalties. But we thought we knew best and went ahead with our plans.

"On our very first trip we were 'hi-jacked' by the very men we had been working for. All our liquir was taken and our boat sunk. We had no chance at defence for the boat we were to meet had been hi-jacked and when we came upon the scene unsuspectingly we suddenly found ourselves facing a battery of revolvers. We ourselves were taken prisoners and held several days until finally we were presented with tickets back to England and told that if we didn't go we would find ourselves shot up."

Far from being on the decrease, said another of the officers, the trade is increasing. He said that London was the hub in which practically all the rum-running schemes are organized and planned. Two of the biggest backers in the business, he understood, were barons.

"But secrecy of the strictest order," he continued, "is maiqtained in all these exploits. The rum-runners never know the identity of the syndicate for which they are working.

"All the rum-runners are armed and on the launches are mounted machine guns which the owners do not hesitate to use."

Launches running between the West Indies and Florida, he said, usually carry about $15,000 worth of liquor, and the launch owner gets $500 a trip. About three trips a week are made.

About 75 per cent. of the men engaged in rum-running, he declared, are Englishmen. But the "hi-jackers," he added, "are a cosmopolitan company of the sweepings of American humanity."

Whiskey running between Canada and the United States, he said, was mostly done in automobiles with camouflaged tanks holding about 50 gallons of whiskey.

Airplanes and seaplanes were sometimes used, he said, but mostly the expense of operating these was so high it did not leave much profits. Where they were used, however, the booze was carried in concealed racks in the cabin or fusilage, much like the racks on a milkman's cart.

The Office Seems So Different

SHE used to work in an office before she was married, but things are done differently now. Of course, she got out of the way of office work and that is why it seems harder than it used to, though she is given only the least important jobs. The younger girls are so quick. They take things so easily, and the managers seem to prefer to deal with younger, brighter, quicker assistants—girls who have no responsibilities generally, and no thought about anything but beaux and clothes.

It is hard to get back to office work after several years of devoted service as wife and mother. And her salary is pitiful. If she had only known—!

It's the old story—the widow with inadequate insurance and a family to keep. Why do these things happen?

They happen because men live in the present. They think too much about now, and not enough about the future. They run risks they ought not to run. They do not carry adequate insurance.

Take your own case. What insurance do you carry? Is it enough to protect your wife from the necessity of supporting herself and her children if you were not here to do it? You must face the question. Let our agent counsel you as to the amount of Mutual insurance you can afford to carry and the types of policy you need for the various purposes you have to consider—monthly income, education, endowment, will administration, etc., etc.

The Mutual Book tells about Mutuality, or insurance at net cost, and the different Mutual policies. Write for it today.

FREAK CABBAGE COLONY.

OMEMEE, October 10. —The price of bread took a slight drop this week and a small loaf which formerly sold for 11c may now be purchased for 10c.

Mr. R. Bradley has on display in his store window a freak cabbage, which has caused considerable attraction and comment. This cabbage was grown by Mrs. David Weir and is the second one of this variety this season. There is a growth of leaves shooting up about 6 inches tall, and surrounding this are fifteen cabbages, about the size of a medium sized apple.

Old Memories Stirred.

The wreck on the C. N. R. on Wednesday morning reminded many citizens of Omemee of by-gone days when there was no station at Sturgeon Street, and all passengers and mail were conveyed to the junction by a covered bus. This is what happened on Wednesday, only the vehicle of transportation had changed, and those citizens and travellers who experienced the means of travelling are quite pleased to forget the past.

Personals.

Mr. William Ingram, left this week to spend the winter with his brother at Sutton.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Laidley are the guests of their son, Mr Stanley Laidley, of Toronto.

Mr. Thomas Arnold, of Lindsay, was in town on Monday, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Pogue and Mr. and Mrs. Flemming, of Hill Head, motored to Cobourg on Sunday to visti the former's sister, Mrs. J. Henderson.

Mrs. T. C. Stephenson, Mrs. J. Bushwell, Miss Lila Parsons and Mr. Noble Clemett motored to Toronto on Monday, to pay their last respect to the late Mr. T. B. Laidley.

Mr. R. Hindes, Sturgeon Street station agent, has been transferred to Midland. Mr. Meritt Bradburn has accepted the position here for the winter months.

SUBMARINE TRAINS TO RUN ON STILTS?

Engineer Plans Tunnel Built on Great Concrete Piers Under the Channel.

For more than a century, one of the most fascinating problems to the European engineer has been the building of a tunnel under the English Channel, to link France and England.

One of the latest schemes is that of a Frenchman, Commandant Veyrier. He proposes that instead of boring a tunnel through the bedrock of the Channel, a succession of great reinforced-concrete piers shall be anchored to the sea bottom by means of strongly ballasted caisons. The piers would be sunk 340 feet from the surface. Once the piers were anchored securely, Veyrier's plans calls for a double-tube railway lad upon them, a section at a time, and fastened firmly to the supports.

At the end of every section of the tube railway would be a watertight compartment similar to the watertight bulkhead with which all modern vessels are fitted. These comty in the tube, since if one part of it were flooded, the rest could be shut off immediately. Each tube would hold only one railway line —one tube for eastbound and the other for westbound trains.

JOIN THE THRONG OF RED BLOODED MEN AND WOMEN

Get More Pleasure Out of Life and Be of More Use in the World by Toning Up Your System With This Well-Known Household Remedy.

There are people who lack the red blood to give color to their lips, warmth to their hands and brightness to their eyes.

These people tire easily and cannot compete in school, store or shop with the more energetic. Their blood being thin they are nervous and do not sleep well. Arising in the morning unrefreshed they begin each day badly and miss much of the pleasure of living.

To become active and energetic, like most red-blooded Canadians, these people need a blood-building tonic.

A tonic that gives strength, that revitalizes weak nerves, that increases the appetite and aids digestion, will put color in the cheeks and lips and give vigor to the step. That means new joy in living, increased usefulness and longer life.

Wherever you find a person who has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills faithfully you find an enthusiastic friend of the tonic that has made life mean more in many ways. These blood-making pills have been used by three generations of Canadians and in almost every community, however small, can be found those who owe health and happiness to this famous household remedy.

Weak and Run Down.

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louie Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says:—"About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk 50 feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking only six boxes I am well and strong as ever. I can walk and run without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my stand-by in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always find pleasure in recommending them to anyone needing a tonic."

There are many troubles due to weak, watery blood easily overcome by a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The sole mission of this medicine is to enrich and purify the blood and when that is done all the varied symptoms of anaemia disappear, and good health returns.

Help for Nervous People.

Are you pale and weak, tired most of the time, out of breath on slight exertion?

Are you nervous, is your sleep disturbed so that rest does not refresh you?

Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symtoms you need the help of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mr. W. W. Francis, of Calgary, Alta., says of this tonic. "After returning from overseas," writes Mr. Francis, "my whole system was in badly run down condition. I became nervous, irritable, pale and lost weight. Of course I was given treatment and recommended many tonics, some of which I took, but with no apparent result. At last I could not even sleep. My sister, who is in England, wrote and urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I can scarcely say how glad I am that I took her advice. My friends were surprised at my complete recovery, but I assured them it was due entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I now always keep a box on hand in case of emergency."

Relief From Indigestion.

When the stomach is feeble and food lies in it undigested the poisonous gases distend the walls of the stomach and cause serious interference with the other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These poisonous gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and so weaken and corrupt it as to cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words, it needs a tonic that will enable it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic used ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach, and that is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do.

Here is a bit of convincing proof given by Mrs. Chas. Ladner, Ellerslie, P.E.I., who says:—"For some years I was a sufferer from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused distress, sour stomach and belching. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and I grew weak and very nervous. No medicine seemed to help me until I was persuaded to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these simply worked wonders. I took the pills faithfully for a couple of months, by which time every symptom of the trouble had disappeared, and there has not since been the slightest symptom of stomach trouble. No wonder I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Keep Your System Toned Up.

Keep your system toned up with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and foods that once distressed you will be harmless, exposure will bring no fears of rheumatism and neuralgia and even germ diseases need hardly to be dreaded.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills assist digestion, correct the lassitude, the palpitation of the heart, shaky nerves and the pallor of the face and lips that are the results of thin, impure blood.

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. Get a box from the nearest drug store and begin this treatment now.

Send For These Health Books.

Two useful books, "Building Up the Blood", and "What to Eat and How to Eat" will be sent free by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., if you mention this paper.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or will be sent by mail, post paid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box.

REIGN OF TERROR DURING REPRISALS

Many Shops and Houses in Florence Were Sacked and Burned.

LONDON, Oct. 10 (Canadian Press) — The Daily Express says that Fascist reprisals in Florence for the assassination on October 3 of Cavalier Luperini, a member of the Fascist party directorate included the killing of a number of anti-Fascists, most of them lawyers, and the former Socialist Deputy Pilati.

Famous shops in the heart of Florence and a number of private homes were sacked and some burned. The city was under a reign of terror during the Fascist outburst of revenge.

The newspaper says that until now censorship has veiled the secret from the world.

LOCAL ORGANIST GIVES CONCERTS

Charles Peaker's Recital in Toronto Was Much Appreciated.

REPEATING HERE.

Charles Peaker, Mus. Bac., organist of Knox Church, gave an organ recital on Thursday evening in the concert hall of the Toronto Conservatory of Music before an interested audience that included some former Peterboro residents now living in Toronto, also several Toronto organists and teachers, among them Dr. MacMillan, Dr. Willan, Messrs. Viggo Kihl, Dalton Baker, Arthur Blight and Mrs. Richard Tattersall.

The recital was played entirely from memory on the big three-manual organ of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. Although Mr. Peaker played no encores, he was compelled to return and acknowledge the applause after the big Cesar Franck "Choral in B Minor" and again at the conclusion of the programme when the "Concert Variations" with its bravura pedal and brilliant manual passages called forth a very hearty tribute. Among the lighter pieces Yon's quaint little "Primitive Organ" was very popular, as was also the tiny Prelude by Hanff played earlier in the programme.

In response to many requests, Mr. Peaker has decided to repeat this recital in Knox Church here on Monday, October 19th. Admission will be free, but an offering will be taken to defray expenses.

The programme of the recital was as follows: Prelude and Fugue in D Major, by Bach; four choral preludes, by J. N. Hanff, Johann Pachelbel, Johann Sebastian Bach and Sigfrid Karg-Elert; Choral No. 2, in B Minor, by Cesar Auguste Franck; Scherzetto, by Louis Vierne; Prelude, by Gustave Samazheuilh; Intermezzo, by Joseph Bonnet; L'Organo Primitivo, by Pietro Yon; Evening Song, by Edward Bairstow, and Variations de Concert, by Joseph Bonnet.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 9. —(Canadian Press). — Radical changes in the present guard system at the Provincial jail here, were forecast to-day by Hon. R. M. Craig, Attorney-General, as the result of the departmental inquiry into the escape of five prisoners last Tuesday.

RHINE PACT AND EAST SEPARATE

British Government Orders Chamberlain That No Reference Can Be Made.

TREATIES PARALLEL.

LONDON, Oct. 10. — (Canadian Press).—An important decision concerning the British attitude toward the Locarno security pact discussion was reached at a Cabinet meeting on Wednesday. After considering the despatches from Foreign Secretary Chamberlain, the Cabinet decided that under no circumstances could Great Britain become a party to any western security pact which contains any reference whatever to eastern arbitration treaties. Chamberlain was instructed in this sense.

The British official view is that parallel formulae can be devised applying to the Rhine frontiers and to the eastern frontiers, but these formulae, being parallel, should neither meet nor touch.

Fourteen men will be brought to trial for manslaughter. Among them are Dumini, a native of St. Louis, but a naturalized Italian citizen, with his alleged accomplices, Volpi, Viola, Povezomo and Malachia.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

An event which has come to mean much to the people of Canada is the annual visit of the world-famous Dumbells Company who are billed to play an engagement of three performances at the Grand Opera House commencing Friday, October 16th.

Their present vehicle "Lucky 7" is easily the finest production and the greatest entertainment which this splendid organization has offered in their spectacular career of seven seasons in Canada. For sheer amusement value the new musical revue is paramount.

The show opens up with a new angle on the time - honored game of "African Golf" wherein Ben Allen, shooting for Captain Plunkett, lays down a "natural" seven. From that moment on through some twenty odd numbers, songs, sketches dances and travesties the action is brisk, bright and snappy.

Al. Plunkett enhances his reputation with his laughing song "If You Can't Be N-n-nice, Don't Be N-n-nasty," and then proves that he is an actor as well as a singer by his perfect interpretation of "As Long As She Loves Me." This is one of the finest bits ever staged in a musical show.

Ross Hamilton has three great songs and more marvelous gowns. His biggest hit is "Darling I Love You," written for him by Howard Fogg, the new musical director of the company.

Other individual hits are scored by "Red" Newman, Stan. Bennett, Pat. Rafferty, Ben Allen, Morley Plunkett, "Jock" Holland, and the dancers, Glen Allan and Jimmy Devon, while the orchestra provides a program that caters to every musical taste.

AT THE ROYAL.

ROYAL GETS BIG SPECTACLE, "THE UNWANTED," OPENS ON MONDAY

Monday will be the opening day of the G. G. Samuelson production "The Unwanted," which is now riding on a whirlpool of popularity throughout the country.

"The Unwanted" presents something unique in motion picture art. Despite vast sums expended in staging the spectacle and the innovation of salvaging for the first time motion picture records of sanguinary engagements on the battlefields of the late war, the story is the thing.

The metropolises of Europe form colorful settings for "The Unwanted." Venice on the Adriatic, St. Moritz and the snow-capped Alps, Vienna, London and the scarred and pitted vistas of No Man's Land are by turns the locale for the dramatic story which is unfolded with a sureness or artistry and the deftness of touch.

The romance starts at Venice. The famous subnerged metropolis is en fete, aglow with lanterns of romance and moonbeams of intrigue and the spirit of carnival time. Lady Carrington is a woman of mercurial temperament. She believes quite firmly in donning a new fabric of morals with every change of evening gown. Her motto is, "When in Rome, do as the Venetians do."

The husband, as is usual with husbands, does not take kindly to Lady Carrington's sprightly quadrilles.

A man with stern conceptions, a thorough idealist, he is rudely buffeted again and again by his wife's vagaries. Finally he flees for refuge to the mountain fastnesses of Switzerland.

Here of course, Fate plays one of her tender ironic pranks. And so he that would walk amongst the clouds finds that it is perhaps more reverberating, more comforting, even if a little more dusty, to tramp along the highroads. Lord Carrington falls in love with a young Canadian girl.

But the blare of trumpets is not missing. The imperialistic avarice of nations comes into play. War is fought. Blood is shed. Lives are ruined, made, confounded and amazed.

The Great War as depicted in "The Unwanted" is alone enough to distinguish this great motion picture from its fellows. Films taken by a German cameraman from behind the Teuton dugouts and from shellholes in the sear vistas of No Man's Land are now brought to light for the first time. We see hand to hand fighting between the Boche and the Allies. Cold steel. Fear. Reckless bravery. Shellbursts. Confusion. Chaos. Victory. Defeat. Oblivion. The public of Peterboro will be flooded anew with a realization of the sheer folly and the mighty awfulness of war.

The grandeur of the Alps views with the splendour of the City of a Thousand Isles for picturesque background. The beating of the war drums and the revelry of European capitals furnish a heady and soul-stirring wine alike for the blase and the plethoric theatre-goer. But above all the pathos, the drama and the romance of "The Unwanted" is what has made this production cut such a wide swath in the motion picture field to date.

AT THE CAPITOL

WESTERN RAILROAD LIFE HAS COLORFUL ELEMENTS

Screen now Seeking to Capture this Quality.

Out of the west with its thousands of miles of steel rail has developed a great new life of adventure. Where countless herds of buffalo and elk once roamed at will, shining bands, bearing huge smoking monsters rush across the plains. The great open spaces are crossed and recrossed by thundering lines of wheels bearing their freight of human life, food and other needs upon which man is so dependent.

It is the drama of a continent! Not just highly colored fiction, but the real gripping life story of America's development.

And out of it all have come many tales of strange adventure and new thrilling legends and life stories. Life a new romance, or better yet, a great new state of affairs exist which make for a new literature and culture.

A race of men and women have arisen whose hates and loves and passions are as strong as the laws that grip the giant system they rule; as wild as the terrible accidents which often send loose, crazy engines crashing over the tracks and hurtling down over a mountainside or into another train.

Out of this vital material Director Erle C. Kenton has made, according to pre-release notices, a screen drama which reflects the spirit of the vital qualities which go into railroad making and maintenance and the men—and women, too, behind the works. This play, "The Danger Signal," has its first showing at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, according to Manager Crowe.

PETERBORO BOY 100 YARD DASH WINNER COLLEGE

Charlie Chew Defeated the Champion at Woodstock at Annual Field Day.

SECOND IN 220 EVENT.

Now Attending the Baptist School—Junior Championship Went to Cobourg Boy.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—At the annual field day sports conducted at Woodstock College Friday afternoon, John Smith, of Toronto, carried off the senior championship, running up a total of thirty-three points. The new champion proved himself an all-round athlete. He not only captured the sprints but was successful in the jumps and other events. He was placed in every event on the senior programme with the exception of the high jump. Weather conditions were anything but favorable, and no new records were established. In the intermediate events, Mowat Janes, of this city, was first with 23 points to his credit. He was given stiff opposition all afternoon, and in the hundred yard dash Harry Chew, the well-known hockey player of Peterboro, now attending school here, defeated the new champion. But Chew had to be content with second in the 220-yard event, Janes winning after a spirited contest. The junior championship went to a Cobourg boy, Niles Norton, who had 24 points to his credit.

COLLEGIATE BOYS GOING TO TORONTO

Will Take Part in Annual Cadet Shooting Match.

An event that is being looked forward to with much interest by Cadet Corps in Military District No. 3 is the annual cadet matches to be held at Long Branch Ranges, near Toronto, on Friday, 23rd of October. Strong teams are being sent by the Peterboro, Kingston, Ottawa and Brockville Collegiates and the Belleville and Port Hope High School Cadet Corps.

The two matches to be fired are the cadets' match for a team of six cadets and a coach, firing seven rounds at 200 and 300 yards, for which a challenge cup, 12 gold and silver medals and 146 cash prizes are to be given, and the Canadian National Exhibition match, snapshooting at 200 yards and deliberate fire at 300 yards. In the latter match a challenge cup, 14 silver and bronze medals and six cash prizes will be awarded.

Capt. C. E. Jamieson will accompany the team from the Peterboro Collegiate.

Quarters are being prepared for the cadets from Military District No. 3 at the ranges, and the members of the various teams will be well looked after.

SOUTH AMERICA TO PLAN SPEEDWAYS

Will Take Prominent Part in World of Automobile Racing.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 10.—(United Press)—South America is preparing to take a prominent place in the world of automobile racing.

Two first class speedways are to be built, where the leading drivers of the world will be invited to compete for prizes rivalling those given at Indianapolis, Los Angeles or Milan.

One of these tracks will be in Buenos Aires, while the other will be Sao Paulo, Brazil. Concessions have already been arranged and plans drawn. The track in Buenos Aires is due to be completed by December, while it is hoped that the track in Sao Paulo will also be ready before the end of this year.

As it is summer in South America when it is winter in Europe and North America it is felt that international races can be organized in which the foremost drivers of the world can take part, without interfering with their participation in the various classics.

The Buenos Aires track is to be constructed in the suburb of San Martin at a cost of about half a million pesos. The track will be over two miles, and will be 18 meters around, something over two miles, and will be 18 meters wide on the straight-aways with an added three meters on the curves.

This includes increased hotel and maintenance costs to the followers and contenders added expense to the clubs and the wide variety of revenue that is connected otherwise with such a thrilling performance.

The Pirates were greeted by President and Mrs Coolidge at the White House and posed for pictures with the Chief Executive and his wife, who had arranged to attend the game in the afternoon.

Most of the rival players to-day seized the opportunitoy to get bit of diversion and take their minds off the strain of battle. A group of them went to Laurel, Md., to watch the horse races, while others attended theatres.

Close to a thousand hopeful fans huddled under umbrellas, papers, oil cloth and tarpaulin covering in the centrefield bleachers in the rain for nearly two hours before the postponement decision was reached. Many of them had stood in line since daybreak to be sure of their seats but they planned to be back in line again to-morrow.

While the fans sat out in the down pour waiting for the official "Yes" or "No" from Commissioner Landis a battlaion of ushers under the protection of the grand-stand sang "How Dry I Am," the bleachers responded with "It Ain't Agoin To Rain No More."

Ticket scalpers were in abundant array at the Union Station along Pennsylvania Avenue and the Hotel lobbies, offering pasteboards for sale at double and triple the face value.

Despite yesterday's dampness, Washington fandom seemed to be taking its baseball much less seriously than a year ago in the first flush of pennant and world's series triumph. The carnival atmosphere of last Fall was missing along the boulevards, where Buck Harris, Walter Johnson and their mates are taken now as matter of fact champions.

One of the most interesting phases of the series thus far has been the superior defensive work of the Pirates. Before the series, their youth and comparative inexperience was expected to make them unsteady but McKechnie's youngsters have outsteadied their more seasoned opponents for the most part. This was particularly true of the stonewall infield defense put up behind Aldridge in the previous tussel.

With each club holding a victory apiece, to-day's game will be a crucial point, with its result likely to have a marked influence on the pitching strategy afterward. Should the Pirates win, the dopesters believe Harris will call on his big ace, Johnson, for the fourth game on Sunday in an effort to tie up again. Similarly if Pittsburgh loses, McKechnie probably will send Meadows, his first game twirler, back to the mound.

With two games in the bag, the official average show Joe Harris, slugging Washington right fielder, leading the regulars of both teams at bat with a mark of .571, compiled from four safe blows in seven times at bat. Harris also is the leading run-getter, with two tallies to his credit, and sets the pace in total bases with seven.

At the rate the heavy artillery has been going the record for home runs in a single series will be pushed into the discard. In two games, the big guns have rattled out five circuit wallops. The high mark is ten, collected by the Yankees and Giants in 1923. It is worthy of note that all five of the homers rapped out at Forbes Field landed in temporary sections of the outer stands.

By CHESTER HORTON

The player is often told that he "puts too much body into it." Invariably this implies that in striving to hit hard he swings forward, with his body having a sort of unrestrained abandon as the clubhead goes through. The left side shoves outward into the direction line—and the ball skids off to the left. Bodily freedom in the early part of the down swing is O.K., but this should be arrested with a stiffened left leg, so that the player feels he is "on top" of his left leg at the moment the ball is hit. Then he stays right up on top of it while the clubhead goes through. Whether the left knee actually locks back is a question—some players lock it, others do not. Find what suits you best, then adopt it for keeps.

QUEENS MEN HAD SIGNAL PRACTICE EVE OF BIG GAME

TEAM SELECTED.

May Call Upon Mundel to Relieve Baldwin of Pivot Position.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 10—(Canadian Press).—A light signal practice was the total of Queen's efforts in their final practice yesterday afternoon before the big game today, when Varsity and Queen's open the Inter-Collegiate series at the Richardson Stadium.

Coach W. P. Hughes was optimistic over the result of the game, though he stated that the continual rain for the past couple of weeks has hampered the practices somewhat. His intention is to try out as many substitutes as possible to-day if the score warrants.

Yesterday afternoon he announced that the team will take the field as follows: Flying wing, Thomas; halves, Leadley, Batstone, "Gib" McKelvey; quarter, Baldwin; snap back, Lewis; insides, Muirhead and Adams; middles, J. McKelvey and Airth; outsides, Walker and Wright; subs., Chantler, Voss, Howard, Britton, Mundell, Skelton, Brown, Norrie, McCrimmon, Baird.

Coach Hughes is likely to use Mundell to relieve Baldwin at the pivot position, though everything depends on the way the team is playing.

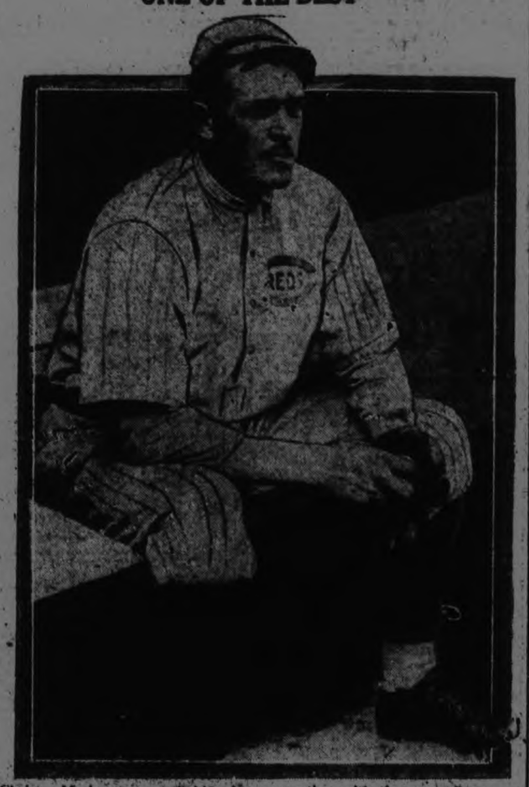
GAME POSTPONED.

White Sox and Cubs Resume Hostilities To-day at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Oct 10— (Canadian Press)— Rain and snow yesterday prevented the third game between the White Sox and Cubs in the city series. Hostilities will be resumed today at the National League park, weather permitting. Pitchers probably will be Sheriff Blake for the Cubs and "Red" Faber for the White Sox.

ONE OF THE BEST



Christy Mathewson, probably the greatest pitcher of all time, died recently at Saranac Lake of tuberculosis pneumonia. His end was totally unexpected, although he had been in retirement for some months, due to a recurrence of the trouble which drove him out of the active connection with the game five years ago. "Big Six" was gassed in France, where he served with distinction during the war, and his illness, it was believed, was brought on through that cause. As an athlete and a soldier Christy Mathewson was a credit to the game that he loved so well.

DELAY IS BENEFIT TO BOTH CLUBS PITCHERS WILL BE AIDED BY REST

Bluege Out of Danger—X-Ray of His Head Reveals No Injury and He Will Yet Pla yin Series.

FERGUSOON TO OPPOSE KREMER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Rain drops, curved across the landscape by that familiar old veteran, J. Pluvius, silenced the batteries of the world's series forces yesterday, and put off until to-day the renewal of hostilities between the deadlocked Washington Senators and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The downpour started at eight o'clock in the morning, simultaneous with the arrival of most of the warring battalions from the heat of the opening two skirmishes in Pittsburgh. It kept up almost continuously until noon, when a deep-sea conference, participated in by High Commissioner Landis, President Clark Griffith of the Washington Club, and Manager Bill McKechnie of the Pirates, concluded that the field at Griffith Stadium was in no condition for championship combat.

Then, just to play a prank on the thousands of Capitol rooters disappointed in their hopes of seeing the first game on home soil, Old Sol checked the watery attack and gave a balmy finish to the afternoon. The chief encouragement in this, however, was the prospect that to-day and the following two days would provide suitable weather for the play to go on under its delayed schedule.

The wash-out provided an expected yet welcome rest for most of those in the warring camps, despite the impatient desire of the competitors to keep in stride, but it was especially a blessing in disguise to Bucky Harris and his gallant champions.

The Senators came back to their home port with ranks somewhat shattered and shaken in sustaining their first defeat of the series in the second game Thursday, and yesterday's rest presented an opportunity to consolidate their lines once more. It not only provided an interval which will permit the two Washington sharp-shooters, Johnson and Coveleskie, to come back to the firing line earlier than had been hoped, but it also was expected to assure the return to the line-up of Ossie Bluege, brilliant third baseman, who was laid low by one of Vic Aldridge's fast ones Thursday.

Bluege last night was pronounced entirely out of danger of any ill-effects of the blow that struck him down. An X-ray of the third sacker's head revealed no injury of any sort.

This was the most cheering development of the day for the Capitol camp, while the veteran Roger Peckinnaugh, whose wobbly fielding had been another damaging factor in the Senators' defence, also hailed the rest as a chance to shake his fielding jinx and get back into normal gait.

So far as the twirling staffs are concerned, Harris and McKechnie both regarded the delay as a benefit, although it did not change the plans originally laid by the rival boards of strategy for the third game. After an afternoon of deep thinking among the master minds it was assured that to-day's tussle would find Alex. Ferguson, Washington's veteran right-hander and master of the "screw-ball" opposed to Ray Kremer, a comparative newcomer to the major leagues, but a seasoned moundsman, nevertheless.

The fifth game now is scheduled here Monday, with the scene shifting to Pittsburgh for the sixth and seventh, if the issue is prolonged that far.

BUSINESS BETTER ALL ALONG LINE

The improved outlook for agriculture continues to be the outstanding feature of the situation. With the increased buying power of the farmers and a renewal of confidence in their calling it is safe to assume that this fall all classes of goods will find a more ready market than has been the case for several years past. It is natural that during the hard times through which the farming community has passed in recent years more economical traits should have developed, and it is not anticipated, therefore, that the free-spending habits of some years ago will again be in evidence to any marked extent, but that a more normal state of affairs will be established, so many who have been carrying an unduly heavy indebtedness will succeed in restoring their credit. The stocks of the western retail storekeepers which had become quite low are being increased steadily in anticipation of an active demand this fall, and many manufacturers and wholesalers report having already received a larger volume of orders than at the corresponding date a year ago. Conditions in the Maritime Provinces have shown improvement with the settlement of the coal strike in Nova Scotia, as a brisk demand for Nova Scotia coal has resulted from the strike of anthracite coal miners in the United States.

Industrial conditions are not altogether satisfactory, but it is noted that the iron and steel production for August was substantially greater than that of the preceding month. Of interest is a press despatch to the effect that the employees of a St. John, N. B., industry recently agreed to work several hours each week for nothing, to enable the firm to compete successfully for the shipment of wire nails to Jamaica. The terms of the men's agreement provide that any profits resulting from their additional labour will be divded between the employees and the firm in the proportion of 75 and 25 per cent. respectively. Reductions in the prices of low and medium priced automobiles have been general and this has stimulated the demand.

Little improvement has been reported during the month in the lumber industry in Eastern Canada, but a stronger domestic and export demand has developed in the West. The British Admiralty recently announced that in future it will use Douglas fir from British Columbia for the decks of its new warships.

With the absorption by the West of some 50,000 men from the East to assist in the harvesting of the crop, employment conditions have shown further improvement and much of the surplus labour has been taken care of, at least temporarily. At a number of eastern points a scarcity of labour has been experienced.

Trade and Commerce.

Noteworthy is the measure of success which has attended Canada's participation for the second year in the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley, where large orders have been placed for Canadian furniture, rubber boots, manufactured furs, agricultural implements and canned salmon. Until a few years ago Canadian furniture was virtually unknown as an article of export and the Dominion was an importer of Rubber goods. It is regarded as significant that 130 Canadian firms not previously represented in London, Eng., have recently appointed permanent representatives ther.

Government figures relating to Canadian trade for twelve months ended July last indicate that the value of goods from the United Kingdom and other parts of the British Empire was 24 per cent. of total imports of $517,757,042, while the exports of $1,093,165,663 for the same period no less than 44 per cent. covered shipments to the United Kingdom and other parts of the Empire. Although 64 per cent. of the total imports for the period under review came from the United States, there was a decrease of some $40,000,000 compared with the corresponding period last year. Exports to the United States, which represented 40 per cent. of the total, were $8,000,000 greater than a year ago.

The extraordinary progress made by the dairying industry of the Dominion during the past few years continues, and it is gratifying to find that the demand for Canadian dairy products is becoming greater and wider each year. The output of creamery butter last year was 184,290,908 lbs., valued at $63,449,160. Canada's best customer for the product during the year ended 31st July last was the United Kingdom.

MEXICANS BATTLE HOARD OF LOCUSTS

Two Thousand Tons of Hoppers and Eggs Destroyed in Drive.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—(United Press).—A report from the President of the National Junta for the campaign against the locust indicates that the fight to prevent the invasion of hitherto free areas is proving successful and that the areas now invested with the pest should be free by the end of the year.

It is estimated that eighty per cent. of the host has been destroyed, totalling slightly in excess of two thousand tons of locusts, grasshoppers and eggs. Efforts have been concentrated largely in destroying the new generation in the States where most damage has been done with a view to preventive invasion of the rich agricultural States on the Pacific Coast and in the northwest, where for a time it was feared the locusts would spread.

The States which have suffered most have been Chiapas, Campeche, Tabasco, Vera Cruz, Oaxaca and Yucatan. Lack of communications in the isthmus States rendered the fight more difficult, the swarms of locust becoming so dense in some sections as to render it necessary for trains to proceed with all caution where they had clogged up the tracks.

If the campaign continues unabated it is believed that stamp tax, levied for the extermination of the pest, will shortly be abolished. It is too early to estimate the damage wrought, but undoubtedly it will run into millions of pesos.

The little Kingdom of Belgium, with a population of 7,500,000, spends $100,000,000 a year for fun. This amount includes tobacco, alcohol and wine, theatres and other entertainments, automobiles and pigeon racing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. — Cold weather and high winds marked the opening to-day of the Washington games of the world's series. The day was clear but cold, adding to the troubles of the bleecher fans who gathered early to obtain their seats for the fray.

Batting Order.

The line-ups to-day:

Washington — Rice, cf; Stan. Harris, 2b; Goslin, lf; Judge, 1b; Joe Harris, rf; Myer, 3b; Peckinpaugh, ss; Ruel, c; Ferguson, p.

Pittsburgh—Moore, 2b; Carey, cf; Cuyler, rf; Barnhart, lf; Traynor, 3b; Wright, ss; Grantham, 1b; Smith, c; Kremer, p.

Time: 2 o'clock Eastern Standard time.

Ossie Bluege, "beaned" third baseman of Washington Senators, had a slight relapse and did not play to-day. Bluege was taken to hospital, Harris disclosed, after an attempt to exercise had brought on some ill effects of the blow he sustained Thursday in the second game when hit by one of Vic Aldridge's fast curves. Harris asserted he did not believe there was any cause for alarm over Bluege's condition.

First Innings.

Pirates—Moore got a base on balls. Ferguson hit Carey with pitched ball. Cuyler sent up a high fly to Goslin, who almost dropped the ball. It was hard to gauge in the high wind. Barnhart hit into a double play, Peck to Stan. Harris to Judge. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators—Dust was worrying the infielders, blowing into their eyes. The game was held up while some belated spectators were taking their places in the field boxes. Rice hit the first ball and was thrown out, Traynor to Grantham. Carey took in Stan. Harris' fly. Kremer worked a slow ball on Goslin. Smith claimed it was a strike. Goslin struck out, and on a passed ball which Smith did not chase, ran clear to second base. The Pirates kicked vigorously, but to no purpose. The umpire called for the ball, and after looking it over, threw it back. The four umpires came in and had a discussion near the plate. It was then decided to send Goslin back to first base, only allowing him one base on the passed ball. The one strike was then withdrawn on Judge. Judge then popped to Grantham. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Pirates—Traynor got a three-base hit to right, which got away from Harris when he fell down. Traynor scored on Wright's sacrifice fly to Goslin. Peck made a remarkable catch of Grantham's pop fly. Peck took care of Smith's fly. One run, one hit, no errors.

Senators — Harris struck out. Myer went out, Kremer to Moore to Grantham. Carey walked three feet to his right and dropped Peck's easy fly. Peck went to second while Carey was recovering the ball. It was the first Pirate error of the series. Ruel strolled to first on four balls. Ferguson struck out, missing a wide curve for the third strike. No runs, no hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Pirates — Kremer struck out. Muddy Ruel took Moore's foul near the visitors' bench. Ruel took Carey's bunt and threw him out at first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators — Rice singled over middle bag and the crowd was happy. Stan. Harris sacrificed, Traynor to Grantham. Goslin took heavy swing on a drop curve. Goslin flied out to Cuyler, and Rice raced to third after the catch. Rice scored on Judge's two-bagger along right field foul line. Wright took Harris' grounder and threw wild to first, but Judge was out at the plate trying to score, Grantham to Smith. One run, two hits, one error.

Fourth Innings.

Pirates—Cuyler got a two-base hit to left centre. Barnhart singled into left, and Cuyler scored on the throw in. Barnhart raced to second. Marberry is warming up for Washington. Traynor walked. Peck took Wright's grounder and threw him out at first. Barnhart went to third. Traynor to second. The Washington infield was in on the grass. Grantham popped to Judge. Ferguson worked a screw ball on Grantham. Smith walked. Kremer struck out. One run, two hits, no errors.

Senators—Myer got a base on balls. Kremer tried to pick Myer off first. Peck forced Myer, Wright to Moore. The Senators tried the hit and run play, but Ruel fouled the ball. Peck out trying to steal second, Smith to Wright. It was the hit and run play again, but Ruel missed the ball. Barnhart took Ruel's fly. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Pirates—Moore struck out. Carey singled over second base and then stretched it by fast running, making two bases, when Sam. Rice momentarily held the ball. Carey caught the Washington club asleep on his hit. Myer threw out Cuyler, Carey going to third. Myer made a pretty play on Cuyler's roller. Barnhart fouled out to Judge. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators — Ferguson out. Rice beat out a roller to third for his second hit. Stan. Harris hit into a double play, Moore to Grantham. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Pirates — Rice took Traynor's long fly as it was about to go into the centre field bleachers. Peck took Wright's grounder and threw wide to first. Grantham struck out. Smith singled into right and Wright by fast running made third. Wright scored on Kremer's hit, which took a mean hop past Harris. Smith stopped at second. Moore walked, and the bases were filled with two out. Carey struck out. One run, two hits, one error.

HOME RUN.

Senators—Goslin got a home run into the right field stands. It was a terrific smash. Judge sent up a fly to Carey, who had trouble gauging it in the wind. Harris singled past Moore. Myer struck out. Peck singled into left, Harris stopping at second. Traynor took Ruel's roller and touched third. One run, three hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Pirates—Peck took Cuyler's grass cutter and threw him out. Goslin took Barnhart's fly after a long run. Traynor sent up a little fly to Stan. Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators—Leibold batted for Ferguson. Liebold walked on four pitched balls. McNeely ran for Liebold. It was a hit and run play, and McNeely was nearly to second when Rice fouled the ball. Barnhart made a beautiful catch of Rice's seeming hit, and McNeely had to race back to first. Stan. Scratched an infield hit toward third. It was his first hit of the series. McNeely stopped at second on the hit. Goslin bunted safely, catching the Pirate infield asleep. Traynor was flat on his feet. McNeeley scored on Judge's sacrifice fly to Carey. Stan. Harris held second as Carey threw to third. Stan. Harris scored on Joe Harris' single to left. Goslin stopped at second. Smith went out and took Myers' splash and touched him on the line. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Pirates—Marberry now pitching for Senators. McNeely went into centre for Washington and Rice into right. Wright struck out. Grantham also struck out, missing a drop curve for a third strike. Rice robbed Smith of a home run with a wonderful gloved hand stop just as the ball was about to go into the bleachers. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators—Traynor made easy work of Peck's hopper, getting him at first. Ruel singled. Marberry sacrificed, Smith to Grantham. Wright threw out Rice at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Pirates — Bigbee, batting for Kremer, filed out to McNvely. Moore singled to left. Carey singled to right, Moore going to third. Cuyler was hit, filling the bases. Barnhart fouled to Ruel. With the count three and two, Traynor flied to McNeely. No runs, two hits, no errors.

The mob's rage apparently was not directed at Godfrey personally, but against what the residents declared was the negro encroachment on a white residence district.

Pat Healey Called Himself Schwartz To Please Jewess She Jilts Him, Another Jilts Him, Wife Appears

NEW YORK, N.Y., Oct. 10.—(United News.)—George Patrick Healey's desertion of Ireland for Palestine has cost him dear.

He changed his name to Schwwartz to please his Jewish sweetheart and she jilted him. Now comes the news that Healey was already married when he sought to make Miss Ida Weinberg his bride.

Miss Weinberg told reporters Friday that Healey had courted her for a year under the name of Schwartz and had been welcomed by his prospective-in-laws as a Jew. News of the court appeal for the change of name was her first information that he was Irish, she said.

Scarcely had George Patrick recovered from this blow when his mother revealed that he married Marw Cummings, as sweet a colleen as Erin ever knew, in 1919, and lived with her two years. They have not been legally separated, Mrs. Healey said.

His Hebrew love dream is shattered, he is fearing what action Mrs. Mary Cummings-Healey will take and his old friends have turned against him.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—(Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth, erstwhile monarch of big league maulers, left yesterday for New York, ill as the result of a slight recurrence of the malady that kept him out of the game last spring. The big Yankee hitter's illness was said to be due to the after-effects of his operation for internal abcesses some time ago. SOCIAL EVENING.

Central Home and School Association Enjoys Splendid Programme.

A social evening under the auspices of the Central Home and School Association, was held in the Kindergarten room of the school last evening. The room was crowded to capacity.

Principal K. S. Wightman, who is also first vice-president of the association, acted as chairman, and spoke briefly at the opening of the meeting. A musical programme, included vocal solos by Miss Annie Black, with accompaniment by Miss Pearl Refill, by Leslie Dyer, who was accompanied by Miss Alda Bartlett, and a piano duet by the Misses Evelyn Rowley and Beatrice Pooley.

The feature of the evening was the presentation of the Entrance certificates, which reached the handsome total of 61, by Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of the Property Committee of the Board of Education. Dr. Craig's address was punctuated by several humorous allusions, and stressed the need of better citizenship and the advantages of higher education. The speaker also congratulated the principal and vice principal, Messrs. K. S. Wightman and O. M. Steer, on the good record made in their work this year.

Mrs. W. R. Morris echoed these congratulations and extended them also to the pupils, advising them to take advantage of the opportunities afforded them.

Mr. A. Mowat mentioned the high percentage of pupils in Peterboro who were having a secondary education and regretted the lack of facilities for taking other courses of study, such as household science and other types of technical training.

County School Inspector R. F. Downey, former principal of the school, impressed upon the scholars a consideration of the many advantages they enjoyed in city schools in contrast with the children of rural districts, and the necessity of taking every advantage of these opportunities. He also congratulated the principal and vice-principal on their record this year.

Mr. O. M. Steer added a few words and the meeting came to a close with the singing of the National Anthem, and the service of light refreshments by the committee in charge, under the supervision of Mrs. C. Stanton and Mrs. J. E. Spencer.

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDENTS ASSOCN.
WILL BE GIVEN ON THE SUBJECT

"THE TRIUMPH OF RIGHTEOUSNESS"

"MILLIONS NOW LIVING WILL NEVER DIE"

"Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet; and the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies." Isaiah 28:17.

Righteousness embodies all the elements of Justice and equilibrium. That which is righteousness is just right and cannot be made wrong.

Conditions prevailing in human society can by no stretch of the imagination be considered as right or just. That they will not always be inequitable and unjust the Lord assures us, and in His Word He outlines clearly the steps necessary to bring about conditions of righteousness.

United Church Opens Big Conference Here With 500 Delegates

One of Biggest Religious Conventions Ever Held in City Will Convene To-morrow — Rev. George Pigeon, D.D. Moderator of General Council, to Speak.

SESSIONS OPEN TO PUBLIC.

Mayor Turner and Dr. Blagrave to Extend Welcome—Principal Bruce Taylor of Queen's, to Conduct Communion Meditation—Trio to Speak.

What will be one of the biggest religious conventions that ever held its sessions here will open on Tuesday when the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada gathers with over 500 delegates, representatives of all the elements of the United Church in this district. One of the special features will be the opening session tomorrow night, when a service of worship will be held in George Street Church, incorporating the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. This, like all other sessions of the Conference, is open to the public.

Many of the delegates, who will arrive tomorrow morning, will be billeted in the homes of members of the congregations who have offered this accomodation.

A galaxy of brilliant speakers has been secured for the several sessions. The Communion meditation tomorrow night will be given by Principal Bruce Taylor of Queen's University. Rev. George Pigeon, D.D., Moderator of the General Council of the United Church, will address the Conference on Wednesday evening. His kindly personality and restrained yet eager style of speaking has endeared Dr. Pigeon to the whole Church. Dr. Laird, Dr. Gunn, and Dr. J. W. Graham will speak on Thursday night. Such a trio is rarely heard on one platform, and the addresses should be listened to with appreciation.

Official Welcome

His Worship Mayor Turner and Dr. R. C. Blagrave, President of the Ministerial Association, will officially welcome the delegates to the city on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The day sessions will all be held in Trinity Church.

On Tuesday morning the five Presbyteries of the Conference will meet as follows:

Lindsay, 10 a.m., St. Andrew's Church;
Cobourg, 10 a.m., Knox Church;
Belleville, 2 p.m., George street Church;
Kingston, 4 p.m., St. Andrew's Church;
Renfrew, 4 p.m., Trinity Church.

WEATHER

The present cold and unseasonable weather is general all over the continent. In Ontario several inches of snow have fallen west and north of Hamilton, while the eastern portion of the province is covered with a coating of white. The thermometer here yesterday morning stood at 22 degrees. This morning showed considerably milder, amely, 39 degrees. Such cold and wintry conditions so early are not usual—W. P.

GEO. E. ELLIOTT DIES SUDDENLY

Ex-Alderman and Well Known Insurance Man Collapsed in Street.

MANY ACTIVITIES.

While conversing with Dr. D. N. Carmichael in front of the post office this morning, at 9.30 o'clock, George E. Elliott, 598 Water street, was stricken with paralysis and died shortly afterward in the Munro House. He had walked down Water street with Dr. Carmichael relating to him a sermon which he had heard on Sunday at the George street United Church, and which had made a deep impression upon him. Then, as he turned to enter the post office, he faltered momentarily and collapsed. Dr. Carmichael expressed the opinion that death was due to heart failure or paralysis.

Mr. Elliott was born in Smith township on January 8th, 1857, and would have been 69

POLITICAL LEADERS REAFFIRM BELIEFS IN THEIR POLICIES WITH CAMPAIGN END IN SIGHT

Meighen Faces Battery of Questions at Lethbridge, and Answers.

TURN HOMEWARD.

Premier, Back in Ontario, Defends Australian Trade Treaty.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., October 12. Canadian Press. — Questions were fired at the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen from every part of the house at a meeting here on Saturday night. The cost of the living, the practicability of the protectionist policy in an agrarian community, and the probable effect of the higher tariff on prices of the necessaries of life, were the principal sources of interrogation. The Conservative leader replied to the questions one by one, affirming his conviction that protection was necessary for every part of the country and every industry in it, the farmer as well as the manufacturer.

Mr. Meighen and his party stated their arguments for fiscal reform and urged that higher tariffs were necessary alike for east and west.

Senator Robertson said that tariff reduction had so depressed industry in Canada that in last year alone 149,000 people had gone to the United States to look for work.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., October 12.—Canadian Press. — With his western tour completed, Premier King has returned to Ontario and with the exception of one meeting in Montreal it is in this province that he proposes to spend the rest of the campaign.

On Saturday he spoke both at Rainy River and Fort Frances.

To-day he will speak at both Port Arthur and Fort William. At both Fort Frances and Rainy River he stressed the Labor side of the government programme.

The Prime Minister further contended that the Australian trade treaty would find new outlets for Fort Frances paper.

548 Candidates Named To Contest 245 Seats

TORONTO, October 12. Canadian Press. — To date with ten days yet remaining before nomination day, 458 candidates have been selected by party conventions, or have announced their candidature for the 245 seats in the House of Commons.

WOMAN BURNED LIGHTING FIRE

Mrs. John McWilliams, Ware Street, in Dangerous Condition.

SMALL HOPE HELD.

Some hope was held today for the recovery of Mrs. John McWilliams, 36 Ware street, who was terribly burned while lighting a fire in her home on Friday. On Sunday her condition was considered extremely grave by Dr. O'Brien, who is attending her at St. Joseph's hospital, but she rallied toward evening and passed a restful night.

Dr. O'Brien told her husband that it was a miracle she had escaped death, and he expected that the crisis would not pass for perhaps ten days.

Mrs. McWilliams' clothing had caught fire on Friday when she put coal oil in her range to start a fire. She ran flaming from the house and her cries attracted the attention of Harvey Staunton of the C.N.R. whose train was switching nearby. Arthur Jobe and Fred Drake. They put out the flames and administered whatever first aid was possible until medical assistance arrived. Mrs. McWilliams is severely burned about her body from her knees to her shoulders.

INQUIRY OPENS.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Placed in a hot bath at the Home of the Good Shepherd, Donald Simpson, two and a half years old, was fatally scalded on Sunday. The youngster died in hospital, after several hours of great agony.

The maid at the home had charge of the baby and had prepared the bath, but states she did not know the water was dangerously hot. The authorities have commenced an investigation.

The child was a ward of the Children's Aid Society, and had been placed in the Home for temporary shelter.

Scratch Inscription on Fragment of Wood as Their Last Hope

Five Survivors of Lost Schooner Commit Appeal For Help to Sea That Cast Them Adrift in Open Boat More Than Two Months Ago.

LOST "NORKA" HEARD FROM.

More Recent Atlantic Gale Sends Rescued Coast Guards and Others on Long Voyages—Passengers on Liner Injured in Terrific 80 Mile Storm.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Oct. 12. — Canadian Press. — An inscription scratched on a block of wood, was washed up on the Island of Martha's Viseyard, yesterday, said that disaster had overtaken the schooner "Norka" in mid-Atlantic last August. The block was described in the inscription as the last hope of five survivors who were adrift in an open boat on August 2nd, approximately a thousand miles east of Boston.

EIGHT RESCUED.

NEW YORK, October 12. Canadian Press. — Rescued from the raging seas, whipped by a 75 mile gale, which lashed the entire Atlantic coast and threatened their lives, eight men who sailed in nearby waters, are on their way to foreign ports on an enforced vacation.

Six of them, members of a coast guard patrol boat, were picked up from their fuelless, drifting craft, 200 miles east of Nantucket light ship, by the Cunard liner, Cameronia.

Two others, employees of the department of street cleaning, are on their way to Tampico, Mexico, aboard the Pan-American petroleum steamship Wickatt, after drifting helplessly with the gale for two days in a damaged barge which carried them 82 miles east of New York.

PASSENGERS HURT.

BOSTON, Mass. October 12. Canadian Press. — A 46 hour battle against mountainous seas driven by a gale that at times attained the velocity of 80 miles an hour, sent 40 passengers and members of the crew of the S. S. Fort Hamilton to the ship's hospital with injuries, it was revealed when the steamer docked here last night.

The vessel, carrying the Ancient Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, back from its cruise to Cuba, arrived hours behind its schedule.

FORKE'S MANIFESTO ASSERTS PROGRESSIVE POLICY MEANS PROSPERITY FOR ALL CANADA

Dominion's Problems Are Results of Legislation of Past Ten Years.

IS AGAINST TARIFF.

Both Older Parties Essentially Protectionist—Differ Only in Degree.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—In his election manifesto, issued Saturday, Robert Forke, Progressive leader, asserts that adoption by the Canadian Parliament of the policies for which his party stands, would result in great and immediate prosperity of the Dominion.

The tariff issue, which is described as the most important before the electors, rail, lake and ocean transportation, the Bank Act, and immigration are discussed by Mr. Forke in the manifesto.

The manifesto says, in part

"The policies pursued by the Canadian Government during the past fifty years have not secured the adequate development of the natural resources of the country nor brought permanent prosperity to the people. The electors are now confronted with political and economic problems of great magnitude. These problems are the result of past national policies rather than of the vicissitudes of the last ten years. Between the practical policies of the two old parties there has been no observable difference, notwithstanding the variations in their election platforms. Politics in Canada have been dominated by partisan prejudices and desire for office. The revolt of the common people against these conditions found expression in the Progressive movement, which represents the popular determination to break the bonds of blind partizanship and to secure from any Government willing to carry them into effect those reforms which are essential to the well-being of the primary industries and of the people generally.

"The Prime Minister, Mr Mackenzie King, is urging the Western Provinces to send to Parliament numerous representatives as members of his party caucus, on the ground that that would be the best method of obtaining the necessary changes in Government policy. This proposal is an invitation to keep his party in office and in return to receive such reforms as the party caucus may concede. The irrefutable answer to his plea is written clearly in the record of his party, whose re-

Woodpeckers Use Line Poles As Storehouses For Acorns

VINCENNES, Ind., October 12. — Canadian Press. — Use of telephone and telegraph poles by woodpeckers as storehouses for acorns is presenting a difficult problem to the utilities in this section. The woodpecker makes a hole in the pole, places acorns in the pole and the rain causes the acorns to swell, opening crevices in the wood for the seepage of water and decay.

LIBERAL SUPPORTERS AT RALLY HEAR ABOUT ISSUES OF THE DAY FROM FOUR LEADING SPEAKERS

Meeting Was Well Attended and of an Enthusiastic Nature.

TARIFF DISCUSSED.

Canadian Trade Compared in Liberal-Conservative Regimes.

Four speakers, including the candidate, defended the Liberal cause Saturday night before a crowd which taxed the capacity of the committee rooms. Applause was voiced frequently attesting to the ability of those giving the addresses and the interest with which the issues of the campaign were being followed. The tariff as proposed by the Conservative leader was the subject of much discussion especially the latest pronouncement of Mr. Meighen regarding a tariff on coal for the purpose of encouraging the use of the Alberta product; in addition to this the records of the Liberal and Conservative parties were compared in an effort to prove that greater benefits had been derived during Liberal administration than when the Conservatives were in power. J. J. Hartley acted in the capacity of chairman in his usual capable manner lending a spirit of enthusiasm which spread its infection rapidly. In his opening address Mr. Hartley expressed confidence in the Liberal cause and in the ability of the candidate to come through with colours flying. "When the 29th of this month has passed we will see the Hon. G. N. Gordon safely returned to Ottawa under the leadership of that great Liberal, Mackenzie King," he predicted.

Hon. G. N. Gordon

Matters of organization occupied the major part of the candidate's address. He said that he had been in various localities to find out how the campaign was progressing and had arrived at the conclusion that everything was very favourable as far as the Liberal cause was concerned. Mr. Gordon stated that the Hon. Charles Murphy was coming to Peterborough and would address a meeting in the Opera House on the 19th of October while Hon. Vincent Massey would also speak a few days later.

Regarding certain publicity which the Conservative interests were posting on the boardings Mr. Gordon took exception. The suggestion that Canada was the highest taxed

Don't Call Them 'Flappers.' They're All 'Moderns' Now

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(Associated Press).—The Camp Fire Girls, Inc., 160,000 strong, have organized a crusade against the use of the term flapper as "odious and unfair." Females of tender years must be called "moderns" instead of flappers, the organization has decreed, and has drafted Colleen Moore, known as the "perfect flapper" of filmdom, to lead the crusade.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY'S POLICIES EXPLAINED BY MANY SPEAKERS IN WEEKLY RALLY HELD SATURDAY

Mr. Peck is Ably Supported By Members of Party Organization.

TARIFF IS ISSUE.

Export of Raw Materials From Canada is Also Condemned By Speakers.

E. A. Peck's committee rooms were jammed to the doors with people who wished to hear the policies of the Conservative party expounded at the rally on Saturday evening. Several new speakers were heard who advanced their reasons for supporting the Conservative party and Mr. Peck.

The first speaker was W. R. Morris. Mr. Morris said that in his business that of chartered accountant, he was very much in touch with business conditions of the present day. He found great slackness in many plants, due to the fact that they could not compete against goods made under cheap labor and imported under the present low tariff. Canada must have protection, he said, to keep the men employed in the factories and the home market for the farmers. Mr. Morris said that he knew of many former Liberal manufacturers who wanted to see the Mackenzie King Government put out of office, as they wanted to be able to keep their men employed.

Touching on the use of songbooks at the meetings of the Liberal party meetings, Mr. Morris said that singing wouldn't win the election. Mr. Morris also condemned the attacks being made on Mr. King's war record, saying that it was not an issue of the campaign. He said he was glad to see that the people were all interested in the present election, and expressed confidence in the result.

Arthur Thomas

The second speaker was Arthur Thomas. He told of conditions in the carpet trade. One-seventh of the carpets used in Canada, he said, are made in Canada, and the rest are imported. In Kidderminster, in England, there are skilled carpet workers weaving at a wage of two cents a yard, while men on the same kind to Canada are getting 75 cents a yard. The local carpets are equal in texture and design to any that are imported, yet the Wilton looms in the Brinton plant which should NEWMARKET, Oct. 12. Canadian Press. — There will be no Progressive candidate in North York to oppose Hon. W. L. M. King, the prime minister, and T. Herbert Lennox, Conservative nominee. A convention of Progressives of North York decided not to place a candidate in the field.

SIX PERSONS CUT TO PIECES IN TORONTO CROSSING CRASH

Worst Tragedy of Its Kind in Vicinity Enacted Yesterday.

CHILD MAY LIVE.

Four Year Old Girl is the Only One Not Shattered.

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—Probably the worst tragedy of its kind in the vicinity of Toronto happened at 5.15 yesterday afternoon when the C.N.R. International Montreal-Chicago flyer crashed into a motor car and cut to pieces six Toronto people. The dead are: Arthur Nichols, aged 49; Mrs. Rose Nichols, his wife, aged 45; Shirley Nichols, aged 4 months, their daughter; Alfred Mould, aged 33; his wife, Ruth Mould, and their daughter, aged 12 years.

Hilda Mould, aged four, is in the hospital for sick children, suffering from concussion of the brain and cuts about the mouth and face. Nichols was a building contractor. He and Mould were cousins by marriage, the latter having a confectionery store on Queen street east.

At Scarboro.

The accident occurred immediately west of Scarboro Junction, about two miles east of the city limits. The train was in charge of Engineer T. Gorman, of Belleville, and Conductor Dickson, of Montreal. The track is clear of obstruction, so that any one approaching it, especially toward the city, in which direction the auto was travelling, at the time, would be able to see for a considerable distance along the tracks on both sides of them.

The shock of the impact was such that the air brake was jarred from its place and automatically applied the brakes, thus bringing the train to a stop about two hundred yards the other side of the crossing.

The train crew and passengers alighted and returned to the scene. For 150 yards the track was strewn with pieces of mangled flesh, and underneath the train were fragments of two bodies, so badly battered as to be unrecognized. The wreckage from the automobile was mingled with the dead, and glass and bits of scrap iron were found lying on the pilot of the engine.

Girl Found.

Four-year-old Hilda Mould was found on the side of the tracks in a semi-conscious condition, her face covered with blood from wounds in the head and face. Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario, who was aboard the train, picked up the child, and Doctors Penny and Waters, C.N.R. physicians, gave first aid to her. The little girl was then placed on the train and carried to the Union Station, thence to the Hospital for Sick Children. Nichols and family had picked up the Moulds at their residence and the party had driven to Newmarket. They were returning to the city when death overtook them.

CRASHED INTO FREIGHT

TORONTO, October 12. — Canadian Press. — Harry Fleuty, and James Martin, both of Oakville, were injured, the latter seriously, on Sunday morning, when a motor car, driven by the former, crashed into a passing freight train at Port Credit. Martin is in the hospital.

CAILLAUX GETS NO BOUQUETS DEBT FUNDING ARRANGEMENT STIRS NO FRENCH ENTHUSIASM

Cabinet Will Resume Study of Provisional Accord With America.

PRESS DISGUSTED.

Temps Regrets Fighting Young Americans Succeeded By Good Calculators.

PARIS, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—M. Caillaux, newly returned from his debt funding labors at Washington, presented his report at a cabinet council yesterday, and at the conclusion of the three-hour discussion, Premier Painleve declared: "The project M. Caillaux brought back from America will be thoroughly studied. Negotiations with the United States will continue."

The Cabinet will meet again Tuesday and go into a further examination of the Finance Minister's statement on the Washington negotiations, and it is likely to be re-examined at a ministerial council a week from Tuesday, after the convention of the Radical Party at Nice, which M. Caillaux is to address, has terminated.

On leaving Elysee Palace, M Caillaux emphasized the fact that the whole of the inter-Allied debts problem was still in the "stage of study," and notably the projected provisional agreement with the United States, which has not been decided upon one way or the other.

Some of the Ministers mentioned that M. Caillaux had given a lengthy resume of "conditions of international policy which determined the opinion of American politicians in power," and said that he laid stress on the attitude of Senator Borah, "who exercises great authority over his colleagues in the American Senate."

The Finance Minister, according to his Cabinet colleagues, brought out the various points of the United States provisional agreement from the viewpoint of France's financial situation. The ministers declared themselves impressed with the importance of the decision of acceptance or rejection, that they decided that all possible consequences ought to be thoroughly weighed before replying to Washington.

This decision cannot officially be made before October 20, the date of the next ministerial council at Elysee.

Paris newspapers apparently are not at all satisfied. The Temps, in

Stranger Than Fiction

THE MAGIC PHOTOGRAPH. BY M. B. LEVICK.

The night was so dark there was no telling the river from the land except for the lapping of the waves on the shallow shore.

A waller-an down to the edge of the Oise. Along the wall stood a row of poplars. On top of the wall a great vase of geraniums disclosed its flower only by the rankness of the odor in the misty night. In the lee of the vase a shadow bent over and beckoned to another shadow lost in the upright blackness of the trees.

"Sssst!"

The lean man on the wall held down a hand to the squat man on the ground. "Holy blue!" said the stout one. "Why not go around the front way? There's nobody home."

The thin one, with a scarcely-seen gesture, waved away the prosaic suggestion. The thin one was pained. Why had fate allied him with this fat dog who had no sense of the obligations of their craft? "There'd be a grille," he whispered.

The fat one grunting, fell up the wall and fell down the other side. Two shadows danced a pantomine across the terraced lawn. A wolf-step to the right, a wolf-step to the left, a pause with ears cocked in the dark, and they breathed secure in the veranda of the villa.

"Name of a name," said the plump one, "dispatch yourself."

The slim man leaned swiftly forward in obedience. From his side pocket he slipped his pince monseigneur. There was a slight crack of woodwork at the pressure of the jimmy and the two shadows were inside.

"A fat house," the second muttered to himself. His flashlight's beam made a round circle which, as it traversed wall by wall, bent and twisted on the edges of cabinets, sideboards, pictures. Its light shone pale on porcelain and glinted on chased metal. "There'll be silver," said the fat one to himself, with relish.

* * *

Then two flashes made disks on the stairway, leaping step by step. Two gestures and the men set to work.

The prossic one who could not see why they should not come the front way suddenly paused in his practical celerity. Over the heaped metal on a rug beside him he rose to immobility. From the other room came a metallic chink and a faint cry. He glanced toward the stairs, moved, stood, listened, then ventured.

The slim one stood at a dressing table. His flashlight, with the catch on, shone full on the mirror, and in the glass he stood revealed with hands to face, in the posture of anguish.

"Hein!" the fat one exclaimed.

"I cannot."

"What is it that you have?"

"I have I do not know what. Within me."

"But—"

"It is she!"

The thin man pointed dramatically to a photograph in a frame whose silver had made the chink as it fell from his hands.

"Thunders! Is it that she is your sweetie and what of it?"

"My Donzelle? No! Can you look on such beauty and not feel within you also as I do not know what? It is she, the one, the only, the woman I admire most of all the women in the world all entire. It is Hugette."

He straightened himself with a gesture that should have explained everything, a superb gesture of renunciation.

"Never met her," the fat one protested. "Get a wiggle on." He reached toward a pile of rich trinkets.

"Is this a movie?"

"Hugette! The deepest emotions a man could feel are stirred in my heart like the movings of leaves as the life-giving rain falls gently down from heaven. My adored, from afar! She whom I have watched reverently how many times, even from the fourth gallery. The woman who above all others has revealed to me the emotions of the upright man, tearing my soul with shame. Her splendor as Athalie, her power as Iphigenie, her adorableness in the cinema—it is a revelation from heaven. It is a retribution. My poor old mother. And Hugette—"

"Is it a bet or are you crazy? I commence to have a fear. This little cat of yours—"

"One glance from her photograph has re-made me."

"That's right, shout so all the commissaries of gendarmes can hear you all the way to Paris. A brave heart, you! You ought to go make your little brain jump. What a scandal when the gang hears of this. And look at me. I'm on the nut for all this stuff, stuck for a dead loss."

"No! She has touched me to the depths. I can wrong no man, not even you, you drowned rat. Nothing leaves this house but this." He pressed the photograph against his heart. "For the rest, I shall reimburse you. She has made me honest. No man can say he lost through me. I will pay you franc for franc the value of everything you leave here."

"You'll hock enough stuff"—

"No; ther's a house down the river. Looks as good as this. But first——"

The slim one, teary-eyed, turned to an escritoire and there for the one time in his life poured out his heart to the worshipped woman.

This preposterous tale has reached America as part of the routine news cabled from France. It may indicate that the manners of burglars are being affected by attendance on the movies. Anyhow, the French police have a letter addressed to Mme. Hugette Duflos, formerly famous at the Comedie Francaise, in which an unknown burglar says he entered her country house in ignorance of its ownership, recognized her picture, abandoned his loot, promised to indemnify his accomplice and took only the photographs which told him of a goodness of heart worthy of such radiant beauty.

IN POLICE COURT.

Leo MacDonald of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was sentenced this morning to a term of not less than one year in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate Langley on a charge of indecent assault. He had pleaded guilty to a more serious offence when he was arraigned here upon being brought back from Woodstock, whither he had gone with two Peterborough girls, one fifteen and the other thirteen, whom he had "picked up" along the midway at the local exhibition. Information respecting the girls was obtained by the Crown, and as a matter of justice to the man the charge was reduced.

Charles Ames, Lost Ten Days Ago, Found Dead in His Smashed Plane

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press). — The frantic search for Charles Ames, air mail pilot, who disappeared ten days ago, ended yesterday on Nittany Mountain, six miles north-east of Bellefonte, when the body of the birdman was found in his wrecked plane, which had crashed against the side of the mighty hill. A party of searchers, one of the thousands who tramped the hills and valleys since Ames was reported lost, came upon the wreckage late yesterday morning. Ames' body, bearing only a few bruises, was found in the cockpit of the ship.

APSLEY, October 12.—The first meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Consolidated School was held in the Town Hall on Friday evening with all members present, except Rev. J. W. Ogden. Mr. D. Brown, who had been appointed by Mr. Lees in accordance with the Act, presided for the purpose of electing a chairman. The Rev. C. A. C. The first business was the selection of a name for the school and it was unanimously decided that it be "Apsley Consolidated School," subject to the approval of the Minister. Roy Brown was appointed secretary-treasurer on motion of Dan. Whitman and Mrs. Woods. Available sites were then considered but the final decision was left until Monday when the Board will inspect the sites that came under consideration.

SOMEWERE IN FLORIDA.

To be somewhere in Florida, where the sun is always shining, where the golden oranges hang in clusters on the trees, the palms stir gently to the warm breezes, and "where the sweet magnolia blooms" is the thought in the minds of hundreds of Canadians every winter.

When Canadians at home are skating and skiing, those in the south will be surf-bathing, sun-bathing on the warm sands, deep-sea fishing, golfing, etc.

When making arrangements for the trip south consult any agent of the Canadian National Railways for particulars of service. Winter tourist fares are now in effect valid to return up to June 15th, and good for stop-over at all important points, as well as for diverse routings. Direct connections are made at Detroit and space obtainable on the following crack Florida trains —the "Royal Palm," the "Ponce de Leon," and "Suwanee River Special," etc.

CANDY TO AID RUNNERS.

Have a chocolate, college athlete. Experiments made recently by Dr. Burgess Gordon and other Boston physicians contradict hard-hearted trainers who forbid candy, says the November Popular Science Monthly.

Marathon runners were placed on high carbohydrate diets before the races, besides being supplied with candy and over-sweetened tea. There was striking improvement in their general physical condition, the physicians declared, and the athletes made better running time than those who had not eaten chocolate.

TIME BY THE FORELOCK.

The house shortage in England s productive of humour, as witness the ollowing story credited to C. B. Cochran, the well-known theatrical roducer:

A child actress is one of his productions startled and amused the adult members of the chorus by gravely announcing that she had hat day become engaged to be married.

As she was only about seven years ld, there was naturally a lot of laughter. When it had subsided somewhat, one of the chorus, herself married and the mother of children, said:

"Nonsense, my dear. Why, you cent get married for at least another seven or eight years."

"That's all right, grandma," replied the pert young miss. "We don't expect to be able to get a house till then."

LIBERAL SUPPORTERS AT RALLY

country and yet the only country with a low tariff was contradicted by the speaker who asserted that Canada was third from the bottom of English speaking nations as regards taxation. There was no city where the call for high protection had less punch than Peterboro, the Quaker Oats Co., the C.G.E., the De Laval, the Canadian Packing Co. were not crying for protection and all of those concerns traded in the markets of the world. In the House of Commons Mr. Meighen had declared that he would raise the tax on farm implements; the increased duty would, the speaker affirmed, be directly responsible for an increase in the cost of the farmer's tools.

Mr. Meighen's latest pronouncement regarding his intention to put a prohibitive tariff on coal was viewed with concern by the speaker. He explained that there as a difference in mileage amounting to seventeen hundred miles, between the distance from the coal fields of Alberta and those of Pennsylvania; this added mileage would have to be paid for in some way and the price would be raised on the coal to an extent of from $2 to $5 per ton. Mr. Gordon said that those who voted for the Conservative party would be voting for an increase of at least two dollars on their winter's supply of fuel.

After thanking those who were giving him such vigorous support, Mr. Gordon hurried away to address another meeting.

J. J. Duffus

An interest in the welfare of the city actuated Mr. Duffus in working for the Liberal party, he said in his opening words. He believed that Mr. Gordon was one of the best candidates in the Dominion and deserving of the best possible of support. It was the duty of the electorate to select the greatest men to represent the country and that in the person of Mr. Gordon Peterboro had a candidate worthy of the people's trust; he was young and vigorous, moreover the premier had seen fit to honour him by giving him the Deputy Speakership.

Mr. Duffus' opinion that Mackenzie King was one of the best statesmen which the country ever had produced. On the other hand the Hon. Arthur Meighen had done more harm when he decried and depreciated the Dominion than any other agency. His pessimistic speeches had destroyed the national credit and business and prevented immigration to a large extent. It was out of place for him (Meighen) to criticise the government when by his utterances he had done so much which was contrary to the best interests of Canada. When in opposition Mr. Meighen was an obstructionist, hampering the moves of the government. Mr. Duffus believed in a strong and spirited opposition, but it should not retard the progress of the country. Meighen made no move to pay off the war debt, charged the speaker, but increased it by two millions. Wealthy interests were allowed to purchase tax free bonds which swelled their fortunes.

CHAPMAN APPEALS.

Gerald Chapman, under death sentence, has filed his appeal. The brief cites twelve instances of alleged prejudical error in Chapman's trial, practically all of which are technical. Chapman is understood to have collaborated with his lawyer in preparation of the brief, which will probably be argued next month.

The Liberal party has done wonders, he siad, in restoring the country from its chaotic state in the past four years, and as a consequence the Liberal party had ample reason to be optimistic regarding the outcome.

Railway Situation.

Meighen, when in power, saw fit to take over the Canadian National System, but he did not try to put it on a business basis, and he went out of power in the face of severe criticism. Since King had been placed in charge of affairs 135 non-paying lines had been organized and put on an improved system— at a recent speech at Richmond Hill King said he would do still more to reduce the capitalization of the railways and cut out the duplication which exists at present with the Canadian Pacific. What efforts are made must not interfere with the C.P.R., as that line had the prior claim.

Mr. Duffus said that King had tried to unite the people and to legislate equally for all provinces. It was hard to please everyone, but Mr. King, in the opinion of Mr. Duffus, had pleased more than many other premiers had done.

He wanted to know what the audience would think of a man who had represented Canadians as being Reds, Bolshevists and a seditious people as Meighen had done. He had found fault with the Progressives and farm parties, of whom he said there would not be enough left to ride to Ottawa on a bicycle. It was such tactics as those that caused the farmers to unite in a party.

Mr. Duffus thought that there should be a good representation of the farm industry in Parliament as that represented the basis of Canadian wealth.

The speaker believed that Peck was putting up a good, clean opposition, but in his opinion Mr. Gordon as a young man, and because of his attachment in parliament was more conversant with the times.

W. Scollard.

Mr. Scollard paid a tribute to R. R. Hall who, he said, he had known for a long time. He believed that a government was a business much the same as a bank and must be run by business men. Every elector was a director in the concern, who could say by his vote who he wants to do his country's business.

The only way for Canada to pay its war debt was to stick behind the party which had made some effort in that connection. Mr. Scollard considered it a privilege to support Mr. Gordon and thought by the crowd out at the meeting that others thought so too.

R. R. Hall, K.C.

If Protection was the cure all of the nation l ills, Mr. Hall suggested that an examination be held as to Mr. Meighen's record.

During the war money had been poured out and there followed the necessity for re-adjustment. As certain as night follows day there was bound to be unemployment. In June, 1920, there was a drop in the wool and cotton prices but living costs were maintained. Meighen made no attempt to counteract the trend down ward although he knew it was coming for he had data on the subject.

If protection were needed to safeguard Canadian manufacturers why was that policy not adopted when the need was greater than it is now? The reason was, said Mr. Hall, that Meighen knew it would not be a satisfactory measure. The need of it now is becoming less and less.

Tariff means increased taxes. Importers bring in goods which are dutiable as a result; in Peterboro last year one million dollars was paid out last year as a duties tax. If the tariff is raised higher this amount is certain to increase.

Mr. Hall wanted to know what Meighen was going to place a tax on. Would it be for food, clothing or implements of manufacture and cultivaton—all essential to life. One could drop a bucket into an empty well but never draw anything up; neither could a man lift himself by his bootstraps, so Canada could not better conditions by increasing the tax. All talk of making the country prosperous by increasing the tariff was bunkum, according to the speakers' views. It was possible to create a monopoly but high protection robbed many for the benefit of a few.

The cry for protection was not coming from the manufacturers, and they were the ones who would want it if anyone did; the depresssion in the country was a natural outcome of the war which shook every nation—a financial tempest which swept around the globe and was taking years to calm. It was becoming calm now, for Canada's dollar was back to parity, and it had only gone down to twenty cents below, while the English pound sterling had depreciated at one time almost 50 per cent. Great Britain was a far greater sufferer from unemployment, her list going to millions.

The markets were poor for even as a man without credit is not a buyer neither is a nation. Mr. Hall exhorted the people not to be led astray by cries of some who pretended to have a panacea for the ills of the country. That economy had been shown during the King administration. Mr. Hall endeavored to show by quoting the following statistics:: In 1921-22 the total disbursements were $464 millions. That was the last year of Conservative regime. In 1922-23 the total dropped to $434 millions; in 1923-24 to $370 millions, and in 1924-25 to $350 millions.

The reduction in the total of disbursements during the four years was $114 millions.

In addition to this, continued Mr. Hall, the debt had been substantially reduced by the King administration. In 1920 there was an increased debt of $92 millions; in 1922 it was reduced to $30 millions, and in 1923 there was shown a surplus of $35,000,000. In 1924 there came a cut in taxation from $41.99 to $31.38 per capita.

The revenue from natural resources in the year 1923 had amounted to $1,884,006,900, and in addition there was $82,300,000 from a sale of electric power and $2 billions from manufactures exported, together with $100 millions from pulp and $127 millions from paper products.

When Canada insists on manufacturing its own nickel and asbestos, still further revenue will be added to swell the national fund.

In gold production Canada ranks third with Africa and United States leading. Canada, however, is rapidly gaining in prominence. In 1922 the production was $26,116,062.

"Why listen to the pessimistic utterances of Arthur Meighen and the Montreal Star's 'whisper of death' when we have such a country replete with such resources. There is space here for millions who will come and help Canadians share the burden of debt. You should not listen to the clap-trap of people who have nothing of any real value to pronounce."

Sir Charles Tupper had said upon Laurier's election that he would not be in power six months. But he was very wrong. Throughout the time of Laurier's regime the country improved, and markets expanded. When Laurier wanted reciprocity with the States the people said, "let well enough alone," so the Liberal leader went down to defeat because the people had been so grossly deceived. The same agencies were at work to-day, said Mr. Hall.

The King Government was seeking wider markets as evidenced with the treaties formulated between Australia and the Indies.

When one could see a government doing that kind of thing one should know that it had the best interests of the country at heart. The King Government had not the breath of scandal attached to its name, and the best way to indicate appreciation of this fact was to say to Mackenzie King, "Well done, we are sending you G. N. Gordon," said Mr. Hall.

FORKE'S MANIFESTO

curring failures to redeem its election promises and to implement its political platforms are matters of public record.

Progressive members of Parliament may be relied upon to support in the House of Commons all proposals and policies which are in accord with their principles; but they cannot abandon their power to oppose policies and proposals not acceptable to the Progressive electors in order to conform to any decisions reached by a party caucus, Mr. King offers the country government by caucus in place of government by parliament. He would require the House of Commons to record as a mere formality the decision of a secret party meeting.

His proposal is directly at variance with those principles of representative and responsible government which the Canadian people cherish as their most valuable heritage."

Referring to the tariff the Manifesto states the difference between Conservative and Liberal proposals was merel that of degree, both being essentially Protectionist. "Mr. Meighen," it continued, "would go, in theory, further than Mr. King in granting special privileges to particular industries at the expense of the taxpayers and consumers. In practice, however, the two policies are almost indistinguishable" The Progressives, on the contrary, demanded abandonment of protection as the guiding principle in the imposition of duties on imports.

"So long as the tariff may be retained as an instrument of taxation the duties comprised in it should be regulated solely with regard to the requirements for public revenue. The retention of tariff even for revenue purposes is becoming steadily less important. The revenue from income taxes and from indirect taxes less objectionable than the tariff now produce a large proportion of the national income." Strict economy would make possible further drastic tariff reductions. No reduction of income taxes ought to be tolerated until tariff taxation had been reduced very substantially indeed.

The manifesto stated that rail and ocean transportation problems could not be solved by raising freight and passenger ratets, which were already unduly burdensome and ought to be reduced. Larger population was needed, and this depended upon removal of economic disabilities of the primary producers and encouragement of the settlement and development of the country. In the long run prosperity of railways would be secured by removal of restrictions on trade and of burdens imposed by the protective policy upon basic industries. "Immediate abolition of discriminatory freight rates, if necessary by act of Parliament, and maintenance of competition between the railroads themselves and between rail and water transport are essential. This movement is public ownrship involuntarily entered upon some years ago ought to be given full and fair trial. The capitalization of the Canadian National Railways should, with that end in view, be reduced to a figure representing the real investment value to the present owners. While duplication of railway srvices ought to be discontinued and prevented, the national railroads should be provided with all necessary traffic feeders, or branch lines, as rapidly as opportunity offers and financial resources permit."

Referring to the "handicap of high ocean freight rates," the manifesto declared the policies of subsidies recently advanced by the government had been shown by parliamentary inquiry to be inadequate to meet the emergencies of the case. Relaxation of restrictions imposed by customs tariff and other protective expedients upon sea-borne traffic, particularly with the British Isles, would go far to induce larger inward cargoes with beneficial effects upon export freight rates. The potentialities for reduction of ocean rates through control of traffic volume offering by a shippers' conference, which would counter-balance the conference of shipping interests already established should be thoroughly explored by parliament.

Concentration of banking interests steadily continued. "Control of the financial machinery of the country by interests located in the Eastern provinces has reached a condition approximating to a monopoly It is widely felt that local interests are not sufficiently considered and that local development may actually be retared by this condition. Establishment of a national bank to undertake by degrees the issuance of the national currency and to perform more extended re-discounting operations seems immediately necessary Revision of the Bank Act to allow formation of local banks, operating with national currency and availing themselves of the proposed re-discounting facilities ought to be undertaken simultaneously."

Until the economic disabilities suffered by those engaged in basic industries had been removed, no immigration policy could be permanently effective. When the lot of those already settled here was bettered the natural attractions of Canada and recommendation of those already here will do more to bring immigrants than large expenditures of public money. The Progressives' policy required creation of sound conditions of life and work in Canada and looked thereafter to natural attractive agencies by Government action where that was seen to be necessary.

In conclusion, the manifestor says, "We believe the adoption of these policies by the parliament of Canada would result in great and immediate benefits to all classes and would lay a solid foundation for rapid development as permanent prosperity of the Dominion."

be working overtime to supply the amount of carpets used in Canada, have been on short time for sixteen months, because they are not protected from the product of the low paid workmen of Kidderminster. In conclusion he appealed to all to vote for Mr. Peck.

Frank Millard

Frank Millard was the next speaker. He compared the Hon. Vincent Massey with Sir Alfred Mond, a noted free trader of England. Sir Alfred, he said, controlled great nickel companies and mines in Canada, and had great chemical factories in Germany. Naturally, said Mr. Millard, he wanted free trade in England because he wished to have no barrier in the way of the products of his foreign factories. Mr. Massey makes his money whether the implements are made in Batavia or in Toronto and it is better to make his implements for sale in both the United States and Canada under the one roof.

Mr. Millard also compared the tariff situation to the situation that would arise if the merchants of other cities were allowed to sell their goods on the market square in Peterborough without paying any toll. They would buy more than they would need for their home markets, thereby getting more favorable prices at larger quantities, and bring the surplus stock here to sell in competition with the merchants of Peterborough who had to pay taxes and keep up their stores. Without these expenses it would be possible to undersell the local men. In the same way, said Mr. Millard, manufacturers in other countries can make up a surplus stock, spreading their overhead over a greater production, and ship the surplus into Canada, without any great toll or tariff, to undersell the Canadian manufacturer.

Figures published by the Liberal party, showing Canada to be exporting more than she imports, said Mr. Millard, are deceiving until it is considered that the imports are manufactured goods and the exports are raw materials, which in many cases go out of the country for someone else to get the wages for making them up and then come back to Canada to be sold here, whereas Canadian workmen might have made them up.

In conclusion Mr. Millard said that what was needed in Canada was a Government that would treat its own people better than it would treat foreigners.

James Parker

James Parker of Toronto, was the next speaker. He said that he had been born a grit and a free trader but had cast his first vote against his father and had had the pleasure later of seeing his father vote for protection. He quoted Abraham Lincoln's statement, 'If I buy something for a dollar from a foreign country I have the goods and the foreign country has the dollar, but if I buy the goods in my own country I have the goods and my own country has the dollar." Mr. Parker said that what was needed was a policy to keep the goods and the money in Canada. Men are now without work and Canada is depopulated. What has happened in Peterborough in the last year has happened all over Canada. As the people leave the country the huge railway concern owned by the Government will press heavier on those who remain.

Speaking of the railways, Mr. Parker said that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had been a man of too much vision. He had had the National Transcontinental built and had subsidized the Canadian Northern, both of which form part of the Canadian National system and are a load on the people which will not be lifted until there is a population that will make them pay. To get population there must be work provided for the people and outside goods must be kept off the markets. The only way to do this is to have a tariff, not for revenue, but for protection.

J. F. Strickland

Mr. Strickland expressed gratification for the enthusiastic gatherings that have attended every meeting both in the city and in the riding. Mr. Meighen, he said, is not fighting the whole Liberal party as thinking Liberals realize that the whole national existence of Canada is at stake, and that it will not do to let the present ministry of inconsistency, and drift, led blindly by Mackenzie King, dissipate the natural resources of Canada. Mr. Gordon has allied himself as a member of the Government and all its sins will be visited on his head. He has said that he is a broader protectionist than Mr. Meighen, said the speaker, who challenged Mr. Gordon to show where he had supported any policy of protection during his four years in the house. Mr. Strickland asked if Mr. Gordon's successor in the Department of Immigration would support the ridiculous policy advanced as a bribe to the farmers of West Peterborough. He also said that Hon. Charles Murphy, who was known as one of the best Postmasters-General in Canadian history, would not be shaken for Mr. Gordon. At any rate, there would be no necessity after October 29 for any redistribution of portfolios among the members of the Liberal party.

Roland Denne

Roland Denne spoke about the contract for number 4 dam, saying that he could give the names of men who were getting 30 cents an hour. He also asked why local dealers had had no chance to supply coal to the Government buildings, but the contract had been given to a London firm who had had the coal delivered by a local firm. He appealed for workers to help in the work of organization and for cars on voting day.

W. H. Bradburn

Mr. Bradburn referred to a statement of Mr. Gordon's that the whistles would blow the day after his election. Mr. Bradburn conceded that they had blown but the number of men who answered he said was much less. Mr. Gordon, he said, says that conditions are improving. "If so," he said, "why is the population decreasing?" The young people who cost money to educate are going to the United States instead of remaining in Canada.

W. Boulton

Mr. Boulton said that Hon. Mr. Gordon is reminding the people of what the Government has done. Mr. Boulton said that the Government has created the greatest industrial depression known in Canada, has closed the factories, and reduced the workmen's pay envelopes.

He also said that the Liberals say that the country has not gone back, as there has been a great advance in trade. There has been an advance in the trade of other countries at the expense of Canada. Canada's raw material goes to the United States and is manufactured and sent back to Canada at a great increase, much of which represents wages paid to American workmen.

Referring to the National debt, Mr. Boulton said that the figures given are described as the debt, exclusive of the railway obligations. Counting all the money owed by the Canadian Government, the debt is at present $262 for every person in the country, while in 1921 it was $185.

The King Government has spent millions of dollars in bribery, said Mr. Boulton, mentioning the Elevators at Quebec and Prince Rupert. While the Government was preaching rigid economy one department, that of Agriculture, spent over $800,000 on travelling expenses alone. It was the King Government, said the speaker, that appointed a committee to consider a new flag for Canada and it is the King Government that is issuing new stamps that will have the heads of lesser lights instead of a picture of King George.

V. J. McElderry

Mr. McElderry referred to many good qualities of Mr. Peck, of which he had learned during fourteen years of partnership, and expressed his pleasure that his ability was to be placed at the disposal of the riding of West Peterborough.

E. A. Peck

Mr. Peck was the last speaker. He said that no concert or community singing was necessary to draw people to the Conservative rallies, which he described as happy gatherings of people who have the interests of the country at heart. Protection, said Mr. Peck, is the main thing needed in Canada. He said he was not talking high protection but an adequate protection for the farmers and working men. There should be a tariff to ensure to the worker a fair wage, which he considered meant enough money to provide all the necessities and some of the comforts of life. He would have it fixed that if a manufacturer took advantage of the tariff to put up his price to more than a reasonable selling price based on his costs, the customs department would have power to cut the duty so as to prevent these exorbitant profits.

Mr. Peck said that he had run foul of Mr. Gordon on figures, but that all the figures he quoted were taken from books and statements issued by the Hon. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce. Mr. Gordon, he said, was saying that Peterborough was all right and that her industries were flourishing, but that he wasn't saying it in Peterborough. He should come down to realities. Canada's artisans are not protected and she is losing her raw materials. Those that are exported to Europe are not even carried over Canadian railways to the port where they are loaded. Coal is imported and the Dominion Government has gone to sleep on the job and left it for the Provinces to attempt to bring Alberta coal east, providing more work for the Canadian National Railways, and keeping the money in the country.

The meeting closed with cheers for Mr. Peck and for the King.

HARD ON THE LEADERS.

Several newspapers have been commenting upon the folly of our political system which requires national leaders to turn away from the main campaign to look after their own ridings.

In the present campaign both the Premier and the leader of the opposition are being hotly opposed in their own constituencies, with the result that it is announced that Mr. King will spend the last four or five days of the fight in North York, while Mr. Meighen has to devote considerable of his time during his present Western trip in Portage la Prairie.

There is something closely approaching the nonsensical in a system of conducting elections that asks national leaders to stump the rural side lines to ensure their own election when their services are needed on the main battle front.

It should be possible to avoid such a condition of affairs, and there are many electors who would favour the leaders being returned by acclamation in order that their whole time and attention might be devoted to the campaign proper.

ANOTHER NEWSPAPER CASUALTY.

Still the casualty list among Canadian newspapers continue to increase.

The latest to pass is the Oshawa Telegram, which has been absorbed by the Oshawa Reformer, commencing from today.

Oshawa thus joins the long list of one-paper towns.

Hitherto the Reformer has supported the Progressive party; the Telegram has been the organ of Oshawa Conservatives.

From now on the Reformer will be published as an independent daily, taking a neutral stand in the present campaign, as are practically all the other independent newspapers in the Province.

The ever-increasing cost of everything that enters into the making of a newspaper is, of course, responsible for the disappearance of so many well-known journals.

It has got to the stage where, except in the case of very large centres, it is almost impossible for two newspapers to compete in one field.

One inevitably has to disappear.

Some of the fervour has possibly disappeared from political campaigns along with the party organs —but the public is the gainer thereby, inasmuch as it has a chance to read both sides of the argument with the party colouring left out.

A VETERAN PASSES.

The death yesterday of Mr. Aaron Comstock removed from the business life of this community one who had been associated with the furniture business here for almost three-quarters of a century.

The late Aaron Comstock was one of the oldest residents of Peterboro, certainly the oldest to be actively engaged in business, and to few men has it been given to be so long engaged in one commercial enterprise.

Ten years after the first settlers reached Scott's Plains and laid the foundation for what is now the city of Peterboro, Aaron Comstock was born at Colborne, and seventeen years after, long before this community was incorporated as a town, he came to Peterboro.

That was in 1852, and ever since that time he had been a resident of Peterboro.

He served as an apprentice and journeyman in the furniture business of Thomas Poole, and in 1873 purchased the plant, situated on Sherbrooke street, just west of George street, and the firm of Comstock was launched. It has been operating ever since, and the late Mr. Comstock, although he would have been 91 years of age next Sunday, had kept up his active connection with the business until the end.

He was one of the city's best known residents, held in the highest respect and esteem, and the sympathy of the community will be with the bereaved relatives.

SOCIAL LIFE AND CLOTHES IN SCHOOLS.

Those responsible for the conduct of secondary education in Toronto feel that it has become necessary for them to curtain the amount of time spent on social activities, says the London Advertiser. One principal went so far as to say that he did not favor even one school dance, "because the preparation for such an event occupied the attention of students for weeks to the detriment of their scholastic progress." So there is going to be a stricter regime in the Toronto Collegiates.

No doubt the reason for this is that the social side of school life had been overdone. The same problem, perhaps in a slightly different form, is apparent in London, and has led several of the trustees to declare themselves in favor of a plan that would regulate the style of dress worn during school hours. They have felt that some of the scholars were overdoing it, and that others whose parents were not in a position to maintain a similar standard felt the contrast.

The mother of five children expressed a view on this point that is worth noting. As long as her children went to public school she could afford to dress them, because all the children there were from the same district, and most of them came from average homes where there was the same need for economy and simplicity. When the two older girls went to Collegiate she found it necessary to dress them better because the other girls going there from various sections of the city were wearing better clothing than her children had at public school. This meant an added tax on the family purse, because, as this mother expressed it, "perhaps foolishly, I want my girls to be dressed as well as the rest." So she found herself drawn into a competition that she did not desire and which she could not afford.

The Galt Reporter in a recent issue used a very apt [illegible] in describing what it considered the proper [illegible] those receiving secondary education, when [illegible]ply boys and girls while [illegible] Teachers know very [illegible] these days.

gree can they handle it. They can regulate the extent of social activity centred in a school, and keep it within bounds so that it does not obscure the more serious business of training students for their life's work. Parents can do even more than teachers by wise counsel that will eliminate competition in dress and prevent any hurt to the feelings of those whose parents wisely recognize the necessity of economy in the outlay of their children's school clothing.

WHY MEN GET TO THE TOP.

The lesson which thousands of successful lives teach us is that there is no such thing today as a privileged class. In the day before yesterday of social evolution there was. The few held property, and the many were serfs. Today, at all events in this North American civilization, the door of opportunity stands open to everybody; and that is something which the blatant Communist and the red Socialist seem unable to learn.

The other day William Wallace Atterbury was made president of the Pennsylvania railroad. It is one of the greatest railway systems in the world, although ranking below our own Canadian National and Canadian Pacific in mileage. The man who has been chosen as chief executive of this billion dollar property began life as an apprentice in the railway shops. His long climb to top place was not due to the help of influential friends, nor to the possession on his part of anything in the nature of distinctive genius. That he had ability, goes without saying; but his progress was made step by step. Each promotion was brought about by his having done well the job in hand; and that means he was zealous as well as ambitious.

The great epic of the transportation industry on this upper half of the American continent is full of bright and stimulating incidents of that nature. The man whom Colonel Atterbury succeeded, Samuel Rea, started out as a rodman. Alfred H. Smith, for years president of the New York Central, and who served so acceptably on the Royal Commission which investigated our Canadian railway problem in 1916-17, took service as a messenger, as did his predecessor, W. C. Brown. President Crowley, now in office, was a telegraph operator and station agent. President Underwood, of the Erie, commenced as a brakeman.

We do not need to cross the boundary to find cases of rising from the ranks. Sir William van Horne and Lord Shaughnessy were at one time respectively a messenger boy and a clerk. Charles M. Hays began at the very foot of the ladder. Speaking broadly, there are not ten heads of big railways in either Canada or the United States who did otherwise than work their way up from an obscure and unimportant beginning. The same thing is true of our outstanding captains of industry, commerce and finance. Many of them were farm or village boys, with their way to make in the world.

There is a lesson in all this. It is not that one must be poor and handicapped in order to start up the ladder of success. It is, however, that poverty and the absence of powerful friends are not insurmountable obstacles to high place. Any one of these successful men might well have taken stock of himself when he faced the world and said: "What's the use of trying?" He simply took hold of the first job that came to hand, and did that job so well that another and better came along in due course. There is another thing these lives teach young men of our day. These big men were not impatient, nor were they easily discouraged Not one of them attained to any particular eminence before he was forty-five. Most of them were over fifty before they reached the top. When any one gets in a hurry he is apt to drop below that high standard of thoroughness which is the secret of all advancement. Thoroughness and loyalty are the twin steeds that carry most men to distinction.—Ottawa Journal.

"THANK YOU."

Recently the head of a large business concern in the United States offered a prize of $5,000 for the best answer to the question, "How can my business be most speedily and surely improved?" The money went to a competitor who simply wrote on a postcard the words "Say thank you!" It seems a very simple way of earning $5,000, but the business man knew what he was doing when he awarded the prize, and if his large staff can be persuaded to act on the advice, the sum will be returned many times over in extra business done. Arising out of this contest a national Thank You League has been formed in the United States, with headquarters in New York. November is to be made a national Thank You month and much discussion is going on in the press as to the best way to get people interested. In a pamphlet sent out by the league, it is suggested that Americans are more in need of such a campaign than any other civilized nation. Whether that is so or not, it would not be polite for Canadians to inquire. One thing is certain, a Thank You League would not be amiss in our own country, for there are plenty of people in business and in private life who do not seem to realize the value of the two little words.

A story is told of a cabman who, on receiving a "tip" of ten cents for a twenty-cent ride, threw the present in the face of the donor, with abusive language. Bystanders were so outraged by his conduct that they had him hailed to court, where he was fined $25 and sent to jail for three days. The magistrate has been praised by all for his action. It was a lesson badly needed and should do much good. "Rudeness and impudence deserve prompt rebuke," declared his worship. It is of special importance that young people should know the value of politeness. Without it, it is almost impossible to make headway in the world. But, apart from the question of "getting on," there is the satisfaction which always comes with good behavior. The habit of saying "Thank you" is easily acquired, and courtesy is essentially a matter of habit. There is all the difference between being like and disliked in the cultivation of a polite disposition. Politeness should be genuine, however. Sometimes affected politeness is almost as bad as rudeness. Courtesy should come from the heart rather than the lips. There are many ways of saying "Thank you." When it is said with a smile it is worth much more than when it is said as a matter of form. After all, it is one's feelings which count. Politeness comes from right feelings. If one has a kindly heart, it is hardly necessary to go in for any special training to show it in one's behavior.—Hamilton Spectator.

PLEASURE SEEKING CAUSE OF FAILURES

Dances, Movies and Concerts Declared Taboo by Board Chairman.

VERMILLION, Alta., Oct. 10.—The pleasure-seeking proclivities of the present generation is responsible for the failure of the average scholar to pass his school examinations, in the opinion of J. W. G. Morrison, chairman of the Vermillion school board.

At a recent meeting of the ratepayers of this community, he announced that during his term in office, dances, movies, concerts or social gatherings, would be taboo so far as their conduct in local schools was concerned.

The insatiable desire for worldly pleasure, Mr. Morrison maintained, was becoming a serious meanace to the intellectual advancement of the rising generation. Quoting departmental returns, he pointed out that of 500 papers turned in during the summer examinations, only 255 had passed.

One of the outstanding reasons for the failures, he declared, was the lack of proper handling by parents. Hard, diligent application to studies was essential to successful student life, he said.

"How can we prosper?" Just for an illustration we will say that the Peterborough market square is open to merchants of other towns and cities, charging them only a small toll for the privilege of selling their goods on our market. What would happen? The merchants of other towns selling the same goods as Peterboro merchants would buy their goods on a larger scale, supply their own citizens and dump their own surplus stock on to our market square in competition with our city merchants. The result would be that our Peterboro merchants, who out of their profits have to pay heavy rents, rates, taxes, etc., for the upkeep of our city, and also wages to employees, would very soon be forced out of business by the unfair competition. The incoming merchants, whose only expense would be a small toll and a wooden stall, would be able to sell their goods much cheaper than our city merchants, and the only remedy would be a high toll to prevent the unfair competition. Now, as that would happen between town and town, so it is happening to-day between country and country, and Canada is the low toll, or no toll, market. The manufacturers here are burdened with heavy rates and taxes for the upkeep of our country, while the foreign manufacturers' expense is the low toll, or no toll, that he pays to bring his goods into our country, when at the same time they have a heavy toll in their own countries to protect themselves against our manufacturers. The result is that they can manufacture on an extensive scale and after supplying their own market they dump their surplus stock into our low toll country in which they are able to sell at a price with which our own manufacturers cannot compete thereby causing much depression and unemployment in our home trade, and the only remedy the people in this country have is to [illegible] their franchise and help to put a Conservative government into power—a government who will treat their own people a little better than they will treat the foreigner.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

EGG MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 1,643 cases, as against 536 cases for the same day last week, and 589 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending October 10, 1925, were 10,852 cases, as compared with 10,732 cases for the previous week, and 11,827 cases for the same week last year. The total receipts from May 1, 1925, to October 10, 1925, were 275,217 cases, as against 307,352 cases for the same period a year ago The receipts last week showed an increase of 120 cases, as compared with the pervious week, and a decrease of 975 cases with the same week last year, and the total receipts for the season to date have been 32,135 cases smaller than in 1924.

Owing to the much cooler weather prevailing throughout the country of late, there has been a further general reduction in the production of eggs, and in consequence of which supplies of strictly fresh stock here have been smaller, with the result that a stronger feeling developed in the market at the close of the week and dealers in some cases stated that higher prices would no doubt rule in the near future. The demand for this class of stock during the week was in excess of the offerings.

The condition of the market for storage eggs is unchanged from a week ago, prices being steady with supplies ample to meet all requirements and as the consumptive demand was chiefly for this class of stock a fairly active business was done, but the movement on the whole was not quite up to expectations for the season of the year.

BUTTER MARKET

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—At the Quebec Federated Co-operative Society auction sale, held here last week, there were 1,150 packages creamery butter offered, as against 1,050 packages for the previous week ,and 3,610 packages for the same week last year. The bidding was not as keen as of late, and only 400 packages No. 1 creamery were sold at 44 1-8c per lb., which showed a decline of 3-8c per lb., as compared with the previous sale, but it was 9 5-8 c lb. higher than in 1924. The best bid made for 750 packages of No. 1 pasteurized was 44c per lb., with 45 1-8c per lb. asked

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Oct 12 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows

Sterling demand $4.83 1-8.
Sterling cables $4.83 5-8.

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—In a sensational upward fight, the wheat market Saturday went almost 6 cents a bushel higher. It was difficult for mills to purchase immediate supplies here, that resort was had to contracts for December delivery. Meanwhile, crop advices from Australia and Argentina indicated that Europeans have perhaps been miscalculating, and that Canada and the United States may be called upon to furnish a greater amount of breadstuff shipments than has of late appeared to be likely.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 3 5-8 to 3c net higher; Dec. 143 3-4 to 143 7-8 and May 143 5-8 to 143 7-8 with corn 1-8 to 1-2c down, oats unchanged to 1-4c up and provisions unchanged to 25c lower.

Speculative trading in wheat expanded nearly in proportion to the rapid upturns in price. December delivery of wheat reversed ordinary conditions, and at one time jumped to a premium of about 1 cent a bushel over May, with cash milling demand keen at 8c to 10c a bushel above the December price if the wheat was of choice grade and available here to be used at once. At this juncture primary receipts throughout the United States Saturday were reported as having dwindled to but little more than half as much as a week ago, and to well under a third of the parallel 1925 figures

Highest prices Saturday for wheat were reached in the last hour. What reaction ensued before the close was ascribed to evening-up of accounts prior to a holiday here today, whereas Minneapolis, Duluth, Winnipeg and Liverpool will all be open. Word of drought becoming serious in Australia was one of the main factors which gave impetus to buying here. Estimates were current that the Australian yield would be 37,000,000 to 54,000,000 bushels below last year's production. Reports were also at hand that damage by frost was feared in Argentina. To some degree, the United States government crop report was likewise construed as an encouragement to purchase.

MONTREAL MARKETS

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was fair, but owing to the further strength that developed in Winnipeg for all lines, exporters stated that the prices bid were all out of line and no new business of importance was reported. There was some demand from local dealers for car lots of oats and the tone of the market was firm. Sales of Ontario No. 2 white were made at 50 1-2 to 51 cents, No. 3 white at 49 1-2, and No. 4 white at 47 1-2 cents per bushel, ex-track. Canadian western grades were quoted at 1-2 cent per bushel higher Trading in Ontario malting barley continues slow and No. 3 grade was quoted at 82 cents per bushel, ex-track.

While the tone of the market for spring wheat grades of flour was stronger, prices failed to show any change. The volume of business in winter wheat flour was reported small, but prices were steady.

The tone of the market for millfeed continued easy and millers in some cases reduced prices one to two dollars per ton, but notwithstanding this fact, there has been no official change announced as yet. Standard grades of rolled oats were steady.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending October 10, 1925, were 9,217 packages, which show a decrease of 7,803 packages, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 24,853 packages with the same week last year, but the total arrivals from May 1 to date have been 1,328 packages in excess of the same period for 1925.

The trade in butter during the past week was comparatively quiet and in consequence of which an easier feeling prevailed in the market for the earlier makes with the result that prices closed 1c per lb, firmer. On the other hand the market for late made goods showed no important change, owing to the fact that holders generally have confidence in the situation and that all the high grade butter will be wanted later on at higher figures.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending October 10, 1925, were 46,537 boxes which show a decrease of 15,790 boxes, as compared with the previous week, and a decrease of 2,215 boxes with the same week last year, while the total receipts for the season to date show an increase of 66,909 boxes with the same period for 1924.

Owing to the lull in the demand from English importers for cheese and the fact that the movement for export account was the smallest for several week past a much easier feeling prevailed in the market at the close of the week and prices at some of the boards in the country on Friday were reduced considerable, which in some cases were refused by the factorymen with the hopes of realizing more money for their offerings this week. On spot business was also slow and in the absence of important transactions prices were nominal.

Beans were steady at $2.40 to $2.50 per bushel

A THOUGHT.

RETRACING STEPS CALLS FOR COURAGE.

Success has always seemed to me like a series of foothills, then higher hills, and finally, great mountain peaks.

Some men are satisfied to remain in the valley, others have just enough ambition to reach the foothills. Some have more ambition and eventually reach the top of a high hill, while a few ascend to the apex of the towering mountains. And by this illustration you will agree that ambition is often of greater importance than mere ability.

The average man, when he reaches the foothills, can see much higher hills, and even the mountains, but he knows that he is not a "bird"—that he has no wings to fly from one point to some higher pinnacle. If he has sense, he will realize that in order to reach the apex of some higher hill, he must first descend, then ascend.

Few men have the courage to descend in order to ascend.

They can see a much higher point over on the next hill, but they lack the courage to walk down, then walk up. They seem to hope that some day they may soar from point to peak without the effort of descending and then ascending.

Any man standing on a hill can see thousands of others struggling up the hill or stumbling down the hill.

When you climb to a given high point, you can see higher points, but most men would rather whittle away on some Darius Green flying machine than take the long trip down the trail, and then up again.

There are millions of men down in the valley of laziness. There are tens of thousands of men up in the foothills of Little Ambition. There are hundreds who reach the higher hills of Hard Striving, and a few are "sitting on top of the world."

Millions of men in the valley have the ability, but they lack the ambition to climb; and when they do climb higher and get the vision, they refuse to come down, that they may go up again—higher. — The Silent Partner.

OPEN LETTER NO. 18

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Priv Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

Every Canadian should take—every intelligent Canadian does take—a vital interest in plans for pulling the Canadian National Railways out of the hole. And for the compelling reason that the recurring annual deficits of that system have to be paid in taxes of one kind or another!

The chief cause of trouble is that we have too much railway plant in Canada for the population to be served. If we could just get another 5,000,000 people into the country, our problem would be solved. But we will be exceedingly lucky if we secure any such increase in ten years, whereas we want to place our railway system on a self-sustaining basis this year, if we possibly can!

A railway has two main sources of revenue—passengers and freight. A passenger train earns on the average $2.00 per mile, where a freight train earns $5.00. Hauling freight, therefore, is much the more profitable branch of the business. And it's by intelligently cultivating that branch that we will most quickly succeed in wiping out the deficit of the C.N.R., and thus reducing taxes.

Some freight is hauled at high rates, some at low rates. Theoretically it costs no more to haul a car of dry goods a mile than it does to haul a car of wheat a mile. But dry goods are so much more valuable in proportion to their weight that they will stand a rate several times as high as wheat. There is a big profit in hauling dry goods, but the margin of profit in hauling wheat is exceedingly small.

Wheat is hauled from our Prairies to the head of the lakes at rates so low per ton per mile that they are unparalleled in the whole world of steam transportation!

Glad as our railways would be to haul twice the amount of wheat they do out of our Prairie Provinces, because of what it would mean to the country as a whole, their net earnings would be but slightly increased thereby. But if they could get the hauling of twice the amount of general merchandise they have at present, their net earnings would be enormously increased!

Tariff reductions that result in increased importations of foreign merchandise automatically reduce the freight earnings of our railways, first by depriving them of the full local rate, and leaving them only their proportion of a through rate—a much lower net—on the merchandise itself, and second by depriving them of all the haulage of the materials that would have been used to make the domestic goods so displaced.

The closing of the Libby-Owens glass factory in Hamilton illustrates this point very nicely. Built and equipped at a cost of $2,000,000 as one of the most efficient glass plants in the world, and operated under the same capable management as the parent company in the United States, the Hamilton industry began under conditions that fully warranted the expectation that it would soon drive imported window glass entirely out of the Canadian market. But it soon transpired that its product could not stand up in the domestic market in competition with the product of the same company's branch plant in Belgium. The much cheaper labor available in the latter country, supplemented by a marked depreciation in Belgian francs against which your Government refused to give the Hamilton plant protection, combined to create a situation where it was actually more profitable for the company to supply the Canadian market from its European plant and let the Hamilton plant stand idle, despite the heavy carrying charges involved in allowing a $2,000,000 investment to remain absolutely unproductive.

By that incident alone, Canadian railways lost the hauling of 50,000 tons—say 2,000 carloads—of raw material per year, to say nothing of the handling of the general merchandise that would have been consumed by the families of the 200 skilled workers thrown out of employment.

Canadian textile mills alone could give our railways the hauling of 50,000 carloads of material per year more than they give them now, if they could only get the making of the textiles, now imported, which they are fully equipped to make with practically no additional investment for machinery!

From just these two illustrations, isn't it apparent that a tariff that would adequately protect Canadian labor against the child-labor, the sweat shops, and the depreciated currencies of Europe would go far towards solving the problem of our annual C.N.R. deficit? Certainly, in the absence of such a tariff, we are finding ourselves impoverished on the one hand, and subjected to higher taxation on the other!

Yours respectfully,

Man, Inspired By Preacher. Turns Detective And Reveals Store Of Whiskey To Police

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—A vivid sermon on the evils of drink at a mission last Thursday night led one of the congregation to turn detective, and cause a raid on a Vine Street clothing store, where, police say, whiskey was peddled at ten cents a drink and thirty-five cents a half pint.

Edward M. Cowell, 1834 Arch Street, appeared in the 10th and Buttonwood Streets station on Friday to testify against James Darling, 11th Street, near Fairmount Avenue, who was arrested in the raid. Darling was defended by John R. K. Scott.

Cowell told Magistrate Beaton that he attended a 9th Street mission, and that the preacher's indictment of the rum traffic greatly impressed him. When he left the mission he was approached by a man who invited him to have a drink.

Cowell said he was taken to a clothing store on Vine Street near 8th, and that a rack of clothing was pushed to one side, disclosing an opening in a partition. Cowell said he and his companion had a ten-cent drink apiece, and that he then bought a half pint of liquor for thirty-five cents.

Cowell said he took the liquor to the Detective Bureau, where it was turned over to members of Unit No. 1. Cowell swore to an affidavit on which a search warrant was obtained. Sergeant Harkins led a raid on the clothing store. It was testified the police had to break down the partition. They said they found a small quantity of liquor and fifty empty half-pint bottles and a small pile of corks.

Darling was held in $500 bail for the Grand Jury.

Sixteen Year Old Woodstock Girl Killed When Car Turned Turtle.

DANGEROUS CURVE.

Forced to Other Side of the Road by Car—Hit Bank.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—Pinned beneath an automobile when it turned turtle on the side of the road about four miles south of Woodstock last night Ruby Flood, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flood, of this city, was instantly killed, and Kent Stevens, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Stevens, who was driving in the car, is suffering from a severe shock. The accident took place on a dangerous curve on the Norwich road and, according to Stevens, he was momentarily blinded by the glaring headlights of another car which, coming sharply around the curve, forced him to cross to the other side of the road to avoid a collision. He ran into a bank on the side of the road and the car turned over. The girl was dead when picked up.

FINANCE MAGNATE DIED SATURDAY

James B. Duke Was Millionaire Philanthropist—Huge Benefactions.

TOBACCO INTERESTS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press) — James B. Duke, tobacco manufacturer and owner of extensive water power developments on the Saguenay River in Quebec and in North and South Carolina, died at his residence here on Saturday night after an illness of several weeks following a nervous breakdown.

In one of his last statements Mr. Duke said his death would have no effect on the future of his varied interests as all were in good hands. For several years he had not been active in the conduct of his enterprises.

James B. Duke was a multi-millionaire philanthropist. The extent of his wealth was indicated by his recent establishment of $40,000,000 trust fund for the benefit of Trinity College at Durham, N.C., which changed its name to Duke University when it received a gift of $6,000,000 and other educational and humanitarian projects in the South.

Mr. Duke's interest in the development of water power arose when he conceived the idea of discovering a method of producing cheap fertilizer for the farmer. He had a scheme for production of phosphate from rock by means of electricity, a method which he thought would be more inexpensive than the use of acid. He bought extensive water-power rights in South and North Carolina and organized the Southern Power System. Latterly he had been interested in a gigantic development on the Saguenay River.

Mr. Duke's interest in the tobacco industry dated from Civil War times when his father, Washington Duke, established a factory in Durham, N.C. The business developed rapidly and in 1890 James Duke formed the American Tobacco Company taking in numerous other concerns. The company was later dissolved under the Anti-Trust Law, Mr. Duke becoming president of the British-American Tobacco Company. His interest in waterpower came later when he began to invest in cotton mills which made use of his power developed in his Carolina plants.

PEERS DAUGHTER PRAISES LABOR

More Culture Among Clyde Men Than in Aristocratic Drawing Rooms.

IS IN EARNEST.

LONDON, October 12. — Lady Cynthia Mosley, the daughter of the late Lord Curzon, before the London Press Club Saturday evening, discussed her position as Labor candidate for Parliament. Among other things, she said there was more culture among the "Red" men from the Clyde than in any Mayfair drawing room. She then went on to explain her own attitude, saying:

"I do not look upon myself as a stunt, as I happen to be very much in earnest, and I do not think it at all odd that I should belong to Labor. The only thing that appears odd to me is that other people should think it funny."

She could not help but think she and her husband were just as much handicapped entering the Labor party as a laboring man entering the Conservative party and yet if any attacked him they were looked upon as snobs.

"To attack us," she exclaimed, "is only snobbishness the other way round. The Labor party is an intelligent, delightful family."

CHEAPER AIR RATES.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—Reduced winter flying rates between Paris and London makes it possible to accomplish the journey for about five pence a mile. The Imperial Air Ways Company announced a reduction in one way fares from six guineas to five and for the round trip from 11 guineas to 10. This amounts to about double the rail and boat fares.

CYCLIST KILLED.

Naval Vessels Watching Out For Bodies Of Crew Of S-51

NEWPORT, R.I., Oct. 12. — Figuring that it is about time for the bodies of any of the crew of the sunken submarine S-51, not inside the hull, to be coming to the surface, a close watch has been ordered by all naval craft passing the vicinity of the wreck off Block Island.

On Wednesday the tug Triton was sent from the torpedo station here to cruise about the scene, and Thursday Lieutenant Clarence A. Hawkins, who, from his seaplane, was first to discover the oil slick that marked the spot where the submarine went down, made a flight over Block Island Sound. Neither discovered any bodies.

A boat is to be sent from New London to keep up the search.

FIVE SHIPS WERE ADRIFT IN STORM

Four Coast Guard Patrols and One Steamer Swept Out By Gale.

1 CREW RESCUED.

BOSTON, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press),—The storm that lashed the Atlantic seaboard on Saturday disabled or distressed four craft, it was revealed in radio messages received here yesterday. Three were coastguard patrol boats operating in New England waters. The fourth was the Danish tanker, Brosaund, reported early yesterday in distress off Newport News, Va.

The coastguard patrol boats 128, 238 and 147, operating out of Nantucket, Boston and New London respectively, were caught in the 70-mile gale. Last night, the crew of six of the 128 had been rescued by the Cunarder Cameronia, the 238 was still adrift without fuel off Cape Cod, and the 147 was reported to have been picked up by the cutter Mojave, which was towing her back to her base.

Since early morning, nothing has been heard from the Brosund. At that time the S.S. American of the American-Hawaiian Line was reported standing by. Later a fragment of a message, which read "we are towing her to N.A.M." was picked up but the sender and the station addressed were lost 'N.A.M. is the radio call for Norfolk, Va.

The possibility that a fifth vessel might be in distress was revealed when another incomplete message was intercepted, stating that a steamer was aground at "Old Point Prov—" the sender station addressed and the remainder of the name were not picked up.

Boston dispatches early today reported coastguard patrol No. 238 adrift, without fuel, in approximately the same location. Two destroyers from Provincetown and the cutter Tampa were seeking the drifting craft.

The message was also seen as clearing the mystery of the earlier S.O.S. call, supposed to have been sent out by the unidentified vessel from about 200 miles east of Nantucket Lightship.

Rider Was Crushed Between Car and the Side of Ditch.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—Clarence Austin, 30, who was injured Saturday morning when he was run down by a motor car while riding his bicycle on the Chatham-Dover town line a few miles out of the city, died Saturday night in the General Hospital.

Austin was proceeding north and a motor car driven by James Highgate of Chatham township, proceeding south, had turned out to pass a wagon. Highgate attempted to avoid hitting Austin and turned toward the ditch. The bumper, however, struck the bicycle and carried Austin over the embankment and he was crushed between the side of the ditch and the car.

AUTO RACER DIES FROM INJURIES

Axle Broke and Car Smashed Among Spectators—Twenty Hurt.

FRACTURED LEGS.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press.) — Al Waters, Chicago automobile race driver, was injured fatally and ten spectators hurt, four seriously, when his automobile went through a fence while racing at the Michigan State Fair grounds yesterday. Waters died en route to hospital.

Waters was on the 146th lap of a 150 mile race and had just passed the grand stand when his rear axle broke. The car turned at a right angle and crashed into a low fence where the crowd had gathered to watch the finish.

Of the twenty persons injured, thirteen suffered fractured legs. The other seven were cut and bruised. The four persons critically injured suffered fractures of both legs, internal injuries and had not regained consciousness last night.

They were: E. J. Miller, Mayville, Mich.; Joe Begin, Detroit; Ralph W. Lambright, Detroit, and Harold Ellison, Milan, Mich.

Waters arrived for the race yesterday too late to qualify and successfully pleaded with officials to be allowed to start. He was attempting to remain in fourth place, which would have put him in the prize money, when the accident happened.

After again closing the season with the big figures on the wrong side of the ledger, it is considered improbable that the Michigan-Ontario League will try it another year, unless after a complete reorganization.

Why Don't All Children Grow Up Strong and Healthy and Happy?

IT is the birthright of every boy and girl to grow up from childhood into manhood and womanhood with the equipment for making life successful, happy, worthwhile—to have a well-developed, healthy body and a clear, quick-thinking mind. Mothers! Do you realize that in your hands is the key to these desirable things for your children? Health experts will tell you that a child's physical future—its health, its size, its appearance—are determined by its food. Proper balance of food elements is vitally important. Even the form in which their food comes to your children is a deciding factor, for the contours of the face and head—the very outlines which make up their appearance in later life—depend, to a surprising degree, on the exercise of the jaws and facial muscles. For normal development of these bones and muscles, children must eat foods that require chewing.

Grape-Nuts is an ideal food for your children. It is made from whole wheat and malted barley which give to it a mighty store of the most nourishing food elements—carbohydrates for energy; iron to enrich the blood; phosphorus for strong teeth and bones; protein for muscle and body-building; and the essential vitamin-B, a builder of the appetite. Grape-Nuts is a splendidly-balanced food—for strength—for growth—for health.

And the form of Grape-Nuts is beneficial to the teeth—gives them the exercise they need. Kiddies love to chew the crisp, crunchy Grape-Nuts granules. They delight in the wonderful nut-like Grape-Nuts flavor.

Little bodies digest Grape-Nuts with ease—special baking transforms its precious health-giving nourishment into a form that is the most easily digested of all food substances.

Start your children off on Grape-Nuts to-morrow. Give each one four teaspoonfuls with milk or cream. Such a serving costs less than one cent and is ample because Grape-Nuts is such highly-concentrated nourishment. All grocers have Grape-Nuts in wax-wrapped packages. It comes to you ready to eat.

"Yes siree, six horses can move the moon, almost," repeated Mr. Johnson, as the boys assembled in the barnyard, stood by and watched the horses hitched up to the old log cabin tool-house by chains enough to hold seventeen battleships at anchor in a storm.

It was the famous and long looked for Saturday, when the more famous log cabin Johnson tool-house was to be moved to the new location in the Greenwood, and to become the headquarters of the Robin Hood band of Merry Men of the Greenwood.

The cabin was stripped of everything loose, including the door and windows.

"But what about the stone fireplace?" exclaimed Roy Preston. "It will be all cracked and joggled down.

"The noise of chains and horses whinnying in excitement contracted from the boys, was not enough to prevent every boy present from hearing every remark of every degree of sound.

"Oh, wait, Mr. Johnson, cried several.

"What about the stone fireplace?" cried every Merry Man present.

The shout was too much for the over-excited horses. They were all six hitched and almost ready to go, just waiting on the placing of some more logs for the house to roll on, when the big shout came about the stone fireplace. The horses took the noise for a signal that something needed moving, and, with a wild but strangely united effort, they started off with the log cabin, dragging it across the barnyard, through the gate, which was considerably widened in that operation, and half way across the field towards the cedar rail fence and the Greenwood, before they decided to stop and ask anyone just exactly where the thing would look best, or where it was desired that they should stop on their next mad dash, should they decide to move without any orders a second time.

Such a scene of confusion and yelling, the whole town had not seen for many moons. The first awful yank on the chains was enough to wreck any modern building, but as Mr. Johnson put it, "I put that log cabin together with heavy wooded pins and drove them in with an ax, so the old tool-house went on a jazz dance with the horses, surrounded by yelling boys, but was not nearly so puffed out at the finish as they were.

The chimney withstood the first jerk, and for a time it looked as though the stone fireplace would make the aimless trip without damage, for every stone seemed holding its own, but when the big barnyard gate let the horses through but was not wide enough for the cabin, good night!!! One corner hit the big cedar post and knocked it flatter than a pancake, but the post gave the cabin a severe jolt, knocking it sideways and, to the dismay of all the boys, down came the chimney top, bang, bankety-bang, on the roof. There was a pause, and it looked as though the six horses would take the post jolt as a signal to stop, for they hesitated in confusion, as if waiting on Mr. Johnson's voice to call "whoa!" and everyone but Mr. Johnson was whoaing, and he was calling them by name to try to calm them, when, with a dull rumble inside the cabin, down fell the whole bag of stone tricks called a fireplace, making a cloud of lime-dust burst out everywhere and that, added to the dull rumbling crash, was again too much for the horses, they must have decided with what brains they had left, that a log and limestone fiend was after them, for they went madly on, the band of wild Indians, or mad Merry Men, pouring through the wide opening in the fence just to add a sort of lively tail to the fiend.

"Ah, say, fellows, gloomily grumbled Jimmy Britton, who should have been playing the jolly Friar Tuck and seeing the comical side of it, "now look at the thing! Winter coming and no fireplace. Now where are we going to fry eggs and make toast and—— Yes, and look at the old chimney hole in the roof that will leak and——

"Oh what a jolly Friar we have!" This from Ned-the-Red, as he danced like a wild Indian around the house, singing it over and over, until all the Merry Men began to see that things were not half bad after all, and, even Mr. Johnson and Wess were patting the horses and grinning and taking the whole accidental runaway as a big move in the right direction, for, as Wess said, "I should have told you Merry Men that the chimney fell down each time and had to be rebuilt anyway and besides the house can't fall to pieces and is too hard a pull for the horses to go far, and anyway, we are nearly half way to the spot Don and Jimmy and I picked.

This seemed to give everyone fresh heart, so they had to pick some outlet for their enthusiasm, and what could be more natural than to dance and sing and follow the song Ned-the-Red was rhyming.

Oh, what a jolly Friar we have,
He laughs the whole day long,
But let our chimney tumble down,
Then watch our jolly Friar frown,
We'll change him to a circus clown,
And then we'll all be merry.

—W. H. R.

Friar Tuck's face began to grow red and he hardly knew what to do, until the whirling circle gathered him in and he found himself dancing and singing the song, if anything, prouder and louder than the rest.

When the boys stopped for breath, they heard Wess call to his father, "All ready Dad, and with that, the horses now under proper control, strained at the chains and the old tool-house was slowly dragged over the field to the fence. The Merry Men dragged the cedar rails aside and the log cabin was pulled between trees and over bumps without a single stop, so well had Mr. Johnson picked the way, and it finally rested in a woodland glade, not far from the fence, and on a slight knoll.

It was half-past one, and the boys began to feel tired and hollow, when Mrs. Johnson blew the Robin Hood horn. Wess ran over and in a moment three shrill blasts sounded. Even Mr Johnson responded to that call, for, unknown to the Merry Men, Mrs. Johnson had a big boiled ham, brown bread and a pot of baked beans on a rough table in the yard, but all the mothers knew in advance, and what followed after dinner, will be told next Saturday.

The Girl Guide Of The Rockies

HER CABIN AT O'HARA — AN OLD ALPINE HUT BUILT 15 YEARS AGO BY THE ALPINE CLIMBERS OF CANADA

LAKE O'HARA OVER WHOSE ENVIRONS SID BREWSTER PRESIDES

MISS SIDNEY BREWSTER, ONE OF THE MOST ACCOMPLISHED ALL-ROUND SPORTS CANADA HAS PRODUCED

Miss Sid Brewster of Lake O'Hara a Wonder to Eastern Tourists—Great Rider, Mountaineer and Athlete —But She Can See "God Kissing the Mountains"

By MADGE MACBETH

It seems somehow as though every lover of sport should know Sid Brewster. As an all-round athlete she has few equals. Her undertakings are all marked with that playing-the-game spirit that is as difficult as it is distinctive. In that spirit she approaches life itself.

This girl, the meeting of whom enriched my summer and forged a stronger sense of kinship between me and the Rocky mountains, came out of a rustic cabin to welcome me as I rode into Lake O'Hara Bungalow Camp, one evening when the mountains were saturated in claret and the sky looked like the ceiling of some extravagantly-painted dance hall. A slender young hostess, looking more like a boy than a girl, in her breeks and buckskin jacket.

Her hair is sleek and black and bobbed. Her eyes are Irish blue. But be not deceived by their wide innocence. They miss nothing. But they search with a philosopher's tolerance. I never saw Sid Brewster impatient of a tenderfoot's weakness or ignorance. The only time I felt the edge or her temper was when a young boy vented his irritation on the side of a horse. With perfect courtesy and deceptive gentleness, she asked him to dismount, and jumping herself into the saddle she rode the patient and unoffending animal back to the corral! The young man did not ride that morning. He was too astonished to protest.

A faint "Whoo-oo-oo" brought her to a standstill on the threshold. She looked to the sky-crowned peaks.

"There's a party of Alpine climbers on Odaray," she said. "This morning they were signalling to us from five different mountains at the same time. I felt quite an urge for alpineering—although nothing can equal the fun of riding a horse."

Sid Brewster—one should say, Miss, but one doesn't — is a member of THE Brewster family, who, scarcely less than our first great transcontinental railroad, helped to make accessible the west. Before construction were the Brewsters, and in every direction they pushed farther and farther from the established routes of travel. They are outfitters, packers, transportation agents; they manage hotels, ranches, and they breed horses. They are mountaineers, horsemen and hunters. As a pioneering family, they stand supreme. They know the west as no other family does, and few individuals

Sidney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Brewster. "Bill," as he is better known (the Brewsters rise above the affectation of titles, and are Jim and George and Fred and Jack both to the men they employ and to those who employ them), is the head of the Transport Company whose branches operate all through the Rocky mountains, and Mrs. Bill with her sons, conducts a "Dude Ranch" at Kananskis.

Saving Life of Male Guide.

Sid can't remember learning to ride. She used to sit on a horse in front of her mother until she was old enough to hold on behind, and then she had a pony of her own. This was at a time when most children are learning to walk. Often the pony's gait became too slow, so Sid and her brothers would rope and mount young calves and have "a real good ride!" The delight of this pastime can be appreciated perhaps only by an expert woman rider who has the skill but not the strength to subdue a bucking horse!

Sid was scarcely more than a child when her father undertook the transport business of Glacier Park, Montana. The pioneering instinct, which was the strongest of her inheritance ,prompted her to strike out for herself in a course for which she had no precedent. Never before had there been a girl guide—and such a little girl guide, at that. Pioneers, guides, woodsmen and some say riders are born, not made. There is an indescribable quality in the way Sid Brewster sit her horse, takes a trail, selects a spot for the fire, builds and extinguishes it; in the very way she eats her meals in camp that differentiates her from other girls and inspires confidence in her city-bred companions. But all the good tourists in Glacier Park had not seen her in action, so to say; many of them were suspicious of so youthful a guide. They couldn't accept the idea of being personally conducted by a girl.

One of her most amusing experiences occurred in connection with a lady who refused her services. All the guides were out except one chap who because of a bad heart was no good for climbing or even riding in high altitudes. And unfortunately this tourist wanted to take a steep high trail. And, furthermore, she simply wouldn't have me.

"The corral boss asked me what he should do. 'Send Dick with her,' I said, 'and I'll follow them to see that nothing serious happens,"....

She laughed.

"I got up about seven thousand feet, found th two horses happily cropping grass, and the two riders unconscious on the trail. It seems that the lady, who was feeling queerer and queerer, appealed to the bold he-man, only to find that he had grown greyer and greyer, finally slipping from his horse in her path. The exertion of trying to help him was too much, and so she gave up the job and drifted off into unconsciousness, too. I revived him, and together we got her on her horse, and the three of us sought lower and less spectacular regions."

When one asks a Brewster to tell of startling experiences, one does not receive an immediate answer. Said member of the family to me:

"The unusual things you are looking for are so ordinary to me that I can't think of anything just now. They are part of the everyday life of a man on the trail, and make little or no impression."

Gives Skating Exhibitions.

Sid practically echoed that answer when I put the question to her. She was reluctant to "make copy" or pose as a heroine in any way. True, she admitted having to swim a swollen mountain torrent that but a few days perviously had offered safe and easy fording; and she mentioned reservedly, a flight before a forest fire. Ponies, povisions, equipment —all were commandeered. Guides and tourist had to seek a refuge on foot. A few of the latter, unfamiliar with the nature of forest fires, complained bitterly.

"It was quite a problem to handle them," remarked the girl, briefly.

Equally does she excel in winter sports. Her hockey playing is quite famous in and about Banff. If you happened to visit Quebec last winter you will remember seeing her skiing or skijoring, flying through the street behind a sleigh or a motor car.

And curiously enough, she combines with this sportiveness a well-developed domesticity. She plays accurately, if simply, on the piano. She designs all of her costumes and makes most of them. Her Indian blanket coat and scarlet breeches are excellent examples of the modiste's art. She is a milliner of no mean ability.

Stranger still, she is a wonderful housekeeper and likes her job! Presiding as hostess and manager of Lake O'Hara Camp may not seem particularly exalting to the casual reader, but then the casual reader probably doesn't know that Lake O'Hara lies nine high and stony miles from the nearest railroad, and every ounce of food and furnishing has to be packed in!

Beds, tables, chairs, the kitchen stove, pots and pans, basins, linen, china and the bath tubs have to be transported on the backs of sturdy horses.

"I bring in all my staples at the beginning of each season," said Miss Brewster, "using ten or twelve animals each carrying some 200 pounds. It's rather fun to estimate supplies, and last year I came out just about even. A good guess, likely. Three times a week fresh stuff comes up, oranges, lettuce, vegetables, eggs and so on. I'm never afraid of running short, unless a bear gets into the supply house!"

I wish I had taken her photograph, lifting a crate of eggs from a pack-horse. She eased it down without a mishap.

Like all true mountain lovers, she is deeply emotional. There is in her great blue eyes a distant, rapt expression as she gazes at some violet-misted peak —tactfully waiting until the panting tourist struggles up behind her. The mountains are her visible tablets in stone—an ageless religion. For the Lake O'Hara district her love is almost fanatical, and especially for Lake MacArthur that lies like the deceit of an enchantment more than half way up to heaven.

We camped up there one night when the moonlight in the pool was like a handful of silver in a widow's lap," and she was inarticulate in her delight. Next morning dawn brushed the surrounding peaks with an unearthly radiance.

"God is kissing the mountains," she whispered, and turning I saw that her cheek was wet with tears.

OPENING LECTURE EXTENSION COURSE

MARMORA, Oct. 12.—The first lecture of the University Extension Course for the 1925-26 season was delivered in the Town Hall, Marmora, on Friday evening, Oct. 9th.

Professor D. R. Keyes, of Toronto, now most familiar to Marmora audiences, delighted his hearers on the present occasion with a very able handling of the subject "World Problems of Our Day." Prior to the lecture, Miss Marion Shannon played several pianoforte pieces with her customary ability.

Rev. P. Caiger-Watson occupied the chair for the evening. The attendance was very limited, the cold weather possibly affecting it.

In opening his lecture, Professor Keyes remarked that the world at present was by no means on easy street, but rather was in an uneasy position. World problems of today are racial, national, provincial, economical, educational and hygienic. Water is the starting point of history.

The Spirit of God moved on the face of the waters at the creation of the world. The lecturer next enumerated the great rivers of the world and told of the civilizations which had sprung up along their banks. The history of the early world is the history of conquest of those who lived in the valleys by those who lived in the mountains and hills. Quoting a German writer, Professor Keyes detailed how each person in his own experience goes through the history of the human race, commencing in childhood with inclination to be fighting. History, began in Asia and Africa.

The lecturer [illegible] at the way the English people have taken the world into their hands. "The world is the white man's burden however," he said. He next advanced the belief that the Canadians within a thousand years would be as tanned in complexion as the Indians are now. One of the most peculiar developments of civilization has been the learning that man is older upon the earth than was at first believed: Man is many thousands of years older than 4004 B.C. On the American continent it has been discovered that 4000 years ago existed civilized people. Coming to European civilization, that took its source from Greece. The Greeks made marvellous advances. They were like precocious children who run up quick. They possessed a wonderful civilization. Their power was more mental than physical. They suffered by conquest. Under Alexander the Great, they conquered the Persians. Conquered by the Romans, they in turn conquered Rome, mentally. "We are," declared Prof. Keyes, "going through a period now something like that of the decline of Rome." How have troubles arisen in the world today? There are three great bodies in Europe, the Northern or Teutonic nations, the Southern or Latin nations and the Slavs. The spirit of national and racial hatred as excercised by the one against the other is the worst thing in the world.

The solution of all the world's problems as they face us today is obtained by taking the spirit of Jesus, whereby we love our neighbour as ourself. At the close of the lecture, Mr. Collins, Principal of Marmora Continuation School proposed a vote of thanks which was seconded by the Rev. F. J. Horwood. The audience dispersed after having sung the national anthem.

The Committee purpose giving two prizes as in the past for best essays by students of the Continuation School on any subject of the series.

A radio and electrical exhibition is planned in Tokio this month. All sorts of up-to-date equipment for the home are to be shown, including electric washing machines.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DICKY GOES HUNTING.

Dicky shouldered his gun and started out the gate and down the road. He hadn't gone far when something stirred in the grasses at the side of the road and darted away. Dicky couldn't see just what it was.

"Pshaw," he laughed good naturedly, "why didn't I shoot first then ask. Hmm, Dicky," he laughed again, "I guess you don't care about shooting."

"Who you talking to?" asked a squeaky voice and Dicky looked up to see a dear little bird standing a few feet from him in the roadway. "I thought you were Dicky?"

"Sure, that's my name," Dicky laughed, "but I was just talking to myself. Was that you running through the grasses in front of me a second ago?"

"Guessed it the first time," chuckled the bird. "I knew what a hunter's gun looks like, and I knew the second I was you, that gun was a pop-gun."

"You're right, Mr.-what-ever-your name-is," laughed Dicky. "I'm a friend of Squeedee's and Happy Giggles. I wouldn't harm anything. May I ask what kind of a bird you are? I've never seen any bird like you before."

"Haven't you heard folks say, 'Thin as a Rail,' well," and the little bird that was just a wee bit smaller than Rail. Folks down here call me Carolina Rail or Sora, either name goes with me so long as they don't bag me. Take a good look at me and you'll know me when you see me the next time."

"Folks Call Me Carolina Rail."

His little olive brown suit was flicked with black and gray. His head was black with a stripe of light on the crown. The sides of his head cut to an ashy gray color. He wore a slate colored vest spotted with white.

"My, but you're a pretty fellow," agreed Dicky, "I'll bet you're a dandy on the wing."

"No boy, I'm bum on the fly," chirped Mr. Rail. "You see my wings are too round to make a good flyer. But I'll not take my top-knot off to any bird when it comes to swimming and diving."

"The idea," Dicky exclaimed. "So you can swim."

"I'll say I can," chuckled Mr. Rail. "And stay under water, too, if you please. Why, the other day some hunters were scouring the ponds around here. I was out and I dived down under the water, with just the tip of my bill sticking out so I could get air. I stayed that way for ever so long and the hunters soon became discouraged and left. Why, I can't afford to be caught. I've a wife to look after and a family worth mentioning."

"Oh, I'd love to meet them," said Dicky. "Does she look anything like you?"

"Don't believe you could tell us apart," replied Mr. Rail. "You see we wear suits that give us the most protection. Folks can't hardly see us, unless they catch us unawares. The wife and youngsters are out on a picnic. Come around some time and meet them," and, like a flash of lightning, Mr. Rail scooted away among the grasses and weeds, and Dicky soon lost sight of him.

"I'm glad my gun is only a pop-gun," Dicky laughed and away he trudged down the path, in hopes he'd meet a few more of the meadow folks.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

HOUSES SHOULD ADMIT MORE SUNBEAMS.

Not long ago I saw a London dispatch printed in a Western newspaper. It prophesied that these mysterious agents we call vitamins are capable of revolutionizing life.

An English doctor was quoted as follows:

"Vitamins are nothing more nor less than stored-up sunlight, or ultra violet energy, yet they are able to cure 60 per cent of man's ills. The vitamin element may be obtained by eating fruit, chiefly oranges and lemons, but the same effect is secured if the sun's rays reach man's body. Fruit simply catches and stores up the vitamin element obtained from the sun's rays.

"Search is being made for a fabric which affords protection from other elements, but which still admits the ultra violet rays to the body. Artificial silk admits these rays. Real silk does not."

There is no question that sunlight promotes health. More and more, men are living in houses made to admit the maximum of sunlight. When everybody does this mankind will be healthier Any form of dress or manner of life which promotes contact with the sun's rays increases health and vigor.

It is rather interesting that every food authority recommends the leaf vegetables as carriers of the vitamins. It may well be that the large surfaces of their leaves do absorb and imprison agencies which are capable of being imparted to human beings.

It is never discouraging to me to face the unknown things in life. I realize how stimulating these are to scientific thought. The more difficult and baffling a game, the more study will be given it to find a solution. It is exactly the same with the scientific game. The laboratory workers and other scientists are working day and night to solve the mysteries which remain dark and uncertain.

Welcome news comes to us that the cause of cancer has been discovered. It is doubtful if doctors anywhere will accept this announcement as well founded. They are great skeptics, but sometime, if not now, somebody will discover the cause, and not long after that the cure will be found.

But even though we do not know exactly what vitamins are, we do know that certain fruits and vegetables and the sunlight possess powers which enable them to give growth and vigorous health to all animals, including the human animal. We will do well to accept this as one of the established truths. Acting upon it we can assist kind Nature in keeping us well and strong.

ACCIDENTS COST MORE THAN WAR

Preventable Mishaps and Diseases Take Mighty Toll of Population.

Written Especially for the United Press by Harry E. Mock, M.D., Member Gorgas Memorial Institute.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (United Press)—Preventable accidents and preventable diseases!

Those two factors are responsible for much of the wastage of manpower that marks our present civilization. They cause an irresistible onward drift of thousands to the human scrap heap.

One out of every two hundred persons living in the United States will be permanently disabled by industrial accidents this year; a total of 500,000 Another million other men and women will sustain disabling accidents which will necessitate absence from work four weeks or ore. Disease and accidents of everyday life add another million of handicapped individuals. That's the story our facts have to tell.

More Casualties Than War.

Each year for the past fifty, the industrial demands of this nation have resulted in a far greater number of disabled men than the total list of our casualties from the World War.

It is time for us as a people to consider and put into effect ways of restoring to economic usefulness, self-assurance and renewed interest in life those victims of industry whose injuries have maimed or disabled them beyond all possibility of return to their usual occupations. Many organizations such as the Gorgas Memorial Institute and large employers of labor realize the suffering and economic waste involved and are anxious to wake an enlightened public opinion which will demand betterment.

The real solution is not in laws, but in a businesslike consideration of the whole problem. It will be necessary to consider every community as a large single industry. Then to make a survey of every job in that community and supply a man who has the proper physical and occupational training.

Eve of Great Change.

The nation is on the eve of a great change. Before long a certain handicap, such as heart disease, the loss of an arm or legs will not necessarily bar a man from a job as it has in the past. Those who employ men are even now judging according to this formula: physical qualifications equal the job.

For the injured there must be more and better provision made for proper convalescent care after hospital treatment is completed. Closely allied to such treatment is vocational training when necessary. For it happens in many instances that a man or woman is permanently incapacitated to earn a living in the accustomed way, and they need new training to qualify them for work which they are physically fitted to do.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13.

The astral mutations for this day point to doubts and uncertainty in business as well as in personal affairs. There is a sign of fraud or deception, as well as the danger of loss through speculation. There may be similar experiences in subtle transactinons or possibly regarding letters or writings. In domestic, social and affectional relations the position of Venus is foreboding.

Those whose birthday it is may have an unsatisfactory year, with possible loss through deception, fraud or speculation. Their home or heart affairs may also prove troublesome or inharmonious. A child born on this day may have some unusual talent, but it will probably not have a very good disposition unless it be given proper training. It may also require training in the matter of personal tidiness.

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.

Physicians and scientists know that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause, it is amazing to see how the grayness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation. It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no tests to make—as this one clean, colorless liquid is effective on any gray hair. Money back instantly if Kolor-Bak is not satisfactory.

MAP NO GUIDE; LOST IN CITY

Boy Picked Up By Sergeant Wigg at Two in Morning.

SEEKING WORK.

Trying to follow a roughly scribbled road map directing him from Cavan Township to Dummer Township, a boy who said he was a ward of the Children's Aid Society of Hamilton, lost his bearings in the city early Sunday morning and was given a friendly reception at the police station. To Sergeant Wigg he identified himself as Gordon Gilliland, stating that he had been working for Joseph Staples, near Ida. Because Mr. Staples had expressed dissatisfaction with his work, the boy decided to leave him, and was advised by James Davis, who also works near Ida, that he could get a place with Davis' brother near Warsaw. So Davis drafted the route the boy was to follow, and about two o'clock Sunday morning he was wandering about the city when Sergt. Wigg took him in charge. The map indicated a canal to be crossed, various churches to be passed and other land marks to guide him. In the city his quest was for the canal which Davis had marked on the map. Sergt. Wigg transferred the boy on Sunday to George Powell of the Children's Aid Society.

ELEVEN HUNDRED IN HOLY NAME PARADE

Annual Rally of District Societies Held at St. Peter's Cathedral.

Eleven hundred and thirty men, including about one hundred and fifty juniors, marched in procession yesterday from Central Park to St. Peter's Cathedral, in a monster demonstration of loyalty and reverence to the sacred name of Jesus Christ. It was the annual rally of the Holy Name societies of the city and district, and the men and boys forming the procession marched two abreast along Aylmer street from Central Park and up Hunter to the Cathedral, in a solemn and impressive public testimonial to their faith.

In the procession, headed by H. Gainey, as grand marshal, Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. P. Costello and Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Messrs. A. Doherty, J. J. Hanrahan, and Thos. Turcotte, were men from the three city parishes, and from the district, from Douro, Cobourg, Downeyville, Ennismore, Grafton, Hastings, Lakefield, Young's Point, Lindsay, Norwood and Port Hope. Clergymen in the procession included Rev. Fathers P. Galvin, J. Collins, J. Guiry, J. Finn, P. Butler, Garvey, Moloney, J. McAuley.

In the Cathedral, where singing of seevral hymns by the assembled men was led by Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore, ushers were Messrs. J. J. Duffus, V. J. McElderry, J. Corkery, Junior, J. K. Sheehy, J. E. Sullivan and A. J. Reynolds. The big edifice was packed to the doors, many people standing in the aisles and on the choir stairways. The special sermon was preached by Rt. Rev. Monsignor O'Sullivan, president of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, followed by Benediction solemnized by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, assisted by Rev. J. J. O'Brien of the Sacred Heart parish. An impressive portion of the ceremony in the Cathedral was the repetition by the men in unison of their Holy Name pledges, with right hands upraised.

Monsignor O'Sullivan, in a brief, impressive oration, took his text from the First Epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians, 16th chapter, 13th and 14th verses: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, be manful, be strong. Let all your things be done in charity."

Congratulating his congregaion on their demonstration of faith, "doing what men do not like to do in public," the reverend speaker said such a gathering was a protest against the sinful and blasphemous use of the name of Jesus and against all organizations of any nature that leave Christ out of their programme of service. "There is great need for us to stand strong in the faith. This is the fundamental principle of our Christianity. On all sides today we find the decay of so-called religion. Men are wearing the garb of religion and yet casting aside all foundation for their teaching by denying that Christ was God. The answer of the men around Him to Christ's query: "Who do men say I am?" was the same fluctuating answer, full of doubts and surmises, that is vouchsafed by many in the world today. The answer of faith in the reply of Peter: "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God," after nineteen hundred years, is duplicated today, not by the bishops and clergy alone, but by the rank and file of the Catholic Church, in a public proclamation of their belief that Christ is God, and that the gates of hell shall not prevail against His church. We believe that we have not here a lasting city, but we look for the one that is to come and therefore we place a higher value upon things supernatural that we do upon the things of this world, much as we love them."

Monsignor O'Sullivan alluded to the three forms of society instituted by God; the home ,the state and the church, each in its own way absolutely necessary to the happiness and welfare of mankind. "We believe that God wants us to give loyalty and reevrence, service and love to each of these forms of society. We believe that society is built upon the home. If you drive out the home, you destroy society and its external expression, which is the state or the nation. We want Catholic homes and happy homes and happy children in these homes throughout the length and breadth of this fair Dominion, and if we have in them the principle of the love of God and our neighbor then we will be a happy and a contented and a prosperous nation.

We are banded together uncompromisingly against anything that will weaken the authority or the happiness of our homes. Those things like divorce and birth control, which mean national bankruptcy and suicide, which weaken the bond between husband and wife, are a curse to the land, as are all other social evils which are rampant under the guise of modern progress.

"There is no need to be afraid of these Holy Name rallies. We have no social platforms or political axes to grind. We are simply Christians in a Christian country, standing for Jesus Christ and proclaiming under that glorious old flag that is marked with the triple crosses of St. Andrew, St. Patrick and St. George that we want all men to know that Jesus Christ is God and that we stand for His honor and glory.

"The Holy Name Society is as old as Christianity itself. Christ directed us to honor the Holy name when He said: 'Whatsoever you ask the Father in my name, it will be given to you.' St. Paul said that at the name of Christ every knee should bend.

"Let our religion be something more than a mere badge worn on stated occasions, or on Sunday in the church. Let it enter into the warp and woof our our lives, into our homes and our dealings in business and in society, into our municipal and national life. Then will men learn to respect you and be drawn nearer to the Church. It is a grand thing to be a Catholic and it is a grand and inspiring thing to be a member of the Holy Name Society.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

"The Kingdom of Heaven is likened to a king who made a marriage feast," a text from the first verse of the twenty-second Gospel of St. Matthew, was the theme of the sermon delivered at the morning masses of St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday by Rev. P. Costello.

The reverend speaker drew a parallel between the action of the king, as recorded in the Gospel, and the Church provided for men and women in this world. "God seems to respect above all other things the free will of men. It has been said that He who brought us into the world without our will, will not save us without our co-operation."

But the Jews were a stiff-necked race. Many of those bidden to the feast would not come. Some simply turned away from the servants of God, others went on with their affairs and paid no attention to them whatever, and others laid hands upon them and put them to death. And the king sent out into the highways and byways for guests, just as God took His countenance away from the ungrateful Jews and gave His Gospel to the Gentiles.

The man who appeared without a wedding garment was likened to the soul that appears before its Maker in the state of mortal sin and is cast out into the darkness of eternal night. "The wedding garment is the state of sanctifying grace in which the soul should be clad."

"The Catholic man should be a good man. He should be honest and pure and truthful and strive to stand for those things which are according to God's law. He should make use of the Blessed Sacrament of the altar and put into practice in his daily life the precepts which will clothe his soul with sanctifying grace."

GILMOUR MEMORIAL

Special singing by the choir augmented for the occasion, and two eloquent and inspiring sermons by the Rev. C. M Carew of Fenelon Falls, marked the 83rd anniversary services at the Gilmour Memorial Church yesterday.

At the morning service Rev. Mr. Carew spoke on "Things Seen." The choir rendered two anthems, "Adore and Magnify the Lord," and "The Lord is My Light and My Salvation," and a quartette party sang "He Waiteth to Welcome Me Home."

In the evening, Mr. Carew took as his subject, "Things Unseen," basing his address on 2nd Corinthians, 4-18 "While we look not at the things which are seen but at the things which are not seen for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal." Mr. Carew dwelt at some length on the tendency of man to regard the material things as being the only real things. What could be touched and handled was looked upon as the real. Mr. Carew quoted science to show that what could not be seen was the more important. A piece of wood which one thrust into the fire could be seen. But what could not be seen was the combustion of gases which caused the combustion and created the desired heat. Take a piece of coal and burn it. That which was left was the thing that could be seen. It was the unseen combinations in the coal that had produced the heat. The Christian was one who saw the unseen. Paul the Apostle was merely Saul of Tarsus with the power of seeing that to which he had formerly been blind. And the time when he had first become possessed of this ability to see the unseen was when he was stricken with blindness on the road to Damascus. Paul must then have realized that Stephen whose death he had witnessed, saw something that was invisible to his tormentors, something that explained the secret of his courage in refusing to recant when by so doing he could have saved himself from a terrible and ignominious death. Saul and the others saw Stephen; they saw the mob and the stones; but Stephen saw something they did not see. He saw, as he told them, the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God. Mr. Carew spoke of Paul seeing the unseen when before Festus and Agrippa and cited the examples of Joseph and Daniel who remained true to their trust because they saw beyond the things of sense and time, and of David when he went out to meet the giant, Goliath

He spoke of Ridley and Latimer bound back to back at the stake, when Latimer called out: "Fear not, Master Ridley, but play the man, for we shall this day light a candle in England that shall never be put out." These men saw the unseen.

Rev. Mr. Carew emphasized the impossibility of measuring the greater things by ordinary standards. No one could measure a mother's love. No one could estimate the influence of a church upon the community. Mr. Carew concluded his address with an earnest Gosepl appeal.

During the evening the choir sang "Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken"; a quintette of ladies of the church gave a selection "Tarry Thou," and Miss Mary Lewis sang a solo. "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters."

BROKEN TRUCK CAUSED WRECK

Work of Clearing Up Debris at Best's Station Will Continue All Week.

A broken truck is believed by C. N.R. officials to have caused the derailment of the eighteen cars of grain near Best's station last Wednesday morning. Investigations that have been carried on during the toil of clearing the track and cleaning up the wreckage of the freight cars indicate that a truck under one of the cars broke down throwing that car off the rails and dragging the next seventeen after it. Thirty thousand bushels of wheat are estimated to have been spilled along the roadbed and the work of gathering it up will take the rest of this week. The grain will be taken to Midland for reconditioning, but the cars are virtually a total loss except for the salvage of the trucks and other metal parts. The remainder will probably make a big bonfire. Some of the cars had piled up in a short cut or plowed at a tangent into its banks, and others had rolled off a hill, tumbling about forty feet down either side of the track. It was obviously a costly wreck, not only in the damage to the grain, but especially in the loss of rolling stock.

A machine gun mounting for airplanes, which sprays bullets as a sprinkling nozzle of a hose sprays water, is the newest war invention in England.

EMPLOYMENT IMPROVES.

Last week's employment figures would indicate that the demand for labor comes close to absorbing the supply. Forty-eight new applicants were recorded at the Charlotte Street bureau, while forty-six positions were secured.

THE HASTY AND INNACURATE MR. GORDON

Once again we have the illustration that while a lawyer may know law, he doesn't know manufactures. And, lacking real information, uses anything that comes to hand so long as it may answer his purpose. This time, to annihilate the Libby-Owens Sheet Glass Company, of Hamilton, though the factory was closed some time ago for want, and need, of a protective tariff.

Mr. Gordon rashly affirmed, at Peterborough, that the real reason for closing down the factory was that silica sand, used in the making of glass, cost 25 cents per ton in Antwerp, but $5.00 per ton by the time it reached Hamilton. This excessive cost at the factory closed the factory down.

We have an answer to Mr. Gordon from Mr. Ralph King, President of the Dominion Glass Company, and another from Mr. John W Hobbs, both entirely at variance with the accusations of the impulsive Mr. Gordon.

Mr. King points out that the sand, as used, represents less than five per cent of the cost of glass manufacture. The company completed its plant in 1921 at a cost of $2,000,000, but had to close down completely in March of 1923 and has not been in operation since. He adds the following facts in refutation of the allegation made by Mr. Gordon:

The wages paid in Belgium are about one-third of the wages that would be paid in Hamilton, to enable employees to maintain the North American style of living.

The duty now imposed by Canada on importations from Belgium is 11¼ per cent. Owing to the difference in exchange this duty does not begin to equal the advantages possessed by Belgian manufacturers owing to their depreciated currency. That over 95 per cent of all the window glass made in Belgium is exported to other countries. The prices are fixed weekly by a powerful Belgian society, the "Mutality." When a new factory starts operation in another country, the price is cut and the products dumped into that country, if the low tariff in force allows the Belgians to do so. The object is to eliminate the competing factory.

While the Canadian plant was in operation to Belgian discount to Canada was 40 per cent discount. When the Hamilton factory closed down, the 40 per cent discount was withdrawn and a 17½ per cent premium substituted. Canadians have been paying much higher prices for glass since 1923. Ask any contractor to tell you what he finds

If the Canadian customs tariff can be revised to afford protection against the United States and Belgium, the Canadian factory can reopen and make glass. If the present tariff stands, then Canadians must be content to pay the high price for Belgium glass.

Belgian manufacturers pay a freight rate of 29 cents per 100 lbs. from Antwerp to Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal. But the freight on glass from Hamilton to Halifax, St John, or Montreal varies from 91½ cents per hundred pounds, to 43 cents per 100 pounds, depending on quantity as shipped. From Hamilton to Vancouver the rate, less than carload, is $3.64½ cents per 100 pounds. In carload, $1.00 per 100 pounds.

So far as affecting other industries, all contributory to the making and shipping of glass, and so furnishing labor, the box shop would require yearly, 500 kegs of nails, 200 tons of straw, and 3,000,000 feet of lumber. In addition, 51,000 tons of raw materials are needed annually. All this is missed by the closing down of the factory.

Mr. J. W. Hobbs, who was interviewed, states in reply to Mr. Gordon, who he claimed had been sadly mis-informed as to the facts. The cost of the sand purchased for the Hamilton Glass Works represented less than two-thirds of one per cent of the finished product And Mr. Gordon affirms, in his inscrutable wisdom that such an expense as that was sufficient to close down the works.

Within thirty miles of Hamilton are found beds of sand, quite suitable for operations and which would have been developed following on continued operation of the Libby-Owens Glass Works. With exception of coal, over ninety-one per cent of the cost of making the glass was spent for Canadian labor and Canadian raw materials. Canada's duty on Belgian glass was reduced to 11¼ per cent ad valorem, in 1924. In Belgium the currency value today is 30 per cent lower than when the Canadian tariff was reduced.

He makes the following and closing remark, which is referred to the attention of Mr. Gordon, "It is extremely unfortunate and discouraging that those in public position with great authority, and possibly for ulterior reasons, do injury to a great industry without first seeking to ascertain the truth."

And the final question is: What has the Hon. George to say?

C.N.R. ENGINE WRECKS A CAR

Daniel Crealy Narrowly Escapes With Life at Reid Street.

NO GATEMAN.

Daniel Crealy, 26 years old, employed by Chas. Moore of Smith Township, escaped serious injury although his Ford coupe was wrecked by a C.N.R. engine at the Reid Street crossing near the Wm. Hamilton Company Foundry about 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

Crealy was driving south to attend the evening service at St. Andrew's Church, and the engine was backing westerly to pick up its train of wheat at Jackson Park, where it had cut off to come into the station yard for water. It is understood that none of the train crew was at the rear of the big engine, nor was there a gateman at the crossing. According to a reported custom, the gateman had gone home to supper at six o'clock, remaining off duty two hours until 8 p.m.

The automobile was struck on its left side and Mr. Crealy was thrown out. Dr. O'Brien, who attended him, ascertained that Crealy was not dangerously hurt, but advised him to go to the hospital for further examination. Mr. Crealy was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. His car was said to be practically ruined.

SHOT AND ROBBED.

Grocer Lost $50 to Three Men Who Fired and Escaped.

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Alexander Turner, aged 67, grocer, Don Mills Road, near Toronto, was shot in the right thigh and robbed of $50 as the result of a visit on Saturday night by three men, one of whom was armed with a short 32 calibre revolver. The robbers escaped in a closed car proceeding in the direction of the city.

The matter in this column has been supplied the Liberal-Conservative Publicity Committee, Peterborough.

THIS ELECTION GIVES YOU CHANCE TO VOTE FOR YOURSELF

For the very large proportion of the electorate upon whom party ties fall lightly and indeed for the whole mass of voters in Peterboro, this election should have more than usual significance. HERE IS A CHANCE TO VOTE FOR YOURSELF, instead of for an ambitious politician.

The chief issue is so plain that even those who usually pay little or no attention to politics are aware of it. Boiled down, it is whether the people want another four years of drift and disaster under a fiscal policy that is neither tariff for protection or tariff for revenue, but merely tariff for political manoeuvring,—a policy that has driven saner Liberals out of the Government; that has caused unemployment and business depression; that has stopped immigration almost completely and forced hundreds of thousand of Canadians to go to the United States in search of work; or whether this time they prefer to vote for a clearly defined policy of adequate protection—in other words, for themselves, their jobs, and their families' comfort.

HASN'T FOUR YEARS BEEN ENOUGH?

You have had four years of the Mackenzie King-Robert Forke Government. Look back over those years and ask yourself if you want four more years of bartering and compromising by a Government concerned only with keeping itself in office, while the industries of this country and the home market of the Canadian farmer go completely to pieces.

Defenders of the Mackenzie King—Robert Forke administration can argue until they are blue in the face, can quote figures until the audience is swimming in statistics, but arguments and figures never yet convinced a workman that times were good when he has been working but part time or not at all, never yet convinced a working man's wife that times were good when the income was not enough to take care of the family budget.

FOUR LEAN YEARS UNDER THE KIND OF GOVERNMENT MACKENZIE KING HAS BEEN MORE THAN ENOUGH.

This time, vote for yourself, for a policy that will build up Canadian industries, provide work for Canadian workers, keep Canada's raw materials for manufacture at home, restore the home market to Canadian farmers, and by ensuing the new comers of work at good wages, bring that increase in population that is absolutely necessary for Canada's prosperity.

PECK STANDS FOR THAT POLICY.

Adequate protection is the only policy that can bring these things about. E. A. Peck is the Candidate who appeals to you on that issue.

VOTE FOR PECK, PROTECTION, AND PROSPERITY.

The Liberal-Conservative Victory Committee of Peterboro.

WHEN CAR CRASHED IN TORONTO

A collision between two heavy motors at Davenport road and Bathurst street, Toronto, resulted in injuries to Mrs. G. Young, of Dundonald street, and little Rosemary Balfour, aged 20 months, the overturning of one car and damage to the other and the arrest of the driver, whose car is shown above being upturned after the impact. Three occupants of this machine crawled out after the impact quite unhurt.

The car that put the War in Warren

JIM WARREN bought a car—the "Ginger-bread Six."

Never heard of it before, but he happened to be walking along Automobile Row and during a lapse moment his foot slipped—he stepped inside.

"Nifty boat," said the salesman.

"Not bad," said Jim, as paint and doo-dabs got in their hypnotic work.

"But why isn't it advertised?" asked Jim.

"Don't need to advertise a job like that," was the forearmed reply. Sounded logical. But—

Six months later Jim had a collection of bolts and grease-cups and broken springs and disjointed steering mechanism and a motor that almost ran.

"Never again!" said Jim. "The car that's little known and never advertised hasn't much responsibility; little to live up to. Before I buy another car—or another anything—I'm going to get the facts. I'm going to read the advertisements about automobiles—or whatever I'm buying."

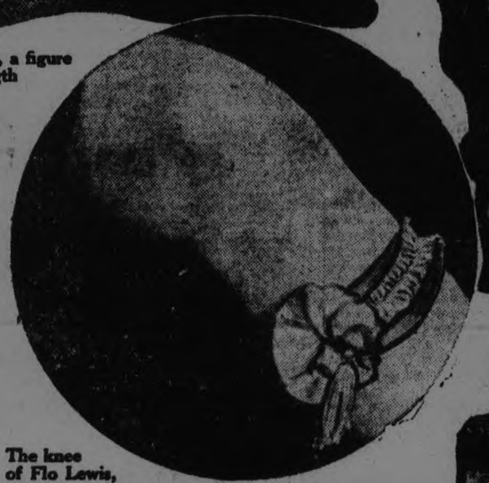
Advertisements are an invaluable guide to intelligent buying. Read them regularly

Just How Much Your Body May Be Worth

Why $3,000 Is a Bargain Price for a Baby, Why You Can Get More for Your Thumbs in Oregon Than in Wyoming and Other Curious Facts About the Value of Human Flesh and Bone

Under the New York workmen's compensation law different parts of the body are valued as follows: A, eye, $2,357.76; B, arm, $5,747.04; C, leg, $5,104.96; D, thumb, $1,105.20; E, hand, $4,494.48; F, foot, $5,776. Estimates of the body's value vary widely in different states. In Oregon a thumb is priced at $600, while in Wyoming you could get only $225 for one

"The Driller," by Charles H. Neihaus, a figure symbolic of the worker's strength

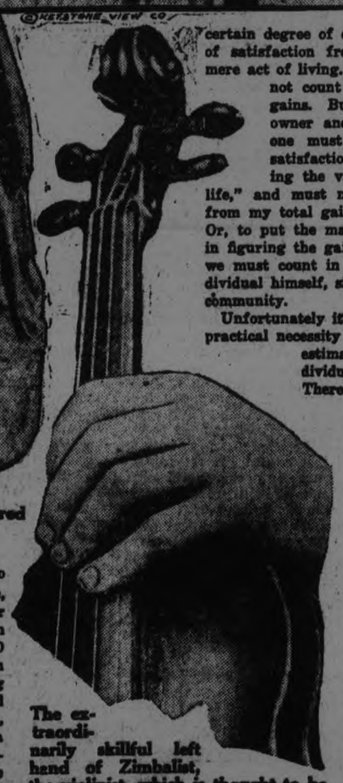


The knee of Flo Lewis, the dancer, for which she tried to collect $100,000 when it was injured

If the Venus de Milo had been a live modern woman and had paid $100 a year for insurance on her arms, she could have recovered $80,000 for the loss of them

On the left, Mlle. Valerie Martins, a well known pianist, whose hands were recently insured for $100,000

Insurance against taking measurements of Mme. Dorshkin's shapely dancing legs, on which she took out a $125,000 policy



The extraordinarily skillful left hand of Zimbalist, the violinist, which is thought to be worth at least $1,000,000 to him

IS a baby worth his weight in gold? Why, he would be cheap at the price. This is not the biased estimate of a fond mother. It is the verdict of cold calculation.

A baby weighs ten pounds, say. A dollar is the price of 23.22 grains of gold. So ten pounds in gold is almost exactly the equivalent of $3,000. When he grows up he will make this amount, and perhaps much more, every year. Even allowing for the years of apprenticeship to citizenhood, and perhaps for some unproductive years in the decline of life, he would be a remarkably good investment if purchased at $3,000.

Of course, this is only one aspect of the matter. Value is a relative thing. In the hands of a Zimbalist or Kreisler a Stradivarius violin may be worth $20,000. As kindling wood it is worth a fraction of a cent. The human body also has its scrap value.

How much is an adult human being worth as junk? It is a trifle humiliating to take stock, for we are made of very ordinary stuff. Of, say, 154 pounds of a human body's weight 96 pounds is mere water, a compound of oxygen and hydrogen. Then there is about 4½ pounds of oxygen and an equal amount of hydrogen combined in other forms in the body.

The most important constituent the chemist calls carbon, which is merely a polite way of referring in Latin to what in English we would speak of as coal. Of this there is 27¼ pounds, say two or three scuttlefuls.

Very important also is nitrogen; for although we treat with sublime indifference the ocean of nitrogen (together with 20 per cent of oxygen) in which we are bathed, puffing about a pint of it in and out at every breath, we cannot affect the same indifference when we pay the butcher's bill to buy combined nitrogen in the form of meat. Our body contains about 4½ pounds of such combined nitrogen.

Next in order of abundance comes calcium, 3 pounds, mostly in the bones, which consist chiefly of calcium carbonate, the same material that corals and shellfish have deposited in our limestone rocks.

The only other element of which we carry more than a pound is phosphorus, 1⅙ pounds, chiefly in the bones and in the brain. Of sulphur we have about ⅙ pound; of chlorine, principally in the form of salt, ¼ pound; of sodium, ¼ pound; potassium, ⅛ pound, and small quantities of magnesium, iron, iodine, fluorine (chiefly in the enamel of the teeth) and silicon. The iron is just about enough to make one eight-penny nail, 60 or 70 grains.

Total junk value about $18. Yet of such stuff are the world's great men made. Eighteen dollars' worth of flesh and blood composed the priceless symphonies of a Beethoven, wrote the immortal plays of a Shakespeare, conceived the scientific systems of a Copernicus, a Newton, an Einstein.

The value of the world's great men cannot be appraised by any practical standards. But what of the ordinary mortal? How can we estimate his worth?

First, as a machine. The unskilled laborer earns his living essentially by selling his man power, a variable quantity which averages perhaps about one twentieth of a horsepower through the working hours of the day. For brief periods of a minute or two a strong man's performance may rise to one-third of a horsepower; an athlete, on a walking tour, in perfect training, may even maintain this standard for ten or fifteen hours at a stretch.

As to efficiency—that is to say the fraction of the fuel energy (food) actually converted into useful work—the human machine does very well. It comes about half way between a railroad locomotive, which has an efficiency of about 10 per cent, and an aeroplane, that ranks about 30 per cent; the efficiency of human muscle is about 20 per cent.

In spite of its high efficiency, the human motor, as such, would be a very poor investment commercially, because it insists on a very special kind—and a very expensive kind—of fuel. The day's work of a man is equivalent to, say, about one pound of coal fed to a steam engine of the best construction, or, say, about half a cent's worth of coal. Even the most frugal fare of bread and water is extravagant as compared with this. As an engine, therefore, in spite of its very creditable efficiency, the human body would be a very bad investment, even if it were given us as a present—which, in a way, it is.

So we must seek another estimate of the value of the human body. The fact is, the body is not so much a machine as a factory, a collection of machines, with laborers, foremen, superintendents and all. Its value must be judged, if at all, as one would judge that of a factory, by the returns which it nets per annum.

Consider a man who earns on an average $3,000 a year through life. To gain the same income from invested capital we would need, at 5 per cent interest, a principal of $60,000. Is this a correct estimate of the man's worth? Evidently not, for a man lives on an average only about fifty years, and then has to be replaced. So he must put aside a certain fraction of his annual earnings, namely one-fiftieth, or 2 per cent, of his total worth, as a "sinking fund."

This means that we must figure the capital as invested not at 5 but at 5 plus 2, or 7 per cent, and the man's value comes out as $43,000 only. If his wife has no separate income, so that the pair between them produce $3,000 a year, then each, according to this method of computation, represents a value of $21,500. As for the "sinking fund," the money set aside to replace the individual when he dies, we do not ordinarily think of it in this way. It is the money spent on rearing children.

Fine points, such as the compounding of interest, have been left out, for the sake of simplicity, in this reckoning. But have we not also neglected an item altogether too important to be passed over without notice? Ought we not to subtract from a man's income his expenditure for food, etc., his bare cost of living? The point can be argued. Certainly, if in the days of slave labor a man purchased a human being to work for him, he would have to deduct from the value of the work the slave did for him the cost of maintenance of the slave, just as in figuring the profits from a manufacturing plant one must debit the cost of fuel and other materials consumed.

But when the working engine is one's own body the situation is different. The slave gets a certain degree of enjoyment or at least of satisfaction from eating, from the mere act of living. This the owner does not count in figuring his own gains. But when one is both owner and owned at one time one must count as gain the satisfaction secured in consuming the various "necessities of life," and must not, therefore, deduct from my total gains the cost of living. Or, to put the matter in another way, in figuring the gains of the community we must count in the gains to the individual himself, since he is part of the community.

Unfortunately it becomes a matter of practical necessity at times to make an estimate of the value of individual parts of the body. There is a grim humor in the variations of the tariff of legally fixed compensations for losses of limb.

If you should be so unfortunate as to lose a thumb it may pay you to stage the accident in Oregon, for example, where the law may award you $600 compensation, whereas in Wyoming you could collect at most only $225. In fact, if you had the choice between losing both thumbs in Wyoming and only one in Oregon, it would pay you to the extent of $50 cold cash to keep one thumb and have the affair brought off in Oregon.

A whole hand is worth $1,000 in Wyoming, $1,600 in Washington and $1,900 in Oregon. In New York they have a sliding scale; your compensation is in accordance with your normal earning capacity: Sixty weeks' pay for a thumb, 244 weeks' pay for a hand. So, by rule of three, a hand is equal to 4.67 thumbs; by what logic let the lawyers say. It is difficult to restrain a smile upon reading that a New York workman received $2,500 in compensation for having his nose bitten off by a horse.

We may speak lightly of these things, but the fact, of course, is that the loss by accident or disease of a member or a faculty is a serious misfortune, and often brings with it a serious loss of earning power. An idea of what such incapacitation by loss of a faculty means to the community can be gained from a computation made by Dr. H. Hays, of New York, who figures that the direct and indirect losses to the community of New York City by deafness amount to $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 each year.

All these estimates apply to persons of the average type, engaged in the ordinary pursuits of life. A very special situation arises in the case of the genius, the great pianist or violinist, whose hand is literally his wealth, or the opera singer, to whom loss of voice means reduction from a princely income to what in comparison may be a mere pittance. And let us not forget the dancer or the chorus girl whose face and form are her fortune.

The average man, according to the schedule of one of our insurance companies, may insure his hand for $40,000 at an annual premium of $100; a musician of the rank and file has to pay a special premium of $140. These figures include other benefits as well as compensation for the loss of limbs. As to the premiums paid by celebrities to protect their "working capital" it is said Kubelik, the violinist, insured one hand at an annual premium of $1,500, while Paderewski disbursed annually $4,000 for his two hands.

As for life insurance, there are three instances on record of men whose lives were valued at $4,000,000 or over—Jesse Lasky, Rodman Wanamaker and Pierre du Pont. The list of men insured at over $1,000,000 is so long as to be tedious. Perhaps it may be well to point out that in many cases, in most cases probably, these seemingly fanciful amounts represent the value set upon the men insured not by their own estimate but by that of their associates.

In figuring the capital value of the average man we have assumed that he lives about fifty years, and that with his death the capital is extinguished. In the case of the ordinary man this may be true in rough approximation. But it is the very reverse of true in the case of great artists that bequeath to us a wealth of masterpieces. For example, the aggregate value of the more notable of Gainsborough's paintings is rated at about a quarter of a million dollars. Here the work of the artist not only lives after him, but, much to his own disadvantage, its value actually rises.

This increase in value of the work of a man after the close of his earthly career is by no means merely a matter of fashion or of belated appreciation. The foundation of all modern electrical engineering was laid by a handful of men, chief of whom must be reckoned Michael Faraday. How is it possible to estimate the value of such a man to the world?

Or think of Pasteur and Lister, to whom we owe modern aseptic surgery, or of Sir Ronald Ross, who developed the modern methods of fighting malaria; think of all the men on that roll of honor to which the latest additions are the names of Drs. Banting and Best, originators of the insulin treatment for diabetes. Any attempt to put a value on the benefits bestowed on all posterity by such men as these can lead to little more than the conclusion that such things just can't be reckoned in dollars and cents.

HARVEST MOON

By Juanita Hamel

When the golden harvest moon hangs heavily on the brim of the earth, when all Nature gives the richest of her bountiful resources—in the olden days the dyrads danced a Dance of Thanks for the wonders that were given them. And little Miss Modern Girl reading the old, old story, steals out in the golden stillness of the October night, and dances her own Dance of Thanks for the joys of the love that is hers. Then the big golden moon, smiling benignly down upon her, bathes her in a flood of glory and indulgently listens to her song of praise and thanks.

SECRETS OF CHARM

— By Lucrezia Bori —

ON THE BEAUTY VALUE OF EXERCISE.

Sometimes I am really astonished to find as many women as I do who do not recognize the value of exercise and who do little or nothing to keep their bodies in beauty trim.

LUCREZIA BORI

Now, there was a time when strength was considered unfeminine. I am more than glad, at the present, to know that it is considered quite proper for a woman to possess muscular strength.

This does not mean that they develop huge biceps. They simply train all their muscles down to a firm strength and sureness. Their bodies are supple and strong and beautiful.

Thank goodness, we have learned to see beauty in strength and in health. We have found that real grace and charm lie in natural development. I want to impress these things on my readers, for I want all women to learn that they must aim toward sinuous, supple bodies.

The lithe, graceful, supple body attracts admiration. There is something pleasing, even magnetic, about the movements of a woman who has strong, trained muscles. Her movements possess distinct harmony.

Now I am stressing all these points because I do want every woman who reads this to stop and take a sort of beauty toll of herself.

Do you give your body any sort of real, regular exercise? Do you have a set rule about this?

I ask if you have a set rule, because if you simply trust to the inclination you are so very likely to pass up your daily exercise from time to time. You'll think, "Oh, to-day I have so much to do. I'll just wait till to-morrow to go out and take that walk I was planning."

My dears, the walk taken to-morrow will do for to-morrow, but it won't take the place of the walk you should take to-day. Also, I mention the walk because it is in reach of every woman, in no matter what station of life one finds herself.

If you go to business every day, you can surely find time for your walk, either in the morning or at night. If you stay at home and keep house, you should be able to manage a walk, even if you have to take it in the direction of the place where you do your marketing each day. Walk firmly and briskly, with your chest out, your shoulders back and your chin in.

If you live where you have a chance to enjoy outdoor sports, such as tennis or golf or riding, you are very lucky. Take every advantage of these benefits.

Remember, the daily exercise, regularly taken, builds up a store of strength for time of need and a store of beauty for all time.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

— By Annie Laurie —

MY DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl of nineteen years of age and love a young man very dearly. He says he loves me but when he meets some one else he tells me all about the fun he is having and makes me feel bad. He stays with them maybe for a week, then comes back to me. I wish you would tell me how to find out if he really loves me or if he is only fooling. Thanking you for the information, I remain. ROSIE.

ROSIE: I am afraid that your young man is inclined to be a philanderer. Perhaps you have shown him a little too plainly that you love him very dearly, as you say, and he takes advantage of the fact that you are willing to remain attached to a peg, so to speak, until he comes back and takes you down for awhile. How would it do for a change if you were to try a little flirting on your own account?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my late teens. I am fairly good looking—not pretty, and come of good family. I have only been out with a boy once in my life. Please tell me what I can do to get the attention of the male sex. The only boys who are attracted to me are boys whom I do not like. Should I cultivate their friendship and through them meet other boys? Please give me your advice. BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: Yes, that is quite a proper procedure, to cultivate people who may help you to meet others. It is done all the time and has nothing objectionable in it, provided you don't flirt too much with the young men you are using to attain your purpose. If you don't like them, as you say, you will hardly do that. Perhaps your difficulty has been that you are too hard to please. You know, a good rule is: "If I can't have what I like, I can at least like what I can have." Chauncey Depew was asked his secret of good health and he replied that he had always eaten, not what he liked, but what liked him, a rule that might apply to other situations in life, just as well. When you come to think of it, it is astonishing how many good qualities these people that we don't like really have. Liking is something like beauty, it often rests only in the eye of the beholder. Which is to say, why not try to like the ones who like you?

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am going with a young man that I am very fond of, he also seems to like me. He makes great efforts to be in my company and yet he says, "I am too precise.

What do you think are his reasons for saying this, and how am I to change his opinion? Yours sincerely, WONDERING.

WONDERING: It is quite probable that he really means that you are not affectionate enough. This is a petting age, you must remember. And it is also an off-color joke age. The two elements form a considerable portion of the programme of entertainment of the sheiks and shebas of the twentieth century. Of course, if you wish to change his opinion, you won't have an3 difficulty whatever. However, as you say he makes great efforts to be in your company, why change it? Why not try to keep him thinking that you are "too precise. You may be a refreshing companion to him merely by being yourself. Of course, on the other hand, you may be one of these all too proper young ladies who take offence at any little thing, and his reference may have something to do with that. You must figure it out for yourself.

A TONGUE TWISTER.

If your tongue be in good condition for doing a little acrobatic work, try reading the following word curiosity aloud:

If you stick a stick across a stick,
Or stick a cross across a stick,
Or cross a stick across a stick,
Or stick a cross across a cross,
Or cross a cross across a stick,
Or cross a cross across a cross,
Or stick a cross stick across a stick,
Or stick a crossed stick across a crossed stick,
Or cross a crossed stick across a cross,
Or cross a crossed stick across a stick,
Or cross a crossed stick across a crossed stick,
Would that be an acrostic?

Color Schemes

(Written for the United Press).

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (United Press).—Woe to the girl who doesn't match her garters to her petticoat for Fashion has dictated that we be garbed from the skin out in harmonizing or matching colors.

As the liners from Paris dock these days, dozens of returning buyers trip down the gangplanks in various solid color schemes. Hats, hand-bags, hosiery, handkerchiefs, gloves, coats and frocks all harmonize or are in exact shade. For some seasons we have been striving to match our hosiery and shoes with our costumes. Occasionally we have attempted to match the hat also. But this season we can't be haphazard about matching things.

Much can be said for solid color schemes. Certainly it is much easier to look chic when dressed in one color from hat to shoes than when dressed in startling contrasts. One of the pitfalls of the matching color scheme is the average woman's inability to select an appropriate and becoming color which can be worn so generously.

Dark shades or neutral ones are far easier to wear and far less tiring to the wearer than vivid or unusual shades. Too much of a certain shade may be completely overpowering. Take brown, for instance. A woman may have brown eyes and hair and if she is dressed in solid brown, her own coloring blends too well with her costume and offers no contrast.

A person with reddish hair, on the other hand, has just the needed color contrast with which brown can be worn. For the same reason persons of drab coloring should beware of light tans and drab shades. The vividly colored person can wear drab colors better than the neutral-toned person can.

It is very well to have one complete outfit of harmonizing color, but it would be very costly indeed to try to carry out the matching idea in all of one's outfits, since even the accessories must be purchased with the individual costume in mind.

ONCE UPON A TIME — SNOW-WHITE AND ROSE-RED. VII — by W. J. ENRIGHT.

JOHNSON'S BRILLIANT VICTORY BRING SENATORS NEAR TITLE

Veteran's Smoke and the Senators' Defence Equal to Every Emergency—Gosli n Gained Record For Most Circuit Blows in t he Championship.

BARNHARDT'S FINE CATCH.

GRIFFITHS STADIUM, Washington, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press).—Walter Johnson pitched his second victory of the world's series over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, blanking them 4 to 0, and giving the Senators a lead of three games to one in the championship battle.

Washington now needs only one more victory to clinch the title for the second straight year. Stanley Coveleskie will try to pitch the club to this to-day here.

Goose Goslin's home run with Rice and Stan. Harris on base in the third inning gave Washington the winning margin and ended the southpaw hopes of Emil Yde, who was withdrawn after Joe Harris had followed with another circuit blow and Joe Judge had walked. It was the second homer of the series for both Goslin and Joe Harris, and gave Goslin the record for most circuit blows in the championship games.

The Pirates got six hits off Johnson, one more than in the first game and had several chances to score, but found the big veteran's 'smoke' and the Sentator defence invincible in every emergency.

Stan. Harris was particularly brilliant on the defence, spearing Wright's smash with a jumping one-hand catch in the seventh and doubling Traynor off first, while in the ninth the Senator leader picked up Traynor's grounder, tagged out Barnhart on the base line and got the batter at first for another double play.

Barnhart's catch in the seventh up against left field bleacher rail cut off another prospective home run from the bat of Joe Harris, and was the big defensive play of the Pittsburghers.

Johnny Morrison and Babe Adams, playing in his first world's series since 1909, shared the hurling burden for the Pirates, after Yde went out, and held the Senators scoreless.

Max Carey got to second base twice, in the first and sixth, but was stranded both times, but the Pirates missed their best scoring chance in the second, when hits by Traynor and Grantham, mixed with a force out by Wright, put two men on bases. They advanced to second and third on Gooch's out, but Yde grounded to Stan. Harris to close the spurt.

WORLD'S SERIES NOTES.

Points and Pithy Pars From th e Battle Arena.

Goose Goslin's home run in the third inning gave him the world's series record for circuit clouting. It was his second of this series and his fifth in two years of championship competition, displacing the previous high total of four, hung up by Babe Ruth.

But for Walter Johnson's attempt to reach second on his drive to left that opened this inning, Goslin's blow would have come with the bases full. The Goose's clout grazed the finger-tips of Barnhart before it bounded into the bleachers, but Joe Harris, who followed with his second homer of the series, put the ball high and far into the same stands with one of the most terrific smashes of the series.

This home run orgy also tied several other series records, including the mark of two in one inning by one club, first done by the Giants in 1921, and the record of five for one club in a series, which the Senators themselves equalled last fall after the Giants and Yankees each had set the standard with five apiece in 1923.

Stan. Harris was called out at the plate in the seventh inning on an attempted double steal with Judge, but from the press box he looked safe by a good margin. The crowd thought so, too, for it jeered Umpire Moriarty for several minutes. Harris kicked strenuously, but since it wasn't a vital situation for the Senators, the squawks soon were silenced.

There was big cheer in the ei[illegible] Adams, veteran hero of [illegible] was sent to the box to replace [illegible]son.

Ruel, the batting [illegible]t" of the 1924 series, ranks among the heavy stickers this time. He had a perfect day at bat yesterday, blazing out three safe blows, one a double off Adams, and getting to base when hit by a pitched ball in his other appearance at the plate.

To the final overnight ruling of official scorers on the disputed play by which Goslin got to first base in the first inning of Saturday's game, Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, is credited with an error as well as a passed ball.

Yde got away to a shaky start when he passed Stan. Harris and Goslin in the first inning, but Joe Harris rapped to Traynor, and a snappy double play snuffed out the side.

Buddy Myer, Bluege's substitute at third, put Johnson in a hole in the second inning when he failed to handle two raps by Traynor and Grantham. Both were credited as hits, but they were of the scratchy variety, and probably would have been outs in the hands of a more experienced and steady infielder.

The Washington crowd came out yesterday to see Johnson pitch and Goslin pickle one. They got what they came for and went away happy. Stan. Harris pulled a neat bit of strategy in the eighth inning even if it did not work out. With Ruel on third and Myer on first, with one out and Johnson coming up, Bucky figured that the percentage favored Johnson hitting into a double play. He ordered a squeeze play, and had Johnson's tap been a bit longer Ruel would have scored. As it was, Gooch took Johnson's roller and plastered Ruel with the ball as he came up the line under full headway.

Ossie Bluege, Washington's star third baseman, who has been out of the game since he was hit on the head by a pitched ball in the second contest, watched yesterday's battle in citizen's clothes from the bench. He is coming around alright, but physicians are taking no chances, fearing a slight concussion.

Secretary of State Kellogg, an enthusiastic fan, dropped in at the champions' dressing rooms before the game to congratulate Manager Harris on Saturday's victory. He also posed for pictures with the manager.

SOCCER PLAYERS DID NOT APPEAR

Withdrawals in Both Leagues —Cups to be Won Yet in Junior Series.

MANY RUMORS.

The International soccer match scheduled for Saturday never materialized to what it was anticipated to be in the respect of securing funds on behalf of the injured players who were unfortunate during the past season.

When the hour arrived for the kick-off, the English 11 were present to a man to participate in the fray, but Oh, the Scots never turned up to complete a full team, but credit must be given to those who did make an appearance; also, the Junior quartette in the Scots team who made their appearance.

There was not a more disappointed person in the crowd than the President, Mr. Wyllie, who expected co-operation in every department but he did not get it from the players who failed to make their debut.

After a half-hour delay, two complete elevens took part in a friendly game, before a very meagre attendance of spectators, who turned out in a very cold, biting wind that was blowing from the west.

Withdrawal Fiasco.

It has been proven that the soccer moguls should give up the game for the season, 1925. No doubt this culmination has been brought about by the action of the Canadian Woollens withdrawing from the Senior League and leaving the Thistle champions again for the 1925 schedule. Not only has this unfortunate predicament been brought upon the forenamed body, but the Junior Association has been treated likewise when the Dummer and Warsaw teams withdrew from the Junior League, which left the executive in a peculiar position that proved the many soccer fans had been studying the Rules and Regulations more carefully than ever. After many discussions a very amicable decision was arrived at, when the Junior executive decided that the Canadian Packing Company and the De Laval meet in a replay decision for the league championship, in the near future.

Cups to Be Won Yet.

At the Junior Association meeting tonight, last Monday evening's business in connection with protests and transfers will be settled satisfactorp. Also the executive shall decide a cup-tie game for Saturday afternoon They have the Mayor Taylor and Bradburn Cups to be won yet, and the league championship. With all these games still to be played, the soccer fans will witness many interesting tussles.

Rumors Prevail.

According to rumors, many of the defunct team players have reverted back to the Junior ranks so as to be able to assist the elevens who may need strengthening at any rate, this is not conclusive until the player appears on the field of play.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 61 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Inside Golf—C .. ..

Golf never delivers the full volume of its charm as a sport to the player who is content merely to hit the ball.

This fact is not understood by thousands of so-called golfers. When such a golfer happens to connect with a fine ball now and then he gets, in the flight of the ball, a genuine hint of the continuous pleasure the game might give him, but he seldom appraises this hint correctly. The real charm of golf is in learning the swings, for in this sport the swing is everything. Hitting the ball becomes an incidental. The player who has perfected his swing always knows he is going to hit the ball. There is nothing else that the clubhead can do. Just how he is going to hit it—that is, with what exact effect—is the lure that makes golf many times more interesting to him than it can possibly be to the player whose whole concern is merely hitting the ball.

BALTIMORE ORIOLES WIN JUNIOR SERIES

Defeated Louisville in Eighth Game— Five Victories and Three Defeats.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press.)—The Baltimore Orioles, International League champions, captured the Junior World's Series title yesterday, defeating Louisville, of the American Association, 5 to 2, in the eighth game. Baltimore won five contests against Louisville's three.

Earnshaw, on the mound for the Orioles, was decidedly effective in the pinches. Baltimore got to DeBerry, the Colonels' hurler, who had tamed them effectively earlier in the series, and drove him from the box in the fourth inning. Wilkinson, who relieved him, held the Birds scoreless in the latter frames, but the damage had been done. The score:

Louisville	...020000000	2	10 0
Baltimore	...01130000?	5	10 1

SARNIA AGAIN WIN.

Nose Broken and Ankle Sprained Were Incidents in Game.

SARNIA , Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—Jack Newton's Sarnia Intermediate O. R. F. U. champions again turned back Doug Heustis and company here Saturday afternoon, 4 to 1, and need only one more victory in the next two starts to cinch the district championship. Like last Saturday's game ,the contest was a toss-up between the teams. Sandy Somerville failed three times to drop field goals over from inside the 25-yard line, and the smashing London attack, led by Stirrett, was stopped by the Sarnia defence several times under the shadow of their own goal posts. Both teams passed up several scoring chances through over eagerness.

The third game of the series will be played in Sarnia, October 24. Tex Boyett sustained a broken nose and Harry Smith a sprained ankle.

700,000 HORSEPOWER FROM TIDES.

Enough power to light and heat the entire eastern part of the United States and run all of its factories is promised by D. F. Cooper, a hydraulic engineer, who recently started a project to harness the tides of the Bay of Fundy, just off the coast of Maine, near Eastport.

He proposes to dam two inlets with giant walls and gates, and control 150 square miles of sea. The tide rises as much as 27 feet. By regulating the outflow it is figured that from 500,000 to 700,000 electric horsepower would be generated—twice the amount of energy that Muscle Shoals is expected to yield.

Cooper's prominence gives the plan to harness the tides of the Bay of Fundy new significance. He helped build the great hydroelectric power plant at Keokuk, Ia., on the Mississippi, and has built hydraulic power stations at Niagara Falls. The governor of Maine has given his approval to the new project, pending the result of the state referendum.

HOUDINI BELIEVED IN MEDIUMS ONCE

Relates How His Faith Was Shaken By Trapping Lincoln "Ghost."

Houdini, the world-famous magician, once was an ardent believer in spiritualism. And even today, after years of exposing fraudulent spiritualistic mediums, he is still not a skeptic.

This much he has just revealed in an article in which he renews his offer of $10,000 to any medium who can produce, under conditions laid down by him, any physical manifestation of psychic powers that he, Houdini, cannot duplicate by methods he uses as a professional magician.

"Although in 35 years I have not found a single genuine medium—one who does not produce his effects by purely natural means that any trained magician can duplicate," says Houdini, "I still have an open mind. I am willing to be convinced—even to believe, if a medium can demonstrate to me that he actually possesses true psychic power."

Relating the story of how his early belief in spiritualism was shaken, Houdini says:

"One point I have noticed with regard to mediums, a circumstance that should make any thinking person pause before accepting the manifestations he witnesses, is that no 'spirit' materialized by a medium ever offers anyt hng above the mental level of the medium. All spirits, that is, talk in character with the medium. Thus, I have heard an alleged spirit of George Washington speaking with an unmistakable cockney accent. I have heard the 'spirit of Shakespeare' make grammatical errors and use modern slang.

"It was something of that sort that caused me first to doubt the good faith of the average medium. When I was about 16 I attended a series of seances given by a medium—a tailor—at Beloit, Wis.. At the time I was a firm believer in spiritualism. This medium had impressed me greatly by the fact that he habitually put his sitters in touch with the spirits of great men—George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, Napoleon, Columbus.

"On the night that the 'spirit of Lincoln' began to address us, my interest mounted high, for Lincoln was my hero of heroes. I had read and studied every Lincoln book that was available at the time. I knew every published detail of the Great Emancipator's life. And I was vaguely conscious that night of something about the utterances of the 'spirit' that did not ring quite true. So at last, I asked:

"'Mr. Lincoln, what was the first thing you did after your mother was buried?'

"'I felt very bad,' replied the spirit glibly. 'I went to my room, and I wouldn't speak to any one for days.'

"Now, that reply probably would have been correct in a majority of cases, but it was not correct with regard to Lincoln. For Lincoln's first act when his father had buried his dead mother was to rush off to engage a clergyman to read the burial service over her grave—an act of respect which his father had neglected. And this was certainly not an incident that Lincoln was likely to forget—in the spirit world or elsewhere."

BOTANIST PREPARES TREATISE ON WORK

Has 110,000 Mounted Specimens in Collection—South Alberta.

PINCHER CREEK, Alta., Oct. 10 (Canadian Press).—Dr. M. O. Malte, chief botanist of the National Herbarium, Victoria Memorial Museum, Ottawa, and former dominion agrostologist, has been doing field work in the South of Alberta this season with Pincher Creek as headquarters.

Dr. Malte and his assistant, Wade Watson, graduate of Toronto university, have visited Pincher Creek, Kelly's Camp, Porcupine Hills and Waterton Lakes districts and are at present finishing their work at the latter point. During July and August, they were at Banff, Lake Louise, Red Deer, Nordegg, Coalspur and Rocky Mountain House, collecting very thoroughly of every type of vegetation to be found from the lowlands and river bottoms, to the mountain peaks. To date the collection contains about 5,000 mounted sheets representing nearly 2,000 species and varieties of flowering plants.

With more than 110,000 mounted specimens in his collection at the Victoria Memorial Museum, Dr. Malte will shortly publish a book on the flora of Canada, and perhaps a separate volume on the "Flora of Alberta."

Mr. Watson, after completing his season's work with Dr. Malte, will return to Toronto University as curator of the plant collection in the department of botany.

FIND 'RADIO ROOF' MILES ABOVE EARTH

Elimination of Fading May Result From Latest Wireless Discoveries.

Centuries ago people learned and firmly believed that the starry sky was solid. Science soon banished this illusion, but now in the twentieth century, radio experts of the U. S. Navy and the Carnegie Institution assure us that above us there is actually a remarkable "radio roof," an ionized ceiling that deflects waves bumping against it.

Its exact size, shape, and location must be determined through further experiments, but it is known to lie more than 100 miles above the earth, where our atmosphere fades into ether, says "Popular Science Monthly" for November. It rises and falls as atmospheric conditions vary.

This roof keeps radio waves traveling around the earth instead of shooting off into the unknown, and it is this that accounts for mysterious "dead areas," according to the experts. Early radio experimenters found that signals could be picked up at distances 40 or 50 miles from where they disappeared. These "skip distances" now can be explained. Horizontal electromagnetic waves sliding off the earth tangently into the sky, meet the radio roof and are deflected, rebounding to the earth 40 or 50 miles from where they left. These skip distances can be checked accurately by means of a simple mechanical device.

The discoveries are expected to be of great value in wireless communication, especially in eliminating "fading." The eventual achievement, according to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, will be the building of a high-frequency transmitting station, costing $60,000, that will give better service and longer anger than the present high-power stations costing $2,000,000.

ONE ALWAYS SMILES, ONE REFUSES

"Buster" Keaton never refuses to have his picture taken, but he does refuse to smile. Here he is, on the left, outside the private car in which he travelled to Toronto recently, with Archie Selwyn, New York producer, beside him. The photographer begged Buster to crack just a wee wee smile, and you see the result. Selwyn, who is a Canadian, is always smiling, except when he's asleep or conducting a rehearsal.

NEW DEPOSIT OF CHINA CLAY

The picture gives a glimpse of the china clay deposits in Northern Ontario near the Mattagami river, said to be the largest in the world. C. M. McCarthy, the discoverer, who owns the deposits with Mr. William Douglas, Toronto barrister, declares that an expert British engineer reports that it is the largest deposit of china clay in the world and as good quality as any ever found. It is estimated that 40,000,000 tons of the clay is available. A few miles from this spot Mr. McCarthy claims he has found a seam of coal "as good as Alberta coal" at a depth of about 114 feet. The picture shows where McCarthy's men dug a pit so a British engineer could inspect the depth of the china clay deposit.

ANTS WAGE SAVAGE BATTLE IN A ZOO

Army Formations, Trenches, Spies and Strategy Mark Strange War.

They staged a battle over in the London Zoo recently. The keepers turned a thousand or more animals loose, urged them to attack one another, and before the melee was over, several hundred had been killed and many others badly wounded. Excited spectators came to view the fight.

Why was such a thing allowed? Well, you see, all the "animals" were ants. That made it pretty safe for the human onlookers. But if you think that the battle was any less ferocious or deadly than a combat between tribes of wildcats or herds of elephants, you are mistaken. The ant, when properly aroused, can give any animal lessons in ruthlessness.

The most remarkable thing, however, was the way in which the opposing armies planned their campaigns and conducted their attacks. It was a demonstration that the ant can use his brains in the best of battle, as well as in the calmer days of peace.

It all started on a bright Monday morning, when one of the keeper of the Zoo placed a little wooden chip over the moat that separated two ant colonies—an old one that had been there for three years and a new one just arrived. The chip served as a bridge, and for the first time made possible communication between the two nests.

A member of the old colony got curious. He sneaked across the bridge and penetrated into the new nest. He never came back.

That meant war, the old ants decided. But they did not lose their heads and dash pell-mell across the bridge, only to be swallowed up by a possible ambush. Instead, they chose 10 of their best warriors and sent them out as scouts. These daring ants crawled across the chip of wood and crept cautiously into the enemy's territory.

An excited council of war must have followed, for in a few minutes there issued from the old nest an imposing army of warriors, marching in ranks as orderly as the Macedonian phalanx. A few scattered ants running alongside threw the white sand up into little mounds that could serve as "earthworks" in case fortifications were needed for defense. Then the whole band, now greatly augmented, swarmed across the bridge.

A lone ant of the new colony was out taking the air when he saw the hostile band pouring toward him, and he hurried back to the nest to warn the others. In a few seconds all his comrades were streaming out to the attack.

The carnage that followed was terrific. It lasted four days and nights. On one occasion an armistice was arranged, but it lasted only a few hours. Evidently the terms were broken by one side or the other, for the battle was resumed, and many wounded lay quivering on the white sand or floating helplessly in the water beneath the bridge, while dead bodies lay strewn everywhere. With their big mandibles the warriors slashed at one another in individual combat. They tossed the weaker ones into the moat; or, failing this, cut off their opponents' limbs and left, them helpless.

By Thursday afternoon the invaders from the old colony had been driven back across the bridge and practically annihilated. Their fortifications were useless, for the rout was complete. The new ants took some of their captives for slaves, killed the rest, and then went back home secure in victory. The workers cleared the dead from the field, and soon all was peaceful-looking again.

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Washington, Oct. 12.—(Canadian Press. — President and Mrs. Coolidge came back to join Washington's fandom to-day in cheering the Senators as they took the field in the fifth game with Pittsburgh Pirates, needing only one victory to clinch their second successive world's championship.

It was another battle of right-handers under overcast skies, with Stanley Coveleskie, veteran spitball star of the Senators, opposing Vic Aldridge, pitching hero of the only Pirate triumph in the series.

The stands were full, close to 38,000 being on hand.

Washington had its full strength back with Ossie Bluege, "beaned" third baseman again at his regular place, while the Pirates substituted the veteran Stuffy McInnis at first base for George Grantham.

To-Day's Line-Up.

Washington—Rice, cf; S. Harris, 2b; Goslin, lf; J. Harris, rf; Judge, 1b; Peckinpaugh, ss; Ruel, c; Bluege, 3b; Coveleskie, p.

Pittsburgh—Moore, 2b; Carey, cf; Cuyler, rf; Barnhart, lf; Traynor, 3b; Wright, ss; McInnis, 1b; Smith, c; Aldridge, p.

First Innings.

Pirates—Senators ran briskly to the field, and the crowd off third base applauded Bluege. Covey took a brief warm up in the box, while Moore polished up his bat near the plate. Moore sent up a foul to Peck, who ran over to the stands to make the catch. Carey got a line single into left. The ball fell near the foul line. Goslin took Barnhart's hard liner which was headed for the bleachers. Goose saved trouble. Carey remained on second. The hit and run play was on, but Traynor fouled the ball. Traynor got a base on balls. The bases were now filled. Wright went out, Covey to Stan. Harris to Judge. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Senators—Rice singled to right. Stan. Harris sacrificed, McInnis to Moore. Rice scored on Goslin's two-base hit to left. It was a Texas leaguer near the foul line. Judge swung hard for his third strike. J. Harris was given a base on balls. Smith tried to catch J. Harris off first. Traynor took Peck's grounder and touched third, retiring the side. One run, two hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Pirates—Goslin took McInnis's drive after a hard run. It is quite dark, which gives an advantage to the pitcher. Smith caught one of Covey's spitters and shot it into centre for one base. Aldridge hit into a double play, Bluege to Stan. Harris to Judge. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators—Ruel hit a ball around his neck and popped to Moore. Bluege fanned on three pitched balls. Covey complained he did not strike at ball. Covey walked, the fourth ball being low. Stuffy McInnis took Rice's high hopper and touched first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Third Innings.

Pirates—Bluege made short work of Moore's roller with a fast throw to first. Carey walked on four straight balls. Cuyler up. Carey stole second. He collided with Stan. Harris and fell to the ground. Cuyler was given a base on balls. Carey scored on Barnhart's single to left, Cuyler racing to third. On an attempted double steal, Barnhart went to second and Cuyler dashed for home, and then went back to third. Cuyler scored on Traynor's sacrifice fly to right. Rice threw to third and Barnhart held second. Zachary and Marberry are warming up for Washington. Peck tossed out Wright at first. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Senators—Harris bunted but was thrown out, Aldridge to McInnis. Goose went out, Moore to McInnis. He hit the first ball pitched. Judge flied out to Cuyler. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

Pirates — Peck took McInnis's puzzling grounder and got him at first. Smith singled to centre, his second hit of the game. Aldridge flied out to Goslin, and Smith held first. On the hit and run play, Moore singled into right and Smith went to third. Judge robbed Carey of a hit, taking the ball with his gloved hand as it was passing over the bag and then touching first. This would have been good for two bases. No runs, two hits, no errors.

HOME RUN.

Senators—J. Harris got a home run into left field stand. It was a terrific smash. It was his second home run in two days. Peck struck out, swinging at a drop curve for the third strike. Ruel singled over Wright's head. Bluege doubled to left, Ruel going to third. Covey took third strike and went back to bench. McInnis took Rice's grounder and went over and touched first and Pirates crawled out of a hole. One run, three hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Pirates—Rice took in Cuyler's long fly. Peck stood still and snared Barnhart's fly. Harris came in fast and took Traynor's low liner. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Senators—Moore threw out Harris at first. Cuyler made easy work of Goslin's fly. Judge lofted a high fly to Wright. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

Pirates—Wright hit a high fly to Goose. Peck took McInnis's grounder, juggled the ball, and threw badly to first. Smith hit into a double play, Coveleskie to Peck to Judge. No runs, no hits, one error.

Senators — Harris singled over Traynor's head. Peck sacrificed, McInnis to Moore. Joe Harris raced to second. Ruel got base on balls. Bluege struck out, and Joe Harris was thrown out at third, Smith to Traynor, for a double play. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Pirates—Bluege took Aldridge's hopper and retired him at first. Moore got a base on balls. Carey bunted but the ball rolled foul. Carey whipped a single into left. Moore stopping at second. Moore scored when Cuyler singled off Bluege's glove. Carey went to third. Carey scored on Barnhart's hit into right, Cuyler going to third. This blow knocked Covey out of the box. Ballou went into the box for Washington. Traynor struck out on three pitched balls. On an attempted double steal, Cuyler was run down, Ruel to Bluege, to Ruel to Bluege. Two runs, three hits, no errors.

Senators — Liebold batted for Ballou. Liebold got a two-base hit which hopped into the right field stand. A ground rule prevented him from getting a home run. Liebold scored on Rice's single through the box. Stan. Harris sacrificed, Smith to McInnis. Goslin flied out to Cuyler, and Rice raced to third on the catch. Judge got a base on balls. Cuyler raced back and took Harris' fly. One run, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

Pirates—Zachary went into the box for Washington. This was first left-hander to face the Pirates. Wright crashed a long hit to left for two bases. McInnis singled into right and Wright scored. Smith sacrificed, Zachary to Judge. Zachary took Aldridge's grounder and McInnis was run down, the play being Zachary to Harris to Bluege, to Peck. Rice took Moore's liner. One run, two hits, no errors.

Senators—Wright made a nice play on Peck's hot smash and threw him out. Wright also took Ruel's grounder, throwing him out at first. McInnis came over to the Senators' bench and took Bluege's towering foul. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Pirates—Carey is now batting right-handed. Zachary threw out Carey at first. He leaped into the air and stopped a grounder which took a high bound. Judge took Cuyler's hopper and ran over to first base. Barnhart got a base on balls. Traynor singled past Peck and Barnhart halted at second. Zachary was taken from the box and Marberry sent in to pitch. Barnhart scored on Wright's hot smash through Bluege for a hit. Traynor halted at second. Goslin took McInnis's fly. One run, two hits, no errors.

Senators—Adams batted for Marberry. Adams went out, Aldridge to McInnis. Wright made a nice stop of Rice's grounder, taking it over second base, and then making a nice throw. Harris flied out to Barnhart. No runs, no hits, no errors.

GOLDEN RULE IN BUSINESS BIG ROTARIAN TASK

Rev. Dr. Baker Declares This to be Biggest Problem To-day.

NO CODE OF ETHICS.

Rotarians Must Apply Principle to Their Own Business.

That Rotary had the biggest problem in the world to-day in seeking to put the golden rule into operation in business was the contention advanced by Rotarian Rev. Dr. Baker, of Belleville, in a stirring address on business methods before the Peterboro Rotary Club to-day.

Rev. Dr. Baker, who is principal of Albert College, deeply impressed local Rotarians, not only by the merit of what he said, but by the obvious sincerity of the speaker.

If Rotary was only to consist of meeting together, singing songs and now and then helping crippled children or some other worthy cause it would not deserve to live. Dr. Baker argued. But there was something more than that in Rotary and that was the opportunity it gave to put into practice in the business life of the community, the principle of the golden rule.

If this were done wars would cease ,not only wars between nations, but the conflict between capital and labour and between creeds.

There was no definite code of ethics in business, the speaker pointed out, and he declared that it was the problem of Rotary to put the golden rule into their own business and inspire their confreres in their field with a similar spirit.

President John Seels was in the chair and the attendance was good. It was announced that next Monday's meeting would be held in the evening and that the Cobourg Rotary Club would be present.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

DRAMA MAKES POST WAR VIENNA LIVE

Spirit of Austrian Capitol Interpreted by Miss Dean.

Exotic Vienese cafes, beautiful women, intoxicating music, Vienna's fascinating underworld — tempestuous, terrifying, entrancing—all these and too much more to tell about here are the contributing reasons why "The Crimson Runner," the attraction at the Regent Theatre is among the most stimulating and gripping dramas we have ever seen on the screen.

This is another one of those remarkable dramas which emerges as the product of the youngest producers in the country. Stromberg is a progressive young man and can be depended upon to make a real contribution to the screen with each new production. This time he has chosen a story written by Harvey Gates the author, who will be long remembered for the merit of his "Merry-Go-Round."

Like its predecessor, this story is woven about the working class of a European country but this time the working people are Apaches and the country is Austria. It is a virbrating tale of a daring female Robin Hood who rose out of the chaos and confusion that enveloped post-war Vienna, terrifying the aristocracy and tormenting the police, until a handsome young Count won her heart and hand and she found happiness and peace in the repose that wealth and leisure bought her.

Miss Dean, with her very fiery and lively portrayals, is most astonishingly atuned to this role than we have ever seen her before. At one time, she reflects all the cruelty and all the softness which the author intended "The Crimson Runner" to possess. She has caught the spirit of this romantic drama and carries it along to the very end. In this, she is assisted by a very capable cast among which are Alan Hale, Ward Crane, Taylor Holmes, James Neill, Mitchell Lewis, Charles Mailes, Bernard Siegel, Arthur Millet and Ilsa de Lindt.

Backing up a splendid story, aptly interpreted, are georgeous settings and remarkable reproductions of original cafes, baronial homes and the like, for which credit goes to Count Maxime St Hilaire, special technical director. The picture was produced under the capable direction of Tom Forman, protege of Hunt Stromberg, the producer.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE DANGER SIGNAL" PROMISES MANY INTERESTING NEW THRILLS

How safe are the railroads? Every week we read of accidents due to carelessness, mistakes or faulty signals. Some are minor, but many mean a great number of hurt and even killed passengers.

In "The Danger Signal," which is promised at the Capitol Theatre for to-day, there is a reproduction of the events leading up to the wreck of a great train. In this case, however, the wreck is an act of heroism, since it saved a terrible smash-up with another speeding engine and the man who prevented the crash risked his life in an unusually dangerous manner.

Jane Novak, Dorothy Revier, Robert Edeson, Robert Gordon and Gaston Glass head a cast which presents this climax in "The Danger Signal." There is no attempt to use propaganda on the railroads. The story is taken from one of the same title by Douglas Doty, and deals with romance, mother love and swift adventure among the rich and poor who live under the influence of the shining rails.

AT THE ROYAL.

THE BIG PICTURE EVENT "THE UNWANTED," AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

The characters stand out as human beings literally transposed from the world of three dimensions to that of two. We have a Canadian girl, a British nobleman, a vain and self-indulgent wife, and the next generation comprising the aristocratic Scion who was decidedly wanted and a man whom fate stigmatized as unwanted. None of them is drab, none is taken from the great conglomerate mass of type, but each is a living, thinking being.

It is the romantic side of the World's Great War, that one sees. Lulled to sleep by decades of peaceful existence the old world and the new are alike nonplussed by the startling chain of events culminating in the gigantic free for all embroilment of nations. Only the Teutons were prepared for the clanging of the war bells. In Vienna and Berlin we see the frenzied enthusiasm of the Imperialists, both mighty and small. For it is not only your Count and your Duke and your Lord whose nostrils dilate, whose eyes glow with fervor at the sound of the Junker music.

The shopkeeper, the tailor, the blacksmith, the shoemaker, is each an ardent part of the great Imperialistic machine. The Empire is his Empire. The Dominion of the great Military Hierarchy is his Dominion. For the aristocratic state is a pyramid of widely divergent and subtly intermingled classes, and the tradesman at the foot of the great social structure guards his position and honours more zealously than the Nobleman at the top. He will point out to you with pride that there is somebody lower than he. There is always somebody lower and yet lower still. No one has probably yet ever succeeded in plumbing the depths of social distinction and finding the ultimate zero of humanity. Probably it is the half-witted son of the baker on Siegstrasse who spends his time whittling wood and reciting the most elementary nursery rhymes. Little does he know as he sits in the front of his father's shop, looking out where the sun beats down upon the grey cobblestones that he is the fulcrum of a colossal aristocratic edifice.

And when Franz Hohenhauer bursts upon him, screaming like an Indian and waving aloft a bulletin of momentous import: "Karl, Karl, it is war! To-day we march to Paris. Paris, Karl, Paris!" the half-wit blinks dumbly at the fervid young militarist.

"No, Karl," he says, "you are mistaken. To-morrow is the harness-maker and blacksmith's picnic. We should never be back in time."

"Ya-a!" With yell of derision young Hohenhauer pulls the half-wit's chair from under him, sending that worthy rolling on his ear, and popping his head into the bakeshop, bellows out: "It is war! It is war!"

"The Unwanted" is not essentially a war picture. It is rather a whimsical record of life. War is life, and on that ground finds its way into this picture. Likewise with love, hate, arrogance, disdain, cowardice and courage. Likewise with the revelry of European metropolises, the grandeur of Switzerland's Alps, the earnestness of earnest men and women and the baseness common to the human species.

AT THE GRAND.

"LUCKY 7" IS DUMBELLS LATEST.

Even those patrons who always hark back to the earliest shows done by The Dumbells whenever the soldier entertainers return to this city will admit that "Lucky 7" which comes here to the Grand Opera House next Friday night for two nights and Saturday matinee is from every angle the best of the khaki revues. It has all the snap and smoothness that have always characterized these shows, and the most talented of the entertainers which the war has given to Canada. Take Al Plunkett, Ross Hamilton, "Red" Newman, Stan. Bennett, Pat Rafferty, Ben Allen, "Jock" Holland, Morley Plunkett, Glen Allan, Jimmy Devon and the genial Capt. Plunkett himself, and his orchestra—there is a most formidable constellation of stars. Add the finest budget of songs and sketches ever distributed over any single program, and give each number a special scenic environment of surpassing beauty of striking reality, and you have the qualities that have gone to make "Lucky 7", pre-eminent in the Canadian field.

Among the high-lights of the new revue may be mentioned Al. Plunkett's songs, "Whiter Than Snow" and 'As Long As She Loves Me," the last named being the finest song which this splendid artist has ever sung. Then there are songs of Ross Hamilton, especially the one written for him by Howard Fogg, entitled "Darling, I Love You", and the gowns he wears! Those gowns are destined to furnish the pattern for many a matron's costume this winter. Speaking of gowns, "Red" Newman, Stan. Bennett, Morley Plunkett, Pat. Rafferty, "Jock" Holland and Glen Allan all wear 'em this season, the four first named having turned impersonators for a highly diverting number called, "Us Girls Must Have Our Fun" while "Red" dons bustles and curls again in the 'Bus Scene.

There are three sketches in the show, the first an estaminet scene, "Red Goes On Leave", then a more serious effort called "Up The Hill", and finally the laughable 'Bus Scene

WEDDING BELLS.

FORTYE—HILL.

The following extract from the Calgary Daily Herald refers to the wedding of Miss Dorothy Hill and Mr. Alex. Fortye, which took place in Calgary last Tuesday.

A wedding of interest to many Calgary friends took place in Knox church on Tuesday, October 6, when Dorothy Henrietta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill, of Peterborough, Ontario, became the bride of Alexander Vennor Fortye, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fortye, also of Peterborough, Ontario, the Rev. George Dickson officiating. Mr. Fortye is the secretary of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, in Portland, Oregon.

The bride wore a becoming sapphire blue velvet gown with coat to match and a smart velour hat in sapphire shades, and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses and violets. She was given away by Mr. F. C. Smallpiece.

Directly after the ceremony a reception and luncheon was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Smallpiece, Elbow Park, after which Mr. and Mrs. Fortye left for Banff and Vancouver, where the honeymoon will be spent. They will reside in Portland, Oregon.

CLIFTON—ALLIN

A pretty house wedding took place at five o'clock Saturday, October 10th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Allin, 205 Sherbrooke street, when their eldest daughter, Edna Menzie, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Kelsey Clifton, of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Clifton of Barrie, by the Rev. A. J. Langford of Trinity United Church. The drawing room where the ceremony was performed was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, palms and ferns.

The bride was gowned in white chiffon over pink satin, with silver trimmings, and wore silver slippers. A bandeau of pearls completed the costume. She carred a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The attendants were Miss Margaret Dickson of Campbellford and Mr. A. W. MacMillan of Toronto. Miss Dickson wore a gown of georgette in fuschia shade and carried Columbia roses. Miss Dorothy Elliott of Toronto, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march and later Miss Dickson sang, "At Dawning."

A buffet luncheon was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Clifton left on an extended motor trip, the bride travelling in a costume of grey velva suede with sable trimmings.

On their return they will reside at 206 McDonnel street.

RALLY SERVICES.

St. Andrew's Sunday School Held Interesting Programme Yesterday.

St. Andrew's Sunday school held its annual rally day services yesterday and in spite of the threatening weather the attendance was very good. Adults were present in large numbers. A most interesting feature of the programme was a pageant put on by the C.G.I.T. girls in which the central truths of the Christian religion were set forth. Absolute silence on the part of the audience showed the intense interest of young and old. A generous missionary offering was contributed by the scholars.

SOCIETY

On Saturday afternoon a very enjoyable time was spent, when the girls of the Lucky Thirteen Club Motor Dept. C.G.E., went on a little hike to Greenhill. On their return a weiner roast was held at the home of Mrs. M. Mason, 509 Albert street. The party consisted of the Misses Laura Purvis, Nellie Howard, Madeline Redman, Ethel Reynolds, Peggy Kent, Jean Craib, Olive Foy, Hilda Blaby, Margaret Teevin, Edith Panter, Mrs. N. Foy, Mrs. S. Willis and Mrs. N. Mason.

Miss Cora Smith, of this city, was in Toronto over the week end. Miss Smith played the wedding march at the marriage of Miss Edith Forster, Huron street, to Mr. James V. Rawlings.

CONSERVATIVE WOMEN HEARD GOOD ADDRESES

F. W. Bowen, M.P., and Mrs. E. Morrell Were the Speakers.

TALK OF RECORDS.

Good Attendance at Meeting of Millbrook and Cavan Ladies.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12—A meeting of the Women's Liberal-Conservative Association of Cavan and Millbrook was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening, over thirty members, representing every part of the district, being in attendance.

The President, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, occupied the chair, and associated with her were the three Vice-Presidents, Mrs. J. H. Paul, Mrs. J. L. McCamus, and Mrs. Ira Lowes.

Mrs. J. A. Vance, secretary, read the minutes of the organization meeting, held in August, and the treasurer, Miss Margaret White, gave the financial report, showing a balance on hand after all expenses had been paid. Arrangements were completed for increasing the funds in the near future.

Details of organization work, for the village and township, with a view to the coming election, were discussed and suitable plans made.

Reports of workers will be made to the enumerators, Miss Ella Elson and Mr. D. Hampton, for Millbrook, and for Cavan, Messrs. G. Eagleson, T. Donaldson, W. Elson, T. D. Douglas, and G. Shields.

Mr. J. A. Vance addressed the meeting, giving some necessary information regarding the voters' lists to be used in the election, and Mr. J. R. Eakins referred to the interview in a daily paper announcing Mr. Bert Reid's support of Mr. Bowen's candidature in the present contest. In the last election, Mr. Reid (Clarke Township), was the Progressive candidate who opposed Mr. Bowen, the vote on that occasion standing: Bowen 5,011, Reid, 3,719, Preston (Liberal), 3, 493. In the article mentioned, Mr. Reid expressed his indignation that his name had been used as one of the speakers at the Massey meeting in the town hall, Millbrook, on Wednesday evening, and stated emphatically that it was done without his knowledge, his intention being to line up in support of Mr. Bowen.

Mr. L. H. Winslow, ex-President of the Cavan Liberal-Conservative Association, and Warden J. L. McCamus, who succeeded Mr. Winslow in the Presidency, briefly addressed the gathering, expressing their personal pleasure in seeing the number present, and the active interest being taken by the Women's Branch of the Association.

Mr. F. W. Bowen, M.P., was given a hearty welcome, and in his few remarks also referred to the good attendance at the first meeting called by the ladies, with effective organization for the forthcoming election in view. Forty women had been present at Orono at a morning meeting, addressed by Mrs. H. Fallis, an equal number at Bowmanville in the afternoon, and one hundred and fifty men and women at Port Hope, the gathering, in each case, having been called on very short notice.

"Politics are the life-blood of the nation, and by working together we will cement the feeling that we can do something for the good of our country. We have no fear with the Conservative policy of adequate protection, and we have a leader to whom we should be proud to give loyal allegiance. I am glad to tell you that of forty-nine Conservative members when Parliament was prorogued, forty-eight have been again nominated, but it is a different story on the other side of the House. I believe that this election is crucial in its importance, and would urge that we work with harmony and co-operation, and pile up such a Conservative majority on October 29, as will leave no doubt in the minds of any with other party convictions where this riding stands for all time to come."

Mr. Bowen introduced Mrs. Eva Morrell, of Toronto, President of the Women's Liberal-Conservative Association of York County, who delivered an inspiring address, which was the more appreciated by the listeners in that it was an unexpected addition to the evening's programme.

"This election is different to any other," the speaker said, "in that we are getting down to heart things, and we have the cause right behind us." Expressing her enthusiastic support of Mr. J. Harris, the candidate in her own riding, Mrs. Morrell said she had heard Mr. Meighen speak appreciatively of Mr. Bowen, when she had been in Ottawa.

"I would like to ask you, has Mr. Massey ever done anything for you here in Durham County? I have yet to hear of anything, but I have learned of many things which Mr. Bowen has done.

"If Mr. Massey had stood for election in south-west Toronto, where the Massey-Harris works are located, he could not carry that riding. But if his policy is right, why could he not be elected—why come here, instead of staying at home?"

A member of the Daughters of the Empire, and an ardent Imperialist, the speaker said, "It rather hurts us, as Canadians, to have aspersions cast, and doubts expressed, as to whether the man at the head of our government is loyal, or not. Such insinuations have been carried along all through the King regime; the suggestion of changing our flag is one instance of the prevailing spirit, and we don't like it. We are only one generation removed from the Mother-land, and Imperialism is in our blood.

"We have all been touched with the exodus of our boys to the other side, and not of our boys alone but of married men also. I have personal knowledge of some such experience in my own family connection, and it means a lot to "pull up stakes," and make a new start in a new place. It breaks up the homes when the boys go, but the need of employment is imperative, and they could not make a living here.

"We must look after the interests of Canada. The Americans realized after the war that they must protect American interests, and raised their tariff. European countries did likewise. It is ridiculous for us to attempt to stand alone and try to have free trade with other nations when they won't have free trade with us. It is a hackneyed statement to say that our factories are closing, but it is not a hackneyed fact to experience, and we do not seem to be getting anywhere under the King government."

The sensation made "even in the Tory ranks" by the entry of Hon. Vincent Massey into the political arena was mentioned, and his American business interests at Batavia, N.Y., where four hundred men are employed, were also referred to, because "when men enter the public limelight in politics it is different than when they enter as educationalists, or idealists; more knowledge of their affairs is demanded, and men get busy and find out."

Some concrete instances, in relation to the importation of pig iron, for example, were given, in which favors had apparently been shown the Massey-Harris by the King government. "This Company was the first to be forced to lay off hands at the outbreak of the war; I remember the consternation felt in Toronto when the news ran like wildfire through the city; and yet, why has it been among the first to be paid one million dollars indemnity for property destroyed in Germany, and $340,000 for the destruction of its Austrian plant, while victims of the Lusitania disaster have not yet been paid their dues? The King government has shown the Massey-Harris Company every consideration at the expense of others discriminated against.

In her concluding remarks, the speaker expressed her personal desire to get in closer touch with the Progressives, and learn their viewpoint. "I believe the Progressive party is awakening to the fact that it is needed to help to put the Conservative policy over and bring about needed co-operation between city and country."

Practical suggestions, which could be worked out locally, and accomplish effective results in connection with the present campaign, were given by Mrs. Morrell at the request of the President, organization being the former's forte, and co-operation between the women and men urged, "or we will never get anywhere."

Mrs. Ira Lowes, and Mrs. C. McNeil, were mover and seconder for the vote of thanks to the speaker for her able address, and the meeting closed with the national anthem.

GEO. E. ELLIOTT DIED SUDDENLY

years old his next birthday. He was educated in the local schools and engaged in farming on his Smith property until 1900, when he sold his farm and moved to Peterborough. He had enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens in Smith, where he had served on the Council for eight years, was overseer of roads in which capacity he was entrusted with the expenditure of the municipality's monies, had been employed by the Forestry Department of the Ontario Government and by the Inland Revenue Department of Canada. For several years he was President of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, and finally had been an alderman of the City Council.

Mr. Elliott was a faithful member of the Methodist church, and throughout his life had been an ardent supporter of the Liberal ideals in politics. He was married in 1886 to Fannie Davidson, daughter of the late James Davidson, Sr., of Smith township, who with their daughter, Mary E. Elliott, his brother Ed. M. Elliott, county treasurer, and his sister, Mrs. J. K. Moore, of Smith, survive him. Mr. Elliott has been employed with the Sun Life Assurance Company, and throughout the city and county will be kindly remembered by a host of friends.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2 p.m. from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

Death struck twice in adjoining homes, with the passing of Mr. Elliott and the Rev. J. D. Kennedy, whose funerals this week are respectively from 598 and 600 Water street.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.00 p.m., proceeding from the late residence, 598 Water street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

KING'S CHARGE CALLED DENIAL FROM MANION

MANION INTERRUPTED.

Prime Minister Retorted That Records of Parliament Would Show Truth.

FORT WILLIAM, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Premier King's meeting at Fort William had an unexpected development. He had been given an attentive hearing for about an hour, when a chance remark almost precipitated a spirited debate between himself and the Hon. Dr. Manion, minister of the soldiers' civil re-establishment in the Meighen administration and the Conservative candidate of the riding.

The Prime Minister was recounting the story of restoration of the pension rights to men who struck on the Grand Trunk in 1910. He spoke of the efforts made to have these rights restored, and of an amendment to this effect he had proposed to the Grand Trunk Acquistion Bill of the Meighen administration. Mr. Meighen, he said, had voted against the amendment and, according to records of parliament, Dr. Manion did not vote but was paired with Dr. Lepage. This meant, he said, that Dr. Manion was not present, but had asked to be paired.

"Dr. Manion did nothing of the kind," suddenly called out Dr. Manion, himself, who was at the back of the hall.

Dr. Manion's interruption created an uproar. Supporters of his who were present called for "three cheers for Manion," and there was both cheering and jeering. "I leave it to the records of parliament," said Premier King. The record of parliament, he said, showed that Dr. Manion was paired with those who voted Nay instead of Yea. Let the records of parliament speak for themselves."

ANOTHER LIFE LOST AT FATAL CROSSING

Man picking up debris from track yesterday evening cut in two---Child of four years was only survivor of party of seven on Sunday

Another life was lost yesterday evening at the crossing at Scarboro Junction, where six people met terrible deaths on Sunday. While picking up parts of the wreck shown above, Thomas Partridge, 38, was cut in two when run over by a Canadian National light engine. He is survived by a widow and five young children.

The first tragedy occurred on Sunday evening, when a child of four was the only survivor of a party of seven. The motor car in which the party was travelling was struck by the International Limited C.N.R. train from Montreal to Chicago.

In the upper row, left and centre, are two views of the wreckage of the motor car. At the upper right is Shirley Nichol, aged four months, one of the victims. In the middle row, left, is her father, Arthur Nichol, who was also killed. In the middle row, centre, are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mould and their daughter, Ruth, all of whom were killed, and their daughter, Hilda, aged three years and nine months, who was the sole survivor. At the right in the middle row are Dorothy and Walter Nichol, daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Nichol. At the left in the bottom row is Mrs. Nichol, the sixth victim; and at the right is the scene of the tragedy.

The long arrow shows the direction in which the motor party was travelling when struck. The circle indicates the spot where Hilda Mould fell and from which she was nicked up by Hon. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario. The cross indicates the appproximate spot where the seventh victim, Thomas Partridge, was killed yesterday.

Came To Save Scottish Queen He Was Only 339 Years Late

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press)—A would-be knight errant, somewhat shabby and unkempt, strode boldly into the police station here today and demanded an interview with the Chief of Police.

"I understand Mary Queen of Scots is about to be executed," the stranger said.

"Well, what do you want to do about it—behead her?" he was asked.

"No, no I am here to save her" he replied.

The "gallant" is now awaiting an interview with local alienists.

BRITISH LABOR IS ON THE MARCH BUT HAS NO USE FOR COMMUNISM

Arthur Henderson Says Resolution Excluding Reds Carried by 3 Million Votes.

ADDRESSES WOMEN.

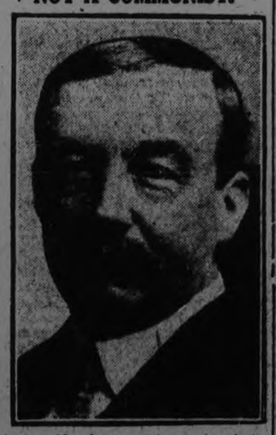
Nations and Classes at Cross-roads Leading to Chaos or Order.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13—(Canadian Press).—Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, M.P., member of the British Labor Party, and ex-Home Secretary for Great Britain, yesterday declared in an address here before a large gathering of women that democracy was on the march but that in the great industrial ranks of Great Britain there was a solid front against Communism and a "revolutionary short-cut to a new era."

No Communist, said Mr. Henderson, is eligible for membership in the Labor Party of Great Britain, of which he is national secretary, a resolution to that effect having been endorsed by nearly three million votes at a national conference of the party at Liverpool recently.

Nations and classes, said the speaker, are at the cross-roads, one road leading to recurring wars, to violent disorder and chaos, the other to a new international order wherein universal law shall reign. "Must the people resort to revolution, to disorder and conflict in order to realize their aspirations and ideals of liberty?" asked Mr. Henderson. "My personal experience and knowledge warrants me to say unhesitatingly that this conception of the use of violent means is utterly opposed to the methods by which the European working class movement seeks to realize its political and economic desires."

NOT A COMMUNIST.



Arthur Henderson, who declared the British Labor Party is opposed to Communism and refused admission within its ranks to those holding Communistic tenets.

CANADIANS ARE RETURNING HOMEWARD 733 CAME BACK FIRST 9 DAYS OF OCTOBER

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press)—The following statement in regard to the return of Canadians from the United States, was issued today by the Department of Immigration:

"Seven hundred and thirty-three former Canadians who have lived in the United States for more than six months returned to Canada in the first nine days of October to make their permanent home here according to statistics compiled by the Department of Immigration and Colonization announced today. In the same period 479 immigrants entered Canada from the United States, and the entry of tourists and other non-immigrants reached a total of 376,255.

"That the returned Canadians are people of substance is evidenced by the fact for one week those returning through nine of the Canadian Government offices in the United States brought with them back to Canada cash and effects to the value of $208,200. The largest movement was through the agency at Detroit, through which 105 former Canadians returned to Canada after an absence of more than six months in the United States and brought with them cash and effects to the value of $111,000."

LIBERALS HAVE FEAR OF LOSS SAYS MEIGHEN

Views with Complacence Government Members Joining Senate.

MAY BE PRESCIENCE.

Deduces That Premier King Has Made Charge Against Massey.

MOOSE JAW, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Government is already fearing defeat and recent developments within the Liberal ranks show that the party has a prescience of its downfall, the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen told a Moose Jaw audience last night. Four members of the Government had "escaped through a window to the attic—the Senate—where there are no electoral terrors," said the Conservative leader. Premier King was notable to call to his council men he wanted. It was the same prescience of Liberal defeat which impelled Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan to exercise "Good Scotch caution and keep out of the present Government at present."

Reviewing tariff reductions of the last three years, Mr. Meighen asked if it was not clear that the "Liberal-Progressive Alliance" had not failed to carry out its promises of 1921.

But we ought to be glad they did no more than they did," he said.

Premier King had "made a serious charge against a member of his government "When he said that the Government had compelled the implement makers to reduce prices by millions of dollars. If that was true, then Hon. Vincent Massey had been previously mulcting farmers of millions of dollars. I am not making that charge. It is Premier King who made it," added Mr. Meighen.

SIX CANDIDATES IN ONE CONSTITUENCY

Independent Liberal Completes Half Dozen in Northwest Toronto.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Independent Liberals here, according to Norman McEachren, who is the unattached candidate for Toronto South, will contest other Toronto constituencies. To-morrow night they will nominate a candidate for Toronto North-West, which will make six candidate in the field for that riding and split the Liberal vote.

Senator Belcourt Received Parliamentary Delegates at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press)—Senator N. A. Belcourt welcomed the Inter-Parliamentary Union to Canada this morning when the last day of official business of the Union opened in the House of Commons chamber. "The work of the Inter-Parliamentary Union which aims at the extension and perfecting of civilization may be defined as essentially human," said Senator Belcourt, speaking in French. "Its instruments, its methods, are none other than education and example."

RUMANIA TO FUND DEBT TO BRITAIN

Tentative Arrangements Drawn Up Whereby 40 Years is Payment Term.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).— Rumanian newspapers announce that M. Titulesco, minister in London, has reached a tentative agreement with the British Government for the funding of Rumania's 26,000,000 pounds war debt to Great Britain. The debt will be liquidated in forty years under the tentative agreement, with a 3½ per cent annual payment covering the payment and amortization charges.

FORKE FEARS FOR FATE OF CABINET

Notes That It Contains Members of Widely Divergent Views.

VIRDEN, Man., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Robert Forke, the Progressive leader, in a campaign address here, expressed fears for a cabinet containing, as he said Premier King's reorganized cabinet contained, ministers with totally divergent views. In this regard, Mr. Forke referred to Hon. Vincent Massey, who has stated that the country is not suffering from protection, but is suffering from lack of purchasing power," And to Hon. Herbert Marler, "a high protectionist."

The Progressive leader was emphatic in denying reports of dissention among Progressives. There were really no serious differences, he said.

HARMONY HALL IS SCENE OF A ROUSING RALLY

Conservative Speakers Tell Big Gathering of Their Party's Ideals.

SENATE DEFENDED.

Express Sympathy With Farmers in Condition Under Present Government.

E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate, held a rousing rally at Harmony Hall, Douro, last evening, when the policies of the Conservative Party, were explained to a large and enthusiastic audience He was assisted by J. R. Corkery and V. J. McElderry. Reeve M. P. Coughlin, ex-warden of the County, was unanimously appointed chairman.

J. R. Corkery.

Mr. Corkery in a stirring speech outlined the reasons why he was a Conservative. He told of how St. Paul's Cathedral was built according to the plans of Sir Christopher Wren, and in that Cathedral on the vault wherein lies his body, there is the inscription, "Stranger if you seek a monument, look around." The same thing applies to conditions as they are today. You all have, no doubt, witnessed during the last four or five years, the depression that exists throughout the country. We have been repeatedly informed that Prosperity is just around the corner, and yet take the number of people who have left Canada for the United States. According to the figures of the Commission General of the United States, during the years 1921-24, 436,000 Canadians have entered the United States During the same period taxation has increased, as has also the national debt. The real reason for the situation in which we find ouselves today is the lack of administrative ability on the part of the present Government. Take the agricultural conditions in the United States and Canada. The Fordney tariff was the great achievement of the organized farmers of the United States. This tariff was aimed especially at Canada, the most important competitor of the United States in agricultural production, and Mr. King has done nothing to alleviate the hardships caused by this tariff. In view of conditions such as these, we need more than ever the policy of Arthur Meighen, whose protective policy is for farmers as well as artizans. The farmer today has to depend on his home market for the sale of his produce, and his home market is rapidly dwindling due to the number of Canadians crossing to the United States. How can Canada compete with the United States when you consider the discrepancies in the tariff as it exists today. Not a bushel of wheat from Canada can enter the United States, except over a tariff duty of 42 cents a bushel. Wheat from the United States can enter Canada at a duty of 12 cents a bushel. The Canadian farmer cannot sell his corn in the United States without its paying a duty of 15 cents a bushel. United States corn enters this country absolutely free of duty. Some of you may ask why Premier King launched an election at this time. The reason, according to Mr. King, is because of the small working majority which he had, it was impossible for him to carry out the policies of the Liberal party, yet we are on the eve of the election and he has stated no definite policy yet, and if this was the reason, and he has the interests of the country at heart as he claims, why did he not go to the country long before this, Mr. Peck, declared the speaker, is the man who is pledged to carry out the platform of Arthur Meighen. He is a man who will not make vain and empty promises, "and for these reasons I would ask you to give him your support on the twenty-ninth."

V. J. McElderry.

Times are changing, said Mr. McElderry, referring to the situation as it exists today. The Liberal party in 1917 suffered great disaster. Sir Wilfred Laurier has gone and with him have gone the men with his principles and ideas, and the Liberal policies are changing, if not, why are their best men deserting them? One of the Liberal policies is to curtail the power of the Senate. Now the Senate has always stood for the rights of the minority, and the same Senate saved the country twelve million dollars this year by throwing out the branch railways bill. Every class of Americans are business men first, and the American farmer, when he found difficulty in disposing of his crops, due to Canadian competition, started to seek the reason therof, and decided to shut out produce from Canada by adopting the Fordney tariff. The Fordney tariff was aimed especially at Canada, and the adoption of it made it imperative that Canada should act, but under the King Government it was ignored. Immediately upon the adoption of the Fordney tariff in 1922, Canada began to feel the effect, and the King Government did nothing to meet the situation. Instead, it continued to talk about the cost of living, and the only efforts it has made to relieve the cost of living has been at the expense of the Canadian farmer. What is the position of the Canadian farmer in consequence? The Canadian farmer cannot sell his hay in the United States, except by paying a duty of $4 a ton. The United States farmer can send hay into Canada at $2 a ton. The United States taxes Canadian potatoes 50 cents a hundred pounds. Potatoes from the United States are replacing the home grown product on the Canadian market because they are let in at 35 cents per hundred pounds. When the Meighen Government was in power, Americans could not dump surplus stocks of fruit and vegetables into Canada at prices less than the cost of production, and thereby kill the market for Canadian products.

Mr. King did away with this clause, and in 1922 the Hon. W. S. Fielding, Minister of Finance, characterized it as an unnecessary interference with trade." If they go back into power what guarantee have you that they, if elected, will not bring about an even worse state of affairs? The best market you can have is your home market, for you can sell there without middlemen's profits.

Canada imported from the United States in 1924 official figures from the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce) agricultural and vegetable products to the value of $81,368,503, and we sold to the United States only $51,337,733. Moreover of the $81,368,503 agricultural products brought in from the United States, almost all of which with the exception of some $16,000,000 worth of rubber and oils, came to compete with Canadian products, on our home market. If a country is to make progress, the farmer must stand shoulder to shoulder with the manufacturer. We have 90 per cent. of the world's supply of asbestos and nickel in this country, and it all goes to the United States in its raw state, and that is the only reason your dollar is at par—stripping the country of its natural resources. This is what the Conservative platform will remedy. We need protection for several reasons, chief of which is building up the country. Agriculture is the back bone of this country, and you as farmers must protect it yourselves.

E. A. Peck.

"This country is sick, and protection is the only medicine that will cure it," declared Mr. Peck. "My platform is protection and I stand before you as an ardent supporter of it. In the cities of Canada there is a great deal of depression, accompanied by a decrease in population. The reason your people are leaving is not high wages but lack of work, and if this country is to be successful we must have protection for the farmer as well as the manufacturer. How can the Canadian farmer be placed upon a fair and equal basis with his competitor except by tariff protection. It seems to be thought that if this country set an example with their policy that other countries will follow it, hence we have the low tariff cry. The farmer is told by those who refuse him protection to consider the free market of Great Britain. The present government has made a great display of effort to cultivate the British market in the interests of the farmer. But what has that to do with the situation? Canadian farm products have access to the British markets on exactly the same terms as the products of any other country. The British market is free, but it is just as free to the farmer of the United States as it is to the farmer of Canada. Now as if conditions were not bad enough, the Canadian door has been thrown open still further to outside agricultural products. Under the treaty made by the King government with Australia, they (Australia) can dump their produce into Canada almost at will. The King government took office in 1921 with bright prospects. Mr. King was strong for reducing taxation. Government returns have shown him to be a miserable failure in this regard. Mr. King's first duty is to propound a definite policy to the country, but as yet he has failed to do this.

I am appealing to you, not so much on a party policy, but a policy that I firmly believe, will be to the best interests of Canada as a whole.

STOLE TAXI TO ROB GASOLINE STATION

Night Manager Held Up at Pistol Point—Relieved of $15.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Stealing a taxicab belonging to the Bowes' Livery from W. J. Emmons last night, two thugs later held up the Canadian Oil Company's gasoline station at Ossington and St. Clair Avenues and took $15 from the pockets of John Bond, night manager. Bond was held up at the point of a gun. The robbery completed, the thugs sped south and escaped. The car was found later in West Toronto.

MACHINE CRASHED END OF LONG FLIGHT

Japanese Aviator Failed on Last Lap of Tokio to London Journey.

The second Japanese flier landed safely.

The machine which crashed was that of Kawachi. The flyer was not injured, but the propeller of his plane was smashed. Major Abe landed safely at Farnborough.

CANADIAN KLAN IS ALLIED WITH VETS

Organizations Lined Against Communism—May Use Mussolini Tactics.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—Returned soldiers of the Dominion, who are soon to unite in a Canadian Legion, and the Ku Klux Klan of the British Empire, which claims to have thousands of members throughout Ontario and to be rapidly growing in strength, may join hands here in a fascist campaign against communism in Canada.

Leaders of both organizations, while denying that they are taking sides in the present general election, so far as favoring one or the other of the old political parties is concerned, declare that the full weight of their followers will be thrown into an effort to combat bolshevism and radical labor propaganda.

War veterans and the klan have been stirred to action by the action of Canadian communists, in inviting Shapurji Saklatvala, British M.P., to come to the Dominion and to broadcast by radio, from here, the doctrines which he espouses, and which have led to his exclusion from the United States; and threats are made that local patriots may be subjected [illegible] ment which Mussolini have found effective against Italian Socialists.

The same two organizations are preparing to combat the "conscription of wealth" policy advocated by labor candidates in the present election contest. The conscription plank, as drafted by the Independent Labor party of Manitoba, calls for a capital levy for the purpose of wiping out Canada's war debts.

Other policies championed by the Laborites include nationalization of the country's banking system, abolition of the Senate and removal of taxes from the necessaries of life.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1925.

THE LATE GEORGE E. ELLIOTT.

Yesterday in these columns reference was made to the sudden passing of one of Peterboro's oldest citizens in the person of Mr. Aaron Comstock.

Today it is necessary to pay a tribute to the memory of another widely known and highly respected resident, Mr. George E. Elliott, to whom death's call came with such startling suddenness as to shock the community.

Mr. Elliott had lived all his life in this county, the last twenty-five years in Peterboro.

In the township of Smith, where he was born, he enjoyed the regard of every resident. For eight years he served his fellow-citizens as a member of the Township Council, and when he became a resident of Peterboro his willingness to serve was shown by his good work as a member of the City Council.

He took an active interest in many community efforts, was President of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition at one time, and was a solid public-spirited citizen, whose passing leaves the community poorer.

The sympathy that is being extended to the bereaved relatives comes from full hearts.

THE LAST CHANCE.

Tomorrow offers the last chance for urban voters to get on the lists if by any chance their names have been omitted.

In spite of frequent warnings, it is certain that a number of electors will find themselves off the list if they do not take advantage of the last day's revision proceedings.

Both political organizations have been busy adding the names of voters hitherto not listed, but they cannot hope to reach all the electors who may be in danger of losing their chance to vote.

The only way to make sure, if you have not already done so, is to examine the lists yourself—and then you have the privilege of appearing at the Court House and having your name added, if through some error or other it has been omitted.

It is the duty of every citizen to protect his franchise, and having done so, to use it when election day arrives.

This is an important election that may have far-reaching results, and no elector can afford to be indifferent.

THE LEVEL CROSSING MENACE.

The terrible level crossing accident near Toronto on Sunday in which six lives were lost when a fast C.N.R. train collided with a motor car carries a tragic warning to motorists.

In spite of safety first campaigns and the efforts of the Motor League and the newspapers to educate drivers to exercise the greatest care in approaching grade crossings, the railway authorities report that accidents of this character are increasing.

While protection is being provided at a certain number of crossings, it is manifestly impossible for all grade crossings to be made safe in this way, so that motorists will have to protect themselves.

The only sure way is not to attempt to cross even at points where trains may not be expected until the driver is satisfied that no danger threatens from either direction.

Too many drivers are careless in this respect; they perhaps know when passenger trains are expected, and gamble on that knowledge, forgetting that a special or a freight train may come along at any moment.

It is a gamble in which the loser pays with his life—the risk is too great to be run.

Safety first principles should be adopted by every motorist at every level crossing.

ROAD BUILDING AN OLD ART.

Fifth avenue, New York, can fairly be called the show street of United States. At night it may give way to its dazzling neighbor, Broadway, but never in daylight. A census of traffic at the corner of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street showed over 20,000 vehicles, mostly motor-driven, passing between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. More interesting than that is the fact that the pavement carrying this load lasted from 1896 to 1918, when the road was resurfaced.

In London, England, the road having the greatest traffic is that portion of the Thames Embankment between Blackfriars bridge and the Westminster bridge, and known as the Victoria Embankment. Its construction was decided on by the Commons in 1862, and at that time what is now one of the most imposing London avenues was the mud banks of the Thames, fringed by low and very poor dwellings. Today over 12,000 vehicles pass over it per day, and the pavement has been down for years, concrete, covered with asphalt.

We may at times regard street paving and road building as modern developments, but they are very old ones. Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon from 605 to 561 B.C., was a road builder, and his executives saw to it that the work was so thoroughly done that there remains evidence of it today. In "Procession street," which led from the King's palace in Babylon to the north wall of the city, have been found bricks which, according to the translation, gave a rather elaborate and boastful account of the building of the thoroughfare. The translation runs:

"Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, he who made Esaglia and Ezida glorious, son of Nabopolassar, King of Babylon. The streets of Babylon, the Procession street of Nabu and Marduk, my lords, which Nabopolassar, King of Babylon, the father who begot me, had made a road glistening with asphalt and burnt bricks; I, the wise supplicant who fears their lordships, placed upon the bitumen and burnt bricks a mighty superstructure of shining dust, made them strong within with asphalt and burnt bricks as a high-lying road.

"Nabu and Marduk, when you traverse these streets with joy, may benefits for me rest upon your lips, life for distant days, and well-being for the body. Before you I will advance upon them. May I attain eternal age."

That work was done 2,500 years ago, and so thoroughly built that evidence of it remains today. The National Geographic Magazine is authority for the claim that burnt bricks set in asphalt were so firmly welded that it was impossible to part them without entirely destroying the bricks. Modern road builders can gather from these instances that thoroughness is and always has been the price paid for a permanent piece of work.—London Advertiser.

THE CLASH ON THE PRAIRIES.

The battle between the wheat pool and the organized grain trade for control of the grain-handling business of Western Canada has aroused little comment in Eastern Canada, but evidence is not wanting that both parties to the struggle are beginning to look to the East for moral support. Out in the West where the facts are known the fight is recognized for what it is—a no-quarter conflict between two diametrically opposed economic groups: the grain producers on the one hand, and the Big Interests of the grain world on the other. In essence it is a battle between co-operation and exploitation, and on the outcome hangs not only the fate of the existing co-operative organization, but, in large measure, the attitude of mind with which the average Western farmer will regard his economic status.

Both contestants realize the value of propaganda, using the word in the literal and not necessarily sinister sense. Some weeks ago the pool organized a publicity service, through which it hopes to present its case, not only to the farmer, but to the general public. In this particular the pool is emulating its opponent, which has been using both the press, the radio and the business letter in its effort to discredit co-operative marketing.

The latest word-skirmish concerns prices. On Thursday of last week the Winnipeg Grain Exchange issued a statement purporting to show that the non-pool farmers received more per bushel than did the pool farmers. The pool immediately challenged the Exchange's figures, and then counter-attacked by declaring that the pool members had secured higher prices for their wheat than had those outside the pool.

Skeltonized statistics are usually an unsatisfactory basis for conclusions, but in this instance the pool's case appears to be the more formidable. For one thing, the Exchange neglected to include in its figures the 4.3 cents per bushel taken from the pool farmers' price for establishment of a commercial fund. For another, as the pool statement points out, the Exchange figures are based on the prices paid by fifteen elevator companies which handled a very small percentage of the total non-pool shipments. And for another reason still, the Exchange figures appear to be based on what are technically called special bin prices, instead of street prices.

Street prices are the prices paid by country elevators to farmers for wagon lots of wheat which might well be called "run-of-mine" wheat. More specifically, this is straight grade wheat, which does not carry a premium. Special bin prices are the prices paid for premium wheat, which is kept separate from straight grade stuff. By far the greater percentage of wheat is sold at street prices, and, as all grain men know, these prices are several cents lower than prices quoted for premium wheat in store. All in all, the Exchange figures scarcely can be accepted as an accurate indication of the average price received by the non-pool farmer for his wheat.

The statement issued by the Exchange was designed, of course, as a blow at the morale of the pool members, who are asked to believe that they would have been better off if they had entrusted themselves and their wheat to the tender mercies of the gentlemen who hold seats on the Exchange. The Western farmer is still a pronounced individualist, but he has long since lost a belief in the philanthropic intentions of the grain trade.—Toronto Globe.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One more day to get on the lists. Don't lose the last chance.

Reports from Quebec City say the district is suffering from high winds. No wonder with so much campaign oratory being distributed down there.

The World's Series will continue to occupy the attention of the continent for another day at least.

One of the best things about the election is that it will be over in another sixteen days.

Several papers suggest an export duty on Canadian hockey players. Many a true word, etc.

If Tex Rickard is looking for the real "battle of the century," let him stage a joint debate by Mr. King and Mr. Meighen on the subject of Senate reform before a Quebec audience.

Those ball players who write reports of the World's Series would give some real inside stuff if they would tell just what they say to the umpires.

The Canadian navy is reasonably safe from disasters such as have occurred in the United States naval services. Both our "war ships" are still right side up.

A THOUGHT.

TRANSFER TO THE OTHER SIDE

In the human mind, to use a fairly free translation, there are two little compartments. One is marked "worry," and opposite this is the other, marked "work." So many things that go to the one labeled "worry" could be eliminated if transferred to the other side—"Work." Transfer!

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

All letters bearing on the pending General Election or political questions must bear the authentic name of the writer for publication. No letter will be published without the writer's name. BURNING LEAVES.

To Editor of Examiner.

One of our difficulties at this season of the year is to get rid of the large surplus of leaves in private grounds, parks and along our streets. Leaves cannot be burned on the pavement or near concrete sidewalks, as it injures the material and shortens the life of streets and pavements. The proper way to handle the problem is to obtain a permit from the Fire Chief from day to day, specifying where the leaves will be destroyed and guaranteeing the work will not be done in a place dangerous to public property.

GATHERING ASHES.

To Editor of Examiner.

The collectors are just beginning to gather ashes and have equipment to do the work properly.

Ashes should be put out with other garbage on collection days in each district and not held back in the cellar until the spring. If put out all at one time in the spring it is harder work for the men, and especially for the horses when the sleighing is more or less done in the centre of the city and extra teams must be engaged.

ARMY-NAVY CHARGED WITH RECKLESS ORGY

Squandered Millions in "Purposeless, Meaningless Experiments."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (Canadian Press).—The army and navy were charged today by Chairman Madden of the House Appropriations Committee, with squandering millions of dollars "in a purposeless, meaningless and endless experimental orgy" in technical aircraft development.

Testifying before the President's air board, which resumed hearings after a recess of several days, Mr. Madden declared a technical development of aviation could no longer be "safely" left to two military services if the United States was to take its place "among the countries of the world in the air."

OPEN LETTER NO. 19

RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE KING,
Prime Minister and President of the Privy Council,
Ottawa.

Dear Sir:

If you wanted to compare the tariffs of two countries, with a view to determining the degree of protection each afforded, how would you go about it?

Some people say:—"Take the total imports, dutiable and free, divide by the total duty collected, and the result will be the average rate of duty; then compare the averages thus shown."

Others say:—"Omit free goods from the calculation altogether, take only the dutiable goods, and as before divide by the total amount of duty collected, the result being the average rate of duty on dutiable goods; then compare these averages."

What would be compared by each of these methods would be the average rates of duty collected. But is the duty collected a reliable index to the protection afforded?

Before answering that, let me put another question:—"What is protection?" Fundamentally, it is negative in character—not positive. It consists in the warding off of something you don't want. You protect your home against burglars by putting locks on the doors and windows. You don't measure the effectiveness of that protection by the number of burglars let in, or by the value of the plunder they take; you measure it by your success in keeping all burglars out and so preventing any plunder being taken!

Too many people make the mistake of trying to measure tariff protection by the value of the goods let in, and the tax collected thereon. It's the value of the goods kept out, because of the tax they would have had to pay, that really tells the story.

Average rates of duty on all imports, dutiable and free, mean nothing, because in their calculation no regard is had to the varying reasons why some goods are taxed and why others are admitted free.

Average rates of duty collected on dutiable imports mean next to nothing, because in their calculation no thought is given to the fact that some duties are not intended to be protective—they are imposed purely for revenue purposes.

The only way we can approximately estimate how much higher protection is in the United States than in Canada, is by figures that reflect the extent to which the respective tariffs succeed in keeping dutiable goods out! And here they are!

In 1923, the United States with say 110,000,000 population, imported dutiable goods to the value of $1,658,110,659. Her imports of dutiable goods—the kind she wanted to keep out, mark you—were therefore, per head of population, only $16. In that same year Canada, with say 9,000,000 population, imported dutiable goods to the value of $537,214,581. Her imports per head of the kind of goods she wanted to keep out were almost $60!

There you have a fair basis for comparison in arriving at the degree of protection afforded by the tariffs of the two countries, and it shows that the United States tariff is nearly four times as protective as the Canadian tariff, because per head of population it let in only about one-fourth as much!

And when some one tries to prove to you—as some one probably will—that Canada's tariff is nearly three times as burdensome as the United States tariff, by citing that in 1923 Canadians paid in customs duties, per head of population, $14.86, where Americans paid only $5.30, just remind him please that it is only natural Canadians should pay more, seeing that they import four times as much per person. Then tell him that if from these figures he wants to make a deduction showing how protective each tariff is, he must use them in inverse ratio!

Yours respectfully,

ACCORD REACHED WITH GERMANY ALLIES ARE AGREED IN PRINCIPLE ON TERMS OF ENTRY INTO LEAGUE

High Hopes Are Entertained of Speedy Settlement of Remaining Problems.

MUSSOLINI INVITED.

Ratification of Rhine Pact May Be Followed By British Evacuation.

LOCARNO, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Important progress has been achieved at Locarno for the stabilization of the peace of Europe. The Allied powers declare that they have reached an accord with Germany in principle on the terms under which Germany will join the League of Nations.

This makes easier of settlement all the other undecided points of the proposed Rhine pact and arbitration treaties, and so confident are the Allies of eventual success that arrangements have been definitely made to invite Mussolini, the Italian Premier, to the closing sessions of the conference towards the end of the week.

Moreover, big things are happening in other directions. The German Chancellor, Dr. Luther, and Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann, had a long private meeting yesterday afternoon, and M. Briand and Rt. Hon. Austen Chamberlain, the French and British Foreign Ministers, and it would not be surprising if ratification of the proposed Rhine pact by Germany would be followed by the evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead by the British and a considerable decrease in the French military forces now holding the left bank of the Rhine.

Already French diplomats are beginning to remark that the French troops on the Rhine are getting rather sick of their job, thus preparing public opinion for a possible diminution of the forces of occupation.

Diplomats from the smaller countries of Europe who are here as observers say also they would not be astounded to learn that the Allies, as members of the League of Nations, will support a move to restore to Germany her former colony in East Africa.

The arrival here yesterday of the president of the governing body of the Saare Basin, who is a Frenchman, caused the impression also that a loosening of the French hold on the Saare territory may be one of the outcomes of the Locarno conversations.

It was learned last night that the main object of the projected visit of Count Skrzynski, the Polish Foreign Minister to Moscow, will be a revision of the Treaty of Riga as a procursor to a pact of non-aggression between Poland and Russia. Poland is expected to rectify the Polish-Russian frontier in favor of Russia.

It is also learned that with the Rhine pact successful, Greece expects to negotiate an alliance with Jugo-Slavia and a general regional agreement for Balkan problems with Bulgaria, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia. Turkey will be invited to participate for purely European problems.

There is, however, no plan to take over the responsibility for possible difficulties between Russia and Roumania regarding the sovereignty of the former Russian province of Bessarabia, now part of Roumania.

"What really is going on along the sidelines of Locarno," said a European diplomat last night, "is a kind of revision of the treaty of Versailles."

The jurists yesterday spent hours at the delicate task of drafting into cold phrases the principles of the agreement reached in the forenoon as to how Germany will enter the League of Nations. The fact that the text has not yet been formally approved by the German delegation leaves a loop-hole for a possible rupture at a later stage of the conference.

That the Germans are holding the door open is indicated by their declaration last night that certain German reservations have not yet been definitely satisfied: they explain that these concern participation in economic sanctions imposed by the League against an aggressor. They say they are not situated so as to permit their joining in economic and financial punitive measures, as such reprisals would be incompatible with Germany's disarmed condition.

HON. ROBB GAVE ELECTION TALK ON HOTEL RADIO

Made a Review of the West and Dealt With the East.

TALKS OF TARIFF.

Asks Consideration For Those Who Deliver Primary Products.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13—(Canadian Press).—Speaking over the radio from a local hotel last night, Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, asked what the people of Montreal and the Province of Quebec have to gain by a policy of "splendid isolation." The Minister dealt generally with economic problems, and his question was prompted by his review of the West and the necessity for a united Canada.

"What," asked Mr. Robb, "has any Canadian to gain by a narrow parochial policy that will, by overtaxing farm implements, dairy utensils and other implements of production, antagonize and discourage men and women who toil early and late, producing those primary products that contribute so much to the wealth of the nation? I submit that a sound policy is a policy that encourages greater production of natural products at home, and at the same time protects home industries from unfair competition from abroad."

SLEET, SNOW RAIN DELAY HARVESTING

Several Days of Good Weather Required Before Work Can Be Resumed.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, October 12—Canadian Press. — Inclement weather, with snow, sleet and rain during the past week over practically the whole of western Canada has further delayed threshing operations and fall work on the land, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway, issued to-day.

Several days of good drying weather will be needed to permit resumption of threshing operations, says the report.

Despite the unfavorable weather, there has been very little sprouting in the stooks but deterioration of the grades is feared.

Between seventy five to eighty per cent of the threshing is completed in Manitoba and Saskatchewan and in both of these provinces ploughing is well advanced in many districts. Due to frequent and prolonged showers it has been difficult to obtain accurate estimate of the percentage of the threshing accomplished in Alberta. From Wetaskinin north and east it is estimated that 50 per cent of the crops has been threshed. From Wetaskinin to Calgary, from five to ten per cent., from Calgary south, thirty per cent., Lethbridge south, sixty to sixty-five per cent., around Edmonton operations are reported to be fairly well advanced. The sugar beet crop in the Raymond district has been very favorable. A good apple crop is reported from British Columbia, although the heavy frosts have affected the quality in some districts.

INSURANCE CONTROL NOW BEFORE COURTS

Effort to Straighten Out Conflict Between Dominion and Province.

A battle over a constitutional right to legislate on insurance questions is being waged before the second divisional court at Osgoode Hall yesterday between Edmund Bayly, K.C. for the province of Ontario, and Sir William Hearst, K.C., appointed by the court to represent the Dominion of Canada.

The Ontario act requires that policies in Ontario conform to certain statutory conditions while the dominion government requires conditions mostly similar, but not quite, if the company is to get a license The insurance companies have been protesting against both.

The province says that as these provisions are a matter of the contract, it is in the exclusively provincial jurisdiction, so it asks that the Ontario act be held intra vires and the dominion act ultra vires.

Petition Numbered Names Of Great, But Plea Was Useless

NYACK, N.Y., Oct. 12 (United Press)—When some one notified Hiram Rose that his petition for nomination as supervisor of the town of Stony Point was four names short of the required 500 he first told them that it contained 503 and then went to see what was the matter. Shown the petition Rose counted the names again and they totalled 503 — three more than required. But then the clerk showed him four which would hardly pass as citizens of Stony Point for they were: Mary Pickford, Babe Ruth, Douglas Fairbanks and Bucky Harris, so because some one played a joke, Hiram Rose won't run for supervisor.

MEN OF ST. PAUL'S.

The opening meeting of the men of St. Paul's organization was held last night in the Sunday School Hall and was well attended by some two hundred of the men of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, who all signified their attention of getting together at least once a month during the coming season in a sort of get acquainted and know each other meeting.

After justice was done to a goodly dinner prepared by the Ladies' Aid a short programme, consisting of songs and clever recitations by Mr. J. John, was rendered.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. Jas. Grier of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Campbellford, gave an inspiring address on "Unchurched Goodness," and the Rev. Wm. Allen concluded by moving a vote of thanks to all for their part in making such a good evening possible.

Don't Squeeze Black-Heads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads makes the pores large and causes irritation. Blackheads are caused by accumulations of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin, and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of peroxine powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off, and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition.

LODGE DEVASTATED OFFICERS GET SACK

ROME, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Signor Farinacci, secretary of the Fascist Party, has summarily discharged Italo Foschi, secretary of the Rome Fascist organization, in consequence of devastation of the headquarters of the Scottish Rite Masonic Lodge by a group of Fascisti on Sunday.

After demolishing the furniture and fixtures, the raiding party took away numerous valuable articles belonging to the Lodge paraphernalia.

Nine Fascists were arrested as a result of the disorders in Rome. Quick action on the part of the police frustrated an attempt to invade and devastate the premises of the Grand Orient Masonic Lodge.

SMITH TOWNSHIP CONSUMERS OF POWER JOIN IN PROTEST AGAINST HIGHER RATE CHARGED BY HYDRO

WARDEN EXPLAINS.

Douro and Otonabee Townships Expected to Name Delegates in Near Future.

Suburbanites of Smith Township, at a meeting in Grace Mission Church on Barnardo Avenue last night, appointed three representatives, Reeve Albert Middleton, Thomas Shields and J. D. Manley, to the joint committee from the townships adjoining the city which will petition the Hydro-Electric Commission to reconsider and reduce the new schedule of electric power rates which have been announced to come into effect on November 1st. Corresponding co-operation is expected shortly from Douro and Otonabee Townships, and with the completion of the joint committee a preliminary session will likely be called by Warden H. B. Rye, to prepare and review the case which will be presented to the Hydro-Electric Commission.

Last night's meeting was held within sound of the continuously rumbling water of the Otonabee, muffled by the distance, tumbling over the dam at Auburn generating electric energy that flows into the trunk lines leading to Oshawa, Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope and smaller communities in this district. About fifty of the residents of Smith township living along the north and north-west boundaries of the city listened attentively to the exposition of the problem that has been suddenly thrust upon them, and at its conclusion, endorsed the pledge taken by their fellow protestants of North Monaghan not to sign any new agreement until they had received a report from the joint committee.

Reeve Middleton presided, and expressed his sympathy with the complaint of those of his people who are virtually of the city but not in it. He called upon Warden Rye to explain the new rates, and North Monaghan's Reeve repeated, for the most part, the statement he gave at May School-House last Friday night.

Incidentally and jokingly he said: "You know there is a feeling in some parts that every matter of this kind is a move to force into the city those people who live just outside it. You people in Smith don't seem to be troubled that way as we are.

However, I am positive that this question did not originate with the city Utilities Commission. It has been in the air for three months, and came from the Hydro-Electric Commission. They have instructed the Utilities Commission that their power lines shall not be extended further into the townships without consulting the Hydro-Electric Commission. The Utilities Commission are only the agents of the Hydro in the distribution of any power outside the city."

A Slight Concession.

Warden Rye said that members of the Utilities Commission had recently interviewed the Hydro-Electric Commission and obtained the concession of putting up new secondary lines, that is, lines from transformers already in position, but under no consideration may the Utilities Commission extend their main primary lines. Mr. Rye wasn't sure whether the Smith suburb was occupied with sufficient density to obtain the benefit of the suburban area legislation, but in this appeal probably the best results could be secured by all working together. On this point Mr. Rye remarked that the time was approaching when some areas would have to be struck off close to the city because the townships have to operate under rural statutes, but the Suburban Area Act provides certain conditions for the benefit of those living nearer the city.

"In Monaghan the other night, I got called for saying that this was a question essentially for the individual petitioners and not for the municipalities," the Warden continued, "but I still stick to it. If this were taken up by the councils we couldn't get any further than the rural rates for power." He suggested that the Smith residents nominate a committee to act with Monaghan and the others, and they could go together to lay their case before the Hydro-Electric Commission.

The Rates Compared.

Thomas Shields said that the clearest manner of presenting the difference between the present and the new rates was by a comparison. He quoted from two light bills applying to Smith residents. One of them under the old rates for a term of two months was:

Floor area charge	90c
17 kwh at 3c	51c
Total	$1.41
Under the new rates:
Floor area charge	$2.50
17 kwh at 4c	.68
Total	$3.18

Mr. Shields pointed out that the new rates increased the cost of power nearly threefold.

The other example was of a heavier consumer of power, in the three-wire category, having an electric stove in addition to lights. The bill was for the same period of two months:

Under the old rates:
Floor area charge	.90
90 kwh. at 3c	$2.70
391 kwh. at 1¼c	$4.89
Total	$8.49
Under the new rates:
Floor area charge	$3.80
60 kwh. at 4c	$2.40
421 kwh. at 2c	$8.42
Total	$14.52

Thus the man who used the more power got off at a smaller cost proportionately than the low consumer, remarked Mr. Shields.

Residents of Smith who were called upon for their opinion were all in accord with the movement launched by Monaghan and M. O'Heron and W. G. Spencely of Douro were also heartily in favor of it.

Cities "Hog" Power.

Allan Brown set the discussion on a somewhat different tack with the remark that the rural communities should get together because the cities had "hogged the supply of power." Millions of kilowatt-hours were wasted on electric signs in the cities, and if all that power were turned into the market it would affect the prices in favor of prospective rural consumers.

"They're no more entitled to that extra supply of power than are the rural people," Mr. Brown asserted, "but they got in on the ground floor when the rural people were not looking."

Mr. Rye—"Consumers of power pay for the amount of power they use. I used to think that the people of Ontario owned all the power the Hydro produced. The farmer does not pay one cent for the power the city man uses."

Mr. Brown—"But they send the rate skyhigh."

Mr. Rye—"The cost is higher in the rural sections because of the higher cost of transmission over longer distances and the maintenance of the longer lines. You pay higher rates in the country for a telephone than in the city."

Mr. Brown—"My father pays $2.05 for his phone in the country and near the city it is $2.38."

Mr. Rye—"Yes; but how many phones are there on that one line?" "Four or five."

The Warden said that while country residents felt a grievance that the cities could obtain power more cheaply than the rural districts, New York had refused to take Hydro power at one cent. a killowatt-hour. According to his information this price was quoted for export, whereas the suburban consumers were ordered to pay a price of 4c and city consumers 3c.

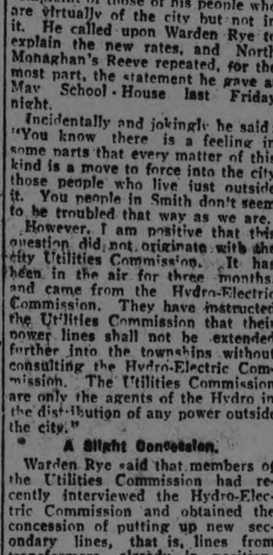
Mr. Rye replied that the extra cost in the country was occasioned by the comparatively few consumers on the longer transmission lines. The cost might be too great, he remarked. There might be deadwood in the Hydro offices and in consequence increased overhead.

This discussion petered out with the common sentiment that the new charges were "outrageous," and after completing the business the evening, and thanking Warden Rye for attending, the Smith meeting adjourned until the committee returns from interviewing the Hydro-Electric Commission.



MINISTER DENIES COAL PURCHASE

Hon. E. M. MacDonald Sends Contradiction of a Newspaper Report.

OTTAWA Ont., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press) — The Department of National Defence has issued a denial of a newspaper report that the Minister of National Defence, Hon. K. M. MacDonald, purchased 10,000 of coal which is at present lying on Richmond pier, Halifax harbor, and is absolutely impossible to burn.

Since the war, according to the denial, the Department of National Defense has not ordered any coal for delivery on Richmond pier. "During the war," it continues, "Coal was stored on the pier for the use of warships and auxiliary vessels, and after the war the remnant of this coal was sold mostly to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. The Department has no coal on Richmond pier at the present time, nor does it stock any amount of coal in Halifax as it makes use of the port coaling facilities for its vessels."

RYLSTONE CHURCH TO JOIN UNION

Matters Will Be Brought Before Conference in Peterborough.

STANWOOD SERVICES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of the Seymour circuit, has received the following letter from Rev. Dr. D. W. Best of Bowmanville, secretary of the Cobourg Presbytery with regard to the proposed inclusion of the former Presbyterian Church at Rylstone in the United circuit of Seymour:

Dear Sir,—At the first meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery, held in Cobourg, September 24, 1925, it was, among other things, resolved as follows:

"On motion of Rev. S. C. Moore, seconded by Rev. D. R. Clare, it was agreed that the Presbytery express appreciation of the loyal action of the Union members of the Burnbrae and Rylstone congregations under trying circumstances and commend them to the abundant grace of God.

"I am sending this to you, as I thought you would be in the best position to see that it is conveyed to the people concerned. It might be well also to assure them that their interests will have the sympathetic consideration of the Presbytery committee on boundaries of pastoral charges."

Goes to Conference.

Mr. Daniel has communicated the contents of the above letter to Alex. Hume, of Burnbrae, secretary of the Unionists at that place and at Rylstone. The question involved will be brought to the attention of the Conference, which meets in Peterborough this week.

The proposition, as laid before the Presbytery by Mr. Daniel, is to add Rylstone Church, which has gone Union, to the five charges in the Seymour circuit, and to engage an additional pastor so that every congregation can have one service every Sunday.

At the meeting of the Conference this week, St. John's United Church will be represented by Revs. Wesley Elliott and C. F. McIntosh, the lay delegates being Elders D. W. Douglas and G. A. Kingston. The Seymour circuit delegates will be the Rev. C. D. Daniel and Elder Wm. Fry.

Anniversary of Stanwood.

Rev. J. E. Beckel of Castleton preached the anniversary sermons at Stanwood Church yesterday, Mr. Daniel taking the Rawdon circuit for the day, and Rev. F. G. Joblin going to Castleton. Mr. Beckel's theme in the morning was "Are Your Windows Open Toward Jerusalem?" and in the evening, "The Christian's Task in the New Canadian Church."

DEAD PARIS MAN BELIEVED VICTIM OF VIOLENT DEED

Body Was Found in Creek Last Friday and Suicide Was Presumed.

POST MORTEM HELD.

No Water Found in Lungs—Several Bruises Around Throat.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press)—A suspicion that Thomas Henry Carr, 59 years old, the Paris man whose body was found in a creek at Richwood on Friday last, and was identified by his brothers on Saturday, may have been murdered, developed at the inquest held yesterday afternoon at Drumbo, when Dr. Mitchell, of that village, who conducted a post-mortem on the body, informed the jury that no water was found in the lungs, and that these were several bruises around the throat of the unfortunate man.

The inquest was not completed, an adjournment of ten days being made at the request of Detective Inspector Stringer of Toronto, who has arrived in the county to assist High Constable Hill in making an investigation into the matter, which at first looked like a clear case of suicide. Little evidence was taken at the inquest yesterday, the only witness being a brother of the drowned man. His testimony, however, had little bearing on the case, as he had not seen him for two months.

Meanwhile, the brain and lungs have been sent to Toronto for a pathological examination with a view to determining the cause of death, which has not yet been ascertained as the findings of Dr. Mitchell on the post-mortem examination, in which he was assisted by Dr. C. R. McKay, of Woodstock, clearly indicate that the man was dead before his body entered the creek, near which he was found.

CRUSHED BY STONE.

Was Trying to Bury in a Huge Hole on His Farm.

DAUPHIN, Man., Oct. 13 (Canadian Press) — While trying to "bury" a huge stone on his farm, John Judziel was crushed to death. He had dug a hole near the stone, the earth collapsed and the rock rolled in upon him. It took nine men three hours to recover the body.

DRESSES & COATS IN NOVEL STYLES FOR DISCERNING BUYERS

Last week the husband of a lady purchasing in our Millinery Department asked us what we intended doing with all the old, out-of-date stock left over in the Ready-to-Wear and Millinery Departments. When told that we had none, he did not dispute the statement, but gave us a pitying sort of smile—you know the kind—a smile that said as plainly as words could do, "Go, tell that to the marines, but don't expect an intellectual human such as I am to believe it."

And yet we were right. However, we are wondering how many other folks in Peterboro are thinking the same thing.

To these we say again that you can't find an old Dress, Coat or Hat in the Store. The Sale rush cleaned us out so completely that every garment, every Hat, on the floor is a new arrival.

The Hosiery Department is the only place in the Store where we are still clearing old Hall stock. Here we are selling the Heavy Woollen and other Fall Weight Hose held back from the Clearing Sale. And we are selling these at such prices that these, too, will soon have gone the way of all the rest.

A SPECIAL VALUE EVENT

FALL FROCKS

Serviceable all-day garments, lovely afternoon Frocks, Frocks that add pleasure to the evening diversions.

Come to the Store this week and see them whilst the best choice is still possible. The colors are so varied and styles so numerous that it's impossible to give more than the briefest description of them.

A lovely Dress of black cut velvet has four godets of plain georgette inserted in skirt, giving a graceful flared effect that is further emphasized by a wide trimming of black coque feathers. The long waist is trimmed with loops and ties of ¾-inch black velvet ribbon. This is good value at $35.00

Another smart Dress at a reasonable price is made of a closely woven satin crepe in light golden tan color. It has a long sleeve in uncommon style. The skirt is trimmed with loose panels which are both smocked and pleated. It is trimmed with narrow girdle, rosettes and tinsel strapping. It is selling at $19.75

A becoming plain Dress of wedgewood blue satin crepe has a specially long waist-line finished with self-colored piping. It has a fashionable looking full flaring skirt, long sleeves and is trimmed with grey crepe collar and ties at neck and cuffs. You can buy this for $19.75

A special Dress for larger figures is made of a good quality crepe de chene and comes in black, navy blue and brown. The styles vary in trimming, but are mostly ornamented with tucks, ties and self-colored lace. Sizes from 42 to 50. Selling price ..... $15.00 to $16.75

New Millinery Arriving from Paris

Hundreds of wonderful Hats are reaching our Second Floor. Amongst these is a shipment of lovely Velvet and Plush Hats—Hats in blue, green, black and brown—Hats that come to us right from the "Rue de la Paix." Other novel styles that can be bought at less extravagant prices are a copy of the Parisian styles in both color and detail.

Here you will find Hats for matrons, misses and for the very small miss as well.

The styles include almost everything turned out by the various designers of the 1925 Fall models. There are small close shapes that suggest the Alpine mountaineer, wider brimmed shapes of the Moyen age style, soft little Frenchy Hats that don't cost much—in fact, all sorts of styles to suit all kinds of faces.

The colors for this season vary so much that they are hard to describe. Just imagine an old-fashioned garden surrounded by maple trees before the frosts have killed the flowers. Take all the colors you see there and add the blue jay's plumage, the soft grey of the dove, the deep gold of the evening sunset and the silvery gleam of the moonlight, and you have a fair idea of the Autumn tints in the 1925 Millinery Department.

And the prices—these also are too numerous to mention. They run all the way from the Child's Hat selling at $1.29 through complete ranges that will cost you $3.50, $3.95, $4.95, right up to the higher priced—some imported—models at $12.00, $15.00 and $18.00.

PRETTY FLARED COATS In Rich Plumage Colorings

At present we have about two hundred and twenty-five Coats on our racks. This statement does not mean a great deal unless you remember that every Coat is a new arrival—that every Coat is a 1925 Fall model.

All the Coats this season are in smart styles, at least all we have bought this year are smart. There are straight styles, pretty flared or rippled Coats, Coats with one, two or four godets inserted to give that particularly graceful effect so much in demand.

The Colours Are Beautiful and add much to the attractiveness of the garments. At the same time they are more varied than ever. Deep beet and grape shades vie with lovely pheasant browns, siennas and blues for first favorites, closely followed by soft green shades, greys, Autumn foliage colorings and black.

Rich Furs Add Luxuriance

These, too, are better than for many seasons. They vary, of course, according to the quality of the Coat. Many are dyed to match the color of the garment. The most used are squirrel, muskrat, opossum, racoon—dyed in some cases to imitate the mink, fitch, seal, fox and sable.

MR. MEIGHEN'S FISCAL POLICY IS ACCLAIMED AT HASTINGS

Reeve J. H. Hess Presides at Conservative Meeting in Village.

LIGHT FAILED.

M. E. Maybee and Dr. Embury State Their Views Clearly.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 13.—All of the speakers at the meeting held here last night in the interests of Milton E. Maybee and Dr. Embury, Conservative candidates respectively in the ridings of Northumberland and Peterboro-Hastings—were in perfect accord—there is something seriously wrong with Canada, low tariff has bred all sorts of economic ills, but there is one and only one panacea, the fiscal policy promulgated by Rt. Honorable Arthur Meighen. The latter was acclaimed as the chosen leader to lead the nation safely through what the speakers agreed was one of the most serious crises in its history. Meighen, as premier, was according to the orators of the evening all that was required to bring prosperity, industrial peace and happiness to Canadians.

The Light That Failed.

Hastings last night was in semi-physical darkness, as owing to an accident in the power plant, all the light available in the houses, on the streets and in the town hall where the meeting was held was that afforded by coal oil lamps and lanterns. The speakers, however, shed intellectual illumination according to their faith, upon the political problems of the day, and the large audience appeared thoroughly satisfied.

Reeve Hess Presided.

The meeting was called to order by Dr J. H. Hess, Conservative vice-president for Hastings and reeve of the village, who invited the following to take seats on the platform: Mrs. M. E. Maybee, wife of the candidate in Northumberland, and one of his best armor bearers in the campaign; Mrs. Thomas Bowman of Toronto; Mrs. Dr. W. E. Wilson, and Mrs. J. Warner of Hastings; C. P. Doughty of Hastings; Col F. D. Boggs, president, and A. R. Willmott secretary of the Northumberland Conservative Association; Thomas Green of Cobourg; Wilton E. Maybee, Hon. W. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, who was the chief speaker of the evening; Dr. Embury, and G. A. Kingston of Campbellford.

In his opening address Dr. Hess said that the issue was not a personal one between Mr. Maybee and F. J. Slade, the Liberal nominee, but the people were to be called upon to decide whether the policy of the Liberal or Conservative party was the better for the country.

The Candidate Heard.

Mr. Maybee, who was the first speaker, said he believed that the present campaign had been brought on as a result of the insistent demand of the people for a Canadian policy of their own. The Conservatives have now, as always, one policy, while the Government has many policies in different places.

The Government came into power with promises, but economy has been lost sight of and extravagance has been the watchword. When Premier King's helpers have been disposed to make trouble, he has quieted them by raising their salaries. Millions have been spent for the Union Club Building in London and for the hotel in Paris. Five millions were spent on the Quebec Harbor, for improvements that were not required. In the matter of economy the Government has certainly fallen down.

Industrial institutions, Mr. Maybee said, had not been properous. Thousands of plants have closed down and their employees have been forced to seek work in the United States. The Government is spending millions to bring in immigrants and these are slipping away to the country to the south of us. Worse still, our own boys and girls, educated here at an average cost of $1,000 each, are seeking positions across the line.

Mr. Maybee said it was ridiculous to lower the Canadian tariff when all other countries are raising theirs. While the Conservatives were in power it may be true that they did not raise the tariff to any great extent, but since that time new conditions have arisen and the Government should have acted at once.

Asking pardon for a personal reference, Mr. Maybee told how last year he had in his cellar 500 bags of potatoes which he could not sell, yet while he was attending the session of Parliament in Ottawa, he and his colleagues were eating American potatoes. American strawberries too have the run of the Canadian market, and now the egg and butter industry is threatened by the competition which is permitted by the treaty with Australia.

Thanking the electors for their support in the past, Mr. Maybee concluded with an appeal to the people to elect a Government that will give protection for their industries and employment for their labor.

Dr. Embury

Dr. Embury said that there is a feeling all over the Dominion that there is something wrong with Canada. One of the reasons for this feeling is the number of people that are leaving the country.

Speaking of his own opponent in the Hastings-Peterboro riding, who if the Progressives gained control at what guarantee had the people that ifthe Progessrives gained control at Ottawa they would do any better than the late Drury Government at Toronto.

"I stand or fall by the policy of Right Honorable Arthur Meighen," concluded the speaker. "We want a higher tariff."

Spoke to the Ladies

Mrs. Bowman spoke specially to the ladies in the audience, telling them that a high tariff meant a happy people, that a low tariff left distress in its wake. Unless the population of the cities is kept up the entire burden of the war debt will fall upon the farmers. Premier King tried to destroy the flag but failed but he had managed to destroy two-thirds of our industries. Premier King has attempted to subsidize his own constituency by giving a friend in Newmarket a practical monopoly of the lead pencil manufacturing business. The half million people who have left for the United States means the ruin of half a million homes. The only thing for Canada is protection for that means prosperity, peace and plenty.

Hon. George S. Henry.

Hon. Mr. Henry denounced the Government for its attitude on the patronage question, taking away from the Civil Service Commission one-third or more of the appointments and restoring them to the heads of departments. He also dwelt upon the exodus to the United States and said that while the Canadians have been leaving home for the past four years at the rate of 100,000 annually, in that time only 15,000, according to the records, have come back. We have a right to ask why something cannot be done to keep these Canadians at home by finding work for them. Even the best of the British immigrants are not equal to the native born and educated Canadians.

Mr. Henry said that some time ago the Government attempted to give power rights on the Ottawa to a private company that would develop 400,000 horse power and export 75 per cent. of it. They failed on account of the opposition, but if returned to power they would probably put through that proposition.

The Government attempted to regulate freight rates on the lakes, and the result was that rates went up so high that American shipping had to be called in to relieve the situation.

In 1872 the debt of the Dominion was $82,600,000. To 1913 it had increased by $230,000,000, while in the last two years the increase had been equal to what it had been from 1872 to 1913.

Dealing with the Australian treaty Mr. Henry said that while a market may have been secured for Canadian paper, the agricultural interests of Canada had been sacrificed. Australian beef, cheese, butter, eggs and vegetables were given practically free entry to the Canadian market.

American produce shipped in here is spoiling the home market for the Canadian farmer. The C.N.R. is managed by a board of directors not one of whom, except Sir Henry Thornton, has had any railway experience. The railway problems of the day come in as a result of past and present Liberal administration. We have too many roads for our population. The only solution of the transportation question is to move all our freight over our own lines, east and west, not north and south.

The Right Honorable Arthur Meighen is definite in his policies. The party is out for protection. The Progressives have no idea of leading.

Mr. Henry would puts stop to the export of raw material. The standard of living must be kept as high here as it is in the United States. When Confederation was threatened in 1878, the Conservatives saved it and the country. They did as much again in 1911, when Canada once more came to the parting of the ways, and the Conservative party can save the country in the crisis through which it is now passing.

Mr. Henry sees victory for the Conservatives. One sign is the large number of Liberals who are refusing to face the people again. Meighen is going back to the constituency in which he met defeat in 1921. R. B. Bennett and Hon. Robert Roger are in the field again. "The Liberals," said the speaker, "have been in office for the past four years without being in power, but we are going back to both office and power."

Short addresses were made by G. A. Kingston of Campbellford, Col. Boggs, H. L. Walker of Warkworth, and E. J. Squires of Norwood.

The Hastings orchestra rendered some of their choicest musical selections during the evening.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13—A. Prior, who resides on Booth street, gathered in his garden last week, a sufficient quantity of ripe and well developed raspberries to supply his own table and to furnish a rare luxury on the bills of fare of some of his neighbors. The abnormal crop, however, was brought to a sudden end by the recent heavy frost.

The Robin Nests Again

Bert Runnels is responsible for the following: Last week while in the thick woods on the farm of T. S. Horkins on the Meyersburg road, he found a nest containing three young robins, recently hatched and apparently in the best of condition. That was before the cold weather set in but young robins have been known to survive rigid atmospheric conditions in the spring time and may be as fortunate under a change of season.

MAN KILLED IN WRECK DEBRIS BY LIGHT ENGINE

Was Assisting in Clearing Tracks of Wreckage of Sunday's Accident.

IS TRAGIC SEQUEL.

Section Hand Shouted Warning, Which Was Not Heard.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Sunday's level crossing accident at Scarboro Junction had a tragic sequel yesterday afternoon when Thomas Partridge, aged 38, of Scarboro Junction, was cut in two when run over by a C.N.R. light engine while he was assisting in clearing the tracks of debris left when the Nichols and Mould families were almost wiped out. Partridge was bending down picking up some scraps of iron and other stuff as the engine approached. A fellow section hand says he shouted to Partridge to get off the track, but Partridge evidently did not hear. He lifted his head as the engine was almost upon him and tried to get out of the way but was too late. He was instantly killed. He is survived by his widow and five young children.

REASON HINTED FOR CHANGE IN CITY UTILITIES

Protest Meetings of Townships Bring Out New Suggestions.

H.E.P.C. SLIGHTED?

Statement Made That Local Body Rapped on Knuckles By Hydro.

At both the Smith and North Monaghan meetings of protest against the increased domestic power rates, it has been stated that the Hydro-Electric Commission's checking-up of the Peterboro Utilities Commission over the extension of transmission lines into the townships was one of the causes in the change of management of the city's distribution under the Utilities Commission. It has been stated that the extensions for suburban business were made with the sanction of the Utilities Commission and on the recommendation of the late manager, H. O. Fisk, following the receipt of petitions for the extensions. On this same point, it has been quite openly stated that the Hydro-Electric Commission was not consulted by the Utilities Commission in reaching out their service lines into the adjoining townshps, although the city's control did not apply outside its own boundaries. And in the explanations of the reasons for the new rates, it has been asserted that the Hydro-Electric Commission found that not only had the Utilities Commission exceeded its rights, but that the charges for the suburban service were not sufficient to meet the cost of the longar distribution.

One of the statements that have been heard was that the Hydro rapped the knuckles of the Utilities Commission, and the Utilities Commission in turn dismissed their manager, while the suburban consumers are shocked by an increase of nearly one hundred per cent in their rates.

SHRINERS VISIT KINGSTON NOBLES

City Wide Open For Big Ceremonial of Rameses Temple.

The "Daily British Whig" of Kingston, in yesterday's issue, gives the following foreword of the Shriners' ceremonial held there last evening:

The city is wide open for the Shriners. The ceremonial of Rameses Temple to be held here today afternoon and evening bids fair to be one of the most brilliant spectacles, outside of the Old Home Week, that Kingston has witnessed in a long time. Flags are flying on all the principal streets; store windows are decorated; automobiles carry messages of welcome and the citizens generally were in a holiday mood anticipating the big parade at 3.30.

Fezzes began to appear on the streets early in the morning and at one o'clock there were 575 visiting Nobles in the city, and it was estimated that at least 250 would be present from Rameses Temple, Toronto. During the morning delegations arrived from Brockville, Peterboro, Trenton, Belleville, Napanee and Picton. The delegation from Media Temple, Watertown, N.Y., arrived on the steamer Waubic shortly before noon and were met at the landing by representatives of the local and visiting clubs. They paraded up Brock Street, led by the Pipe and the R.C.H.A. bands. The Shriners were dressed in policemen's uniform and added a spice of burlesque to the proceedings.

Among the notables present are: Potentate Gus L. Hay, of Peterboro; Potentate Claude Cole, of Cape Vincent, N.Y.; Nobles Green and Dezell, representing the Media Temple patrol; Capt. W. H. Gimblett, of Hamilton, the first president of the Kingston Shrine Club; Captain Johnson of Rameses Patrol; Potentate George Cowan, of Toronto; Captain McConnell and Lieut. E. Bowerman, of Rameses patrol.

There are fifty-seven candidates to be initiated to-night into the Order and extensive preparations have been made at the Armouries for this ceremony.

London Youth Busy Learning Technique of Intricate Tango

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(United Press).—The Tango has come back, and because it is reported that the Prince of Wales was fascinated by the Tango steps during his South American visit, the fashionable younger set is working overtime acquiring the steps of the dance which was popular during the early part of the war. Bond Street music houses have been deluged with orders with Tango music the last few days, and dancing instructors are reaping a profitable harvest off pupils.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE MEN KEEP FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Empress Hotel Scene of Luncheon That Recalls Company's Founding.

MANY GUESTS.

Achievements of Half Century Referred to in Big Gathering.

Of the 26,000 executives, agents and other employees of the Prudential Insurance Company of America who this afternoon celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the company, sixty-five of its representatives and guests assembled at the Empress as a luncheon which was held simultaneously with all the others from the head office at Newark, N.J., to the remotest corner of the continent where the Prudential offers its service.

The sentiment which permeates life insurance and glorifies its functions found eloquent expression in today's far-flung series of luncheons, its underlying motive being reflected here proportionately as brightly and effectively as in the larger centres. Fifty years ago today, on October 13, 1875, the Prudential Insurance Company received its charter, and at the same hour, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, its agents met in business sessions with a great accomplishment behind them and broadening horizons before them to inspire even greater efforts and achievements in the Prudential's service to mankind.

The invited guests and representatives of the company were: Hon. G. N. Gordon, Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P., Mayor Turner, Mr. J. Wearing, City Solicitor, Rev. Gordon, Dr. McPherson, Dr. R. Scott, Dr. Howson, Dr. Moore, Lakefield; Mr. Geo. MacDonald, Mr. R. M. Glover, Mr. W. A. Richardson, Mr. R. A. Carman, Mr. P. Westbye, Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, Mr. G. S. Matthews, Mr. R. A. Brown, Mr. C. Scientist Is Critically Ill From Effects Of New Gas

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(United Press).—Professor Maxwell Lefroy, a well-known British scientist, is in a critical condition from the effects of a secret gas on which he has been working on for some time. Three days ago he was found lying prostrated in his laboratory, and the best efforts of leading physicians have been unable to revive him. He was experimenting with lewisit, a new slow poisoning and odorless gas, at the Imperial College of Science, when he was discovered.

It is believed he was on the eve of an important discovery last Saturday when he collapsed. He was found later by an attendant on the verge of suffocation.

HOUSE-WARMING PLANNED BY K.C.

Enlarged Club Will Be Opened on Thanksgiving Day With Appropriate Events.

The Knights of Columbus are planning for a house-warming with which they will open their enlarged clubhouse on Thanksgiving Day. The entire holiday is being arranged as a special occasion for the members of the local Council and probably others throughout the district. [illegible] arrangements at present include Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral in the morning with a special Speaker and a banquet in the evening with smoker and concert. In the meantime the club is looking forward to its winter activities in which bowling this year will be a prominent attraction. Already thirty teams of men have been formed, and the Knights are throwing open their new alleys to the ladies, who have organized twenty teams with perhaps others to fall in line. They have been alloted the hours from 6 until 8 p.m. every evening except Saturdays. Work on the enlargement of the Knights' home on Simcoe Street is progressing steadily and will be completed in good time for the proposed holiday opening.

CREDIT MR. MILLER.

Present Day Relief Officer Was Producer of "The Fall of Babylon."

In the reference made in the Examiner of Friday last, to the old-time programmes which commemorated the production here in 1881 of "Belshazzar's Feast," or "The Fall of Babylon," omission was made of the fact that Finch W. Miller was responsible for the presentation of the entire entertainment. Mr. Miller who was a moving spirit in musical circles here in those days, also was responsible for the production of the oratorio "Daniel," and for a very popular Old Folks' Concert.

WORKERS SEEK CONSIDERATION

Should Replace Self Interest by Social Service, Says Speaker.

LOVE REPLACE LAW.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 13. —(United Press).—The Christianizing of industry to the end that workers receive as much as the "profit of their labor affords" is the most important question before the church today, according to the Rev. John McDowell of New York, a delegate to the meeting of the Social Service Commission of the Federal Council of Churches, which begins here today.

"We must replace commercial service by Christianity, self-interest by social service, law by love," Dr. McDowell said in a sermon. "To pay men as little as they will take is the parent of anarchy, communism, smouldering rebellion, hatred, strikes and discontent. It makes the world a prison."

ENGLAND WILL NOT TOLERATE DICTATOR

Baldwin's Speech Not a Slur on Italy Says Mussolini.

ROME, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—Far from ordering a diplomatic protest against Premier Baldwin's allusion to Italy in his recent speech at Brighton, Premier Mussolini seems pleased at the British statesman's reference to him as a dictator.

"Mr. Baldwin said nothing about a dictatorship being unsuitable for Italy, he merely made an observation that it would not be tolerated in England," said Signor Mussolini.

"I do not take his remarks as a slur on Italy or as being said with the intention of casting a slur."

In his speech at the annual convention of the Conservative Party at Brighton last Thursday, Premier Baldwin said: "I have been told that this country wants a Mussolini, but the English will never tolerate a dictator. When the party wants to change its leader, I'll step down, but not until then."

MYSTERIOUS DEATH POSSIBLY MURDER

No Water in Victim's Lungs and Bruises Around His Throat.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press). — Developments at the inquest in Drumbo yesterday afternoon on the body of Thomas Henry Carr, of Paris, whose remains were found in a creek near Woodstock last Friday, tended strongly to the possibility that the man had been murdered and his body thrown into the stream. A post-mortem had been conducted by Dr. Mitchell, of Drumbo, and, according to statements made by him, no water was found in the lungs, and the throat of the dead man was marked by several bruises.

The inquest was adjourned at the request of Detective Inspector Stringer, of Toronto, who is making an investigation into the mystery which has developed around what appeared at first to be a case of suicide.

RUSSIA-GERMANY DRAW TRADE PACT

Two Years Occupied in Negotiating Treaty Embracing Ten Agreements.

MOSCOW, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press).—A trade treaty between Soviet Russia and Germany has been concluded on the principle of the most-favored-nation treatment. Privileges granted by Germany to Entents countries under the Versailles treaty will not, however, be taken as a basis, nor will privileges which Russia has granted to bordering states.

Two years have been occupied in negotiating the treaty, which embraces ten different agreement. It is considered by both parties of the greatest political importance, and is expected to have certain influence upon the economic and political combinations of Europe now being decided at Locarno.

BOLSHEVIK CHIEF IS ON REST LEAVE

Leon Trotsky Compelled to Relinquish Active Soviet Work.

TO SOUTH RUSSIA.

MOSCOW, Oct. 13. — (Canadian Press).—Leon Trotsky, his health undermined by his strenuous labors at the economic tasks assigned him on his return to Moscow five months ago, has been compelled to relinquish active participation in the Soviet regime.

Already the former war chief of the Bolsheviks is on his way to South Russia, when he returned in May, after an "exile" which began in January. His physicians have ordered a complete rest. He is going to Kislovodsk, a small health resort in the Caucasus.

RIOT TERMINATES UNION GATHERING

Police Intervene, Restoring Peace After Hectic 10-Minute Fight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.— (Canadian Press.)—Twelve persons were injured last night when rioting terminated a meeting of about 500 members of local number 35 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Police reserves and a squad of detectives fought the rioters for nearly ten minutes before peace was restored.

The purpose of the meeting was to enforce the resignation of two or more officials.

The meeting was well under way with Morris Foreman in the speaker's chair, when several men in the rear of the room shouted "sit down, we'll take a vote on this." Then came a concerted rush towards the speaker and a free for all fight ensued. Blows resounded throughout the room. Peaceful members, seeking to escape, dashed through glass panels of doors, were trampled, struck or knocked down. Policemen entered the meeting room like a whirlwind and after nearly ten minutes' work finally broke up the disturbance.

OTTAWA EAGER REVERSE SCORE AGAINST ARGOS

No Excuse Made for Last Week's Defeat at Toronto.

PLAYERS TRAIN

Entire Squad Turned Out to Practice Yesterday—Casualties Attended to.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13. Canadian Press. — A light work out and rub yesterday afternoon constituted the day's full quota of the Ottawa Senators' preparatory work for the big four game with the Argonauts here on Saturday. With one or two exceptions the entire squad was on hand and the "casualties" had their ailments attended to.

There is some doubt as to Joe Tyman's condition. The Senators' star kicking half was forced out of the game in Toronto early in the second half when his injured hip went back on him. He is taking things easy, and hopes to be in against the oarsmen here.

The team is elated over the sturdy battle given to the double nine in Toronto and are optiimstic of the result this week-end. Breaks of the game, coming against them at the wrong time, are credited with playing a big part in the Toronto defeat.

Daily practices will be held this week, special attention being given to the men. Smarter tackling is needed with additional strength or improved play around the middle wing positions.

Reasons are offered for the loss of te game against the Argos, and the men are determined to put in a strenuous week to improve their chances of scoring a victory over the scullers in the return engagement.

PIRATES REGAIN HOPE OF VICTORY

Started to Hit—Going to Keep on Hitting—McKechnie.

HARRIS STOICAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. Canadian Press. — Confidence oozed from the Pirates' club house after their victory over the Senators in the fifth game of the world's series.

"Wouldn't be surprised if we take them," Manager McKechnie said as he rushed into his clothes in preparation for an immediate train journey back to the home town. "We've got Johnson and Coveleskie out of the way for a while.

"To-morrow I am going to send Kremer back and he is in good shape to go. He has worked hard for us all year and is one who can get back into the box with a comparatively short rest.

"We started to hit, and that explains why we won, and we are going to keep on hitting from now on. Yes, I think we'll take them."

The Pirates were like a primary school let loose for recess, thumping each other on the back, smiles brightening every face as they piled into taxi cabs and dashed for the train awaiting them. McKechnie himself shook off the worried look that had been his for several days, and laughed and joked with the crowd which swarmed to the door to congratulate him.

"Those things will happen," he said "and they are a part of baseball. Covey wasn't right; anybody could see that. He wanted to go in and get back that game he lost in Pittsburg, but he wasn't there to-day.

"I may start either Reuther or Ferguson to-morrow; I have not decided."

"I wish we had it ended to-day, and did not have to go back out there. I am almost tired of the whole thing."

Walter Johnson said that if the Pirates win to-morrow, he will probably be out there again in the last game.

"We'll have to do the best we can" he argued, "and that's about all there is to it. I don't do any work to-day outside of picking up a bat once in a while around the dugout, but doubt that my sore leg will interfere if I have to go in. It's not so good to-day but I think it will be all right."

VIC ALDRIDGE SHOWED THE WAY SENSATIONAL PIRATE REVIVAL

Pittsburgh Still Require Two Straight Wins to Land the World's Championship, But Prospects Are Brighter Since Senators' Pitching Ranks Are Depleted.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE A SPECTATOR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press).—The fury of the Pirate attack, hitherto somewhat of a fable, became a reality yesterday for the first time in the world's series.

On the crest of it, the National League champions came back when their hopes seemed lost, knocked Coveleskie out of the box and captured the fifth game of the championship struggle by a margin of six to three, while the strong armed and stout-hearted Vic Aldridge hurled his second triumph over the Senators in brilliant fashion.

It was a sensational come-back on the part of the Buccaneers, who had seemed headed for quick defeat after their third defeat and shut-out on Sunday at the hands of Walter Johnson. Last night, as the warring forces departed for Pittsburgh and the sixth game there today, there was a rosier hue to the Pirate cause.

Bill McKechnie and his young stalwarts still must take two straight games to gain the world's championship heights, the club last held in 1909, for the count still gives the Senators the edge at three games to two, but their batting rampage yesterday has brought about a startling revival of Pittsburgh hopes.

These hopes were further brightened by the wreckage that this savage Pirate attack left in the pitching ranks of the Senators. Four Washington moundsmen altogether felt the reckless blows of their young rivals, Zachary as well as Coveleskie being knocked out the box while Win Ballou and Fred Marberry were rushed out in an attempt to check the sweeping advance of the invaders in the last three innings.

Bucky Harris lost the play with his big ace, Coveleskie, and now faces his fight for one more victory with a badly battered hurling staff. For today he must use either Alex. Ferguson, who was credited with the third game victory after being walloped a bit, or Dutch Ruether, veteran southpaw, and the only regular who has not gone to a firing line where the Pirates are supposed to be fatal to portsiders.

With this prospect it may be the issue will go to the limit of seven games with the final hopes of the Senators resting again on their great veteran, Walter Johnson, who finished his second victory on Sunday with an injured right leg—in baseball parlance, a "charley-horse"—and would be taxing even his great strength and heart to win again with only two days' rest.

Yesterday, before a big crowd of close to 36,000 that again included President and Mrs. Coolidge, Pirate bats that had been silenced for the most part thus far broke through the barriers in the knowledge that defeat meant final elimination.

Probably the major share of the throng came out to see Washington put the finishing touches to a second successive world's championship, which seemed in the capital's grasp once more after a brilliant attack and defence had all but overwhelmed the National League champions. But instead they saw an aroused young Pirate crew, with the glint of determination in their eyes, smash all before them in a succession of fiery drives.

The first fan of the land, President Coolidge, did not stay to see the whirlwind finish of the Pirates, but even when he was called away by a diplomatic engagement in the third inning, he had seen enough to convince him that it was Pittsburgh's day.

For it was the third inning that saw the onslaught in full swing, producing two runs that put the Pirates in the lead after Washington had gotten away to a one-run advantage in the first inning.

From that point on, it was only a question of how long the Pirates could be kept in check. There was a revival of Washington hopes in the fourth when Joe Harris, slamming out his third home run of the series into the left field stands, tied the score, but the National Leaguers broke through in the seventh and were never headed after that.

Washington had its full strength back in the game with Ossie Bluege at third base for the first time since he was "beaned" by Aldridge in the second game of the series. His fielding was a help to the champions while at bat he showed he had no fear of the Pirate flinger, slamming out a double.

The Senators, spreading their three runs over as many innings, missed as many good chances to score as did the Pirates, but they found Aldridge at his best when the danger was greatest.

QUEEN MARY SOCCER TEAM WON AGAIN

Defeated King Edward by Three Goals to Nothing.

Queen Mary Soccer team added another victory to their league standing in Section A of the local school league for the Alex Kay championship trophy when they last evening defeated King Edward by three goals to nothing.

First Half

King Edward won the toss and made their opponents face the sun. From the kick off the south-end boys made for McWilliams' goal, but the stalwart defense pair of Queen Mary frustrated the attack. Play run from end to end with nothing between the two elevens, except that the King Edward boys had the combination tactics down fine but withered against the heavy opponents who used their weight to advantage. After twenty minutes play, Robertson, the centre half, was playing a good defensive game while feeding his forwards. From one of his passes, James, at outside left, beat along the wing to punt in a dropping shot that the midget goal keeper touched but not enough to prevent a tally. Both goals were visited in rotation until half-time when Queen Mary were pressing around the goal. Half-time, Queen Mary 1, King Edward 0.

Second Half

After the customary respite, the teams went into the fray in earnest but the bigger boys from the west-end dominated the play that brought another goal when Dormer dribbled through the defense to score the second goal with a low grounder. King Edward retaliated with many raids that never got past the half-back line which was the success of the winning team, while the midgets showed nice football at times. With only seven minutes to go, Queen Mary forwards played combination right close in to goal when the King Edward goal keeper made a good effort to prevent a tally but the ball rolled through between his outstretched arms from McCarman's smart return from outside right. Nothing interesting happened thereafter but lively visits around Queen Mary's goal just at the finish. Queen Mary 3; King Edward 0.

Best for the losers were the goal keeper and two defense men, Shaw at left half and the two inside boys and centre forward who showed a good understanding of the game. Next year they will have a good eleven.

SCHOOL SOCCER LEAGUE STANDING

Queen Mary Lead in the B League—Queen Alex. in A League.

The following is the soccer league standing in the Public School League which has been played at King Edward by Section B teams while the Oval settled Section A teams' argument.

School League Standing

Section A

	P	W	L	D	Pts.
Queen Alexander	2	2	0	0	4
King George	2	0	1	1	2
Central	2	0	1	1	2

(Section B)

	P	W	L	D	Pts.
Queen Mary	3	3	0	0	6
Prince of Wales	2	1	1	0	2
King Edward	3	1	2	0	2

(P) played; (W) won; (L) lost. Points mean two points for a win and drawn game one point.

According to schedule the final is to be played on Saturday at the Oval but there has been some postponed games which may necessitate a later date but it will be announced in the press later.

When studying the league standing it is very noticeable that the Central School, last year's soccer champions and holders of the Alex Kay trophy are down in the league standing while their three-tied game opponents—Queen Alexander — has trounced the other two elevens so far, perhaps they may be able to win the cup this year when they meet Section B winners who look to be Queen Mary. Of course, the west end boys are anticipating the trophy also, so as to go along with the other sports souvenirs.

WHEN BLUEGE WAS BEANED

The above photograph was taken at the second world's series game in Pittsburgh, and shows Ossie Bluege, brilliant third baseman of the Senators, prone on the ground after being hit in the head by one of Aldridge's fast balls. The injured player is surrounded by members of both teams, who are trying to revive him. Fortunately Bluege was not seriously hurt, and returned to the game yesterday.

CUBS ADD ONE MORE IN CHICAGO SERIES

Score Was 3-1—Cubs Have Gained Three Wins—Sox One.

CHICAGO, October 13. — Canadian Press. — While his team mates were bunching hits off Ted Lyons, Tony Kaufmann held the White Sox to five hits yesterday and the Cubs added another victory in the city series. The score was 3 to 1. The Cubs now have won three games and the Sox one.

Up to the eighth inning the White Sox got only one man past second base, Sheely reaching that station in the seventh on a single and an infield out. The score:

White Sox	..	..	..	..	..	..	000000010	—	1	5	0

WORLD'S SERIES NOTES.

Stan Harris had only Ferguson and the southpaw, Dutch Ruether, to shoot at the Pirates today, and the Buccaneers are deadly against left-handers. They peppered Zachary hard yesterday. McKechnie has Kremer primed for the next game and is sitting pretty riding West last night.

Joe Harris is the hitting fool of the series. Nothing stops him, fast ball, hooks, knuckle balls, all go flying back to the fences from Joe's bat. The Pirates camp against the fence, but fences were made for Joe to hit home runs over. He collected his third circuit smash of the series yesterday.

Coveleskie was not the pitcher yesterday that he was in the second contest. He seemed a worn and tired man out there on the hurling hill with his moist flings and half-speed curves. The Pirates pecked away at him for four innings, then held up their attack for two frames and finally drove him to cover in the seventh.

Wright's play around the short field sparkled with irridescent brilliance. He knocked down hits to right and left and took the heart out of the Senators with fast throws from every position.

The Pittsburgh rooters came into their own with yesterday's victory and organized a snake dance down Pennsylvania Avenue on the way to the railroad station. They were still at it when the train pulled out.

Stuffy McInnis, appearing at first base in his sixth world's series, was one of the hardest fighters on the field. Constantly guiding Aldridge, steadying the infield and urging the batsmen to super-deeds, Stuffy kept himself busy throughout. He fielded his position perfectly and shot forth a single in the eighth which scored Wright. And when Earl Smith wandered from his post in the ninth, Stuffy was the man to call him back.

Hundreds of balls went out of the game before yesterday's contest started. Most of them had the names of Senators and Pirates all over them; but some of the bleacherites were satisfied to keep them without insignia.

Both teams left for Pittsburgh immediately after the game, expecting to arrive at midnight and gain a full night's sleep on solid beds.

Reporters and the just plain fans who are following the teams departed at the earliest opportunity.

Mr. Coolidge, sitting behind the Washington dugout, kept a score of the game throughout.

LEADLEY REPEATED CONSTANTINE'S FEAT

Recollections of Game Between R.M.C. and McMaster University in 1904.

KINGSTON, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Leadley's feat on Saturday in going down the field and getting his own kick for a touchdown, recalled to the older fans at the game, the work of Col. C. F. Constantine, Commandant of the Royal Military College, who, as a half-back for the R.M.C. team in 1904, won the Intermediate championship by following through his own kick and winning the title.

The deciding game for the Intermediate Inter-Collegiate championship was being played here between R.M.C. and McMaster of Toronto. The game wore along into the final quarter, and McMaster were leading five points. Constantine, in the dying moments of the game, lifted a mighty kick, the ball travelling over sixty yards down the field. Like a racehorse, Constantine tore down the field and grabbed his own kick shooting across the McMaster goal line for a touch-down, which tied up the game. An instant later the ball was brought out for the convert, and with the championship depending on Constantine's kick, he sent over as perfect a convert as was ever seen locally, thereby bringing the title to the R.M.C.

M'GILL SENIORS MINOR CASUALTY IN R.M.C. BATTLE

Walsh Will be Laid Off With Injured Right Leg.

ST. GERMAIN BACK

Shaughnessy Will Start Squad at Scrimmage Work This Afternoon.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13—(Canadian Press).—After their rout of the Royal Military College squad in an exhibition game here last Saturday, McGill's Senior squad returned to the gridiron yesterday afternoon for limbering up and signal drill. Only one minor casualty was reported, Des Walsh being limp from an injured right leg which will keep him under wraps for a day or two. St. Germain, McGill's kicking half, who broke two fingers of his left hand in the old boys' game, was out punting the ball, and it is now fully expected that he will be able to start against Queen's Saturday at centre half.

Coach Shaughnessy to-day will start his squad in strenuous scrimmages and also at drillings in new formations which he plans to use against Queen's. These will be continued to-morrow, when the team will work without opposition as the Intermediates and Juniors are playing at Loyola. Thursday the final big scrimmage will be held against the substitutes—an even which will be witnessed by the entire cheering section of the College—band and all—which will attend in a body to rehearse their acts for Saturday's encounter.

MONTREAL WINNER INTER-CITY MATCH

Golf Players of Royal Club Beat Toronto Men in Foursome.

MONTREAL, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Playing consistently steady golf throughout the 18-hole competition, Norman Scott and Charlie Murray, of the Royal Montreal Golf Club, club champion and professional respectively, defeated Andrew Kay, professional at Lambton, and George Cumming, Toronto Golf Club professional, in an inter-city foursome at Dixie yesterday afternoon. The local men won by four up and three to play.

Scott and Murray early established a lead in the match and held it throughout, never conceding the honors to their opponents. The contest was originally scheduled as a 36-hole competition for Saturday afternoon of last week, but the blanket of snow which covered the course caused the postponement until yesterday. The play was witnessed by a fair-sized gallery, which followed the players over the 18 holes.

Airth, it will be remembered, was seriously injured in the game on Saturday but continued on. It was found that he was suffering from a rupture of the internal lateral ligament of the knee joint, and the injury is such that he may never be able to play again.

FORBES FIELD, Pittsburgh, Oct. 13.—Any doubt that Ferguson and Kremer would be the batteries was removed when they took their places in the warm-up pits. Ruel was catching the Senators' right-hander's shoots, while Jack Onslow warmed up Kremer. Sam. Rice, hero of the catch off Smith that saved the third game for the Senators on Saturday, was greeted with an outburst of boos and cat-calls as he took his place in centre field for practice. When he fumbled the first ball hit to him, the bleacher crowd "razzed" him vociferously. The belief apparently was held that Rice had "pulled one" on his famous play of several days ago.

To-Day's Line-Up.

Washington—Rice, cf; S. Harris, 2b; Goslin, lf; J. Harris, rf; Judge, 1b; Bluege, 3b; Peckinpaugh, ss; Severeid, c; Ferguson, p.

It was a long drive and was his third of the series. Joe Harris' savage foul scattered the box holders in left field. Kremer threw out Joe Harris at first, Harris topping the ball for a weak roller. One run, one hit, no errors.

Pirates—Ruether went out to warm up as a possible relief pitcher. Moore shot a single through Bluege, hitting the first ball pitched. Carey sacrificed Bluege to Judge. Cuyler backed away from a wide curve. Cuyler sent a high fly to Rice, Moore holding second. Bluege threw out Barnhart at first, taking the Pirate's hot smash that came right at him. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

Bluege was caught off first, the play being made, Kremer to McInnis to Moore to Kremer. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Pirates—McInnis sent out a long fly to Rice. Smith struck out. Kremer struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Senators—Peck popped to Traynor, who ran over to the pitcher's box to make the catch. Wright tossed out Severeid at first. Ferguson fanned. No runs, no hits, no errors.

GERMANY WILL JOIN LEAGUE OF NATIONS

By Terms of Agreement to Join on Understanding of Covenant.

LOCARNO, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press.—A gentlemen's agreement concerning the conditions of Germany's entry into the League of Nations is a collective statement which will be signed by Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium. By its terms, Germany agrees to join the League on the understanding that the League of Nations alone is competent to interpret the League covenant. But the powers signatory to the agreement, all of which are represented in the Council, informed Germany in effect that in their opinion the League of Nations cannot ask from member states, military, economic or financial contributions in case of war, which would be incompatible with their capacity.

INSIDE GOLF.

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

By CHESTER HORTON

Golfers who have obtained from the game a pastime consisting merely of hitting the ball around can change the whole pursuit of golf into a sport of surpassing charm by learning to forget the ball, so to speak, and undertaking to find out just how the fundamentals of golf are to be applied by themselves. This can be done, too, just as well in the so-called off season as during the actual playing season. Here is how to begin what perhaps may be a wholly new career in golf: The first thing to acquire in golf is the swing. There are several fundamental swings, beginning with the upright. Variations are the medium upright and the flat swing. If you are an average business man golfer, adopt the medium upright swing as your goal and begin to master it. Work entirely with the swing. You can practice it better without a ball than with one. In to-morrow's article I will describe this swing, also picture it, and you can go about mastering it.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 14.

An active and progressive day may be predicted from the beneficent influences of powerful plants. Saturn, Jupiter and Mars, in friendly position, stimulate to vigorous enterprise, with ambition, application and initiative reaping rich reward in increased money as well as expansion in business. It might be well, however, to exercise precaution in the signing of all papers or documents.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of satisfactory progress, with increased business and growing fortune. They should, however, be careful in the signing of all writings. A child born this day should be active, energetic, ambitious and industrious, rising in good position through these developed qualities.

DUNDEE MAY NOT BATTLE HERMAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press).—Johnny Dundee, former world's featherweight champion, failed to weigh in today at the offices of the New York Boxing Commission for his scheduled 15-round fight with Babe Herman this afternoon at the Polo Grounds. Friends of the former titleholder said he would not appear in the ring against Herman, due to a disagreement with the promoter, Jimmy Johnston.

Students May Not Marry

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 13.— (Canadian Press. — Marriage is a fine old institution but it is incompatible with higher education, Northwestern University officials have decided.

Any student who marries while enrolled as an undergraduate, thereby severs his connection with the school, President Walter Dill Scott announced.

SURPRISES MARK 10-ROUND BOUTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(Canadian Press). — Giving away nineteen pounds to a game and courageous foe, Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, yesterday afternoon made an auspicious start in his attempt to qualify for a fight with Jack Dempsey by scoring a technical knockout over King Solomon of Panama in the ninth round of a 10-round match at the New York National League Baseball Park.

Berlenbach, weighing but 172 against 191 for the Central American heavyweight, battered Solomon into submission after chasing him around the ring with a blinding barrage of blows to the body and head. The light-heavyweight champion was credited with winning every round of the one-sided contest by newspapermen at the ringside. Solomon kept his feet with difficulty until the eighth, when he was floored three times. After 31 seconds of the ninth round, Referee Jack O'Sullivan stepped between them and sent Solomon to his corner, ending the fight.

Solomon's defeat was the second surprise of the day for a crowd of about six thousand had previously seen Babe Herman of California, outstanding featherweight challenger, held to a draw by Joe Celmars of New York, a comparative unknown.

Celmars entered the ring for his match with Herman on only a few hours' notice as a substitute for the retired featherweight champion, Johnny Dundee, who failed to appear for the weighing in at the offices of the New York Boxing Commission. Celmars appeared to be slightly over weight at 132½ against 126 for Herman.

He soon proved that he would make trouble for the Californian by flooring the latter with a terrific left hook after the opening of the first round.

During the next three rounds, of the 10-round contest, Celmars nonplussed the man who only recently held the champion, Louis ("Kid") Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., to a draw, dazzling Herman with his speed and a sharp left jab to the head. Displaying nimble footwork he made Herman miss with his both hands as the crowd roared in approval, and it was not until the fifth round that the latter finally found the range.

Herman rallied in the latter rounds and brought the fight to even terms, in the opinion of the judges, by terrific right handers to the chin, which found Celmars always willing to mix. The draw verdict of the judges was received with disappointment by the crowd, a chorus of boos and hisses indicating that many believed Celmars entitled to the honors.

The third of three ten-rounders which featured the show, conducted as a benefit for the National Sports Alliance, brought together a pair of fleet-footed lightweights, Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N.Y., and Sid Terris, of New York. It was their second meeting, and Terris, who had won the previous bout, took the judges' decision again yesterday afternoon.

A fast left jab which constituted Terris' chief weapon of defence was matched against a flailing left, when called upon by Bernstein. The jab proved the more effective of the two blows, and Bernstein was bleeding at the mouth when the tenth ended.

P. C. I. Meet University of Toronto at James Stevenson Park

IN GOOD FORM.

The date of the big P.C.I. versus University of Toronto Schools game has been changed from Friday to this coming Saturday afternoon. The scene of the battle will be James Stephenson Park.

This game will open the local rugby season and will be the first league game in this Interscholastic group. It is rather unfortunate for the local team that they are stacked aagainst the ever-strong U.T.S. outfit in the first tussle of the season. Coach Browne and his eager squad were out yesterday afternoon after school on the Oval for a smart practice. There were two full teams in uniform and the regular of first team had steady opposition from the substitutes and second team combined. Mr. Browne has changed the style of play somewhat, but the P.C.I. plays are still modelled closely after the Queen's mode. Alden Bookhout and Carl Wood make a strong backfield pair for the garnet and grey and many of the players in the line will surprise the fans with their dash and gameness.

Junior O.R.F.U.

Max Sloane had a full turnout of his squad last evening and a strenuous practise was gone through. The wings had plenty of practice of correct tackling methods. The backfield got in some fine running and passing drill and the line worked steadily at clipping and making holes in the opposing line. After dark the squad adjourned to the Armouries where drill in the plays and signals followed.

The Juniors have a strong hefty pair of middle wings in MacIntosh and Griffin. On outside and flying wing positions they have some fine tacklers in Manning, Henry, Outram, Yelland and Redpath. Fraser is playing at quarter and for the back field they have Mulholland, who will do the kicking, Rye, Yelland and Henry.

AT THE ROYAL.

NOVAK-FAIRBANKS PICTURE AT ROYAL.

Another Thriller by Your Favorites

Eva Novak and William Fairbanks will come to the Royal Theatre next Friday for a two-day run. They are starring in "The Beautiful Sinner," a detective romance which is a series of thrills from start to finish. A band of crooks land in this country after committing a robbery in Peru. They are discovered by a young criminologist and he decides to go on the case at the request of a secret service man. Among the band he finds a young beautiful girl who has been vouched for by his aunt. Her connection with the band and the final working out of the mystery form the subject of a very interesting picture.

Eva Novak and William Fairbanks do some very excellent work in this picture. There is a thrill in every reel and the picture is warranted to bring the most staid audience out of its seats. An automobile is driven over a cliff and everything. Taken at large this picture is warranted to be a good evening's entertainment.

"THE UNWANTED," BIG BRITISH SPECTACLE OPENS BIG AT ROYAL

The G. B. Samuelson special production which opened yesterday at the Royal Theatre, met with spontaneous and unqualified success. Not every day does not see a film play of such big pretensions which at the same, time is knitted into a coherent dramatic story which carries the anxieties and sympathies of an audience from beginning to conclusion.

It is doubtful if we have ever seen as fine a sequence of battle engagements as were presented in this picture. Small wonder when one is told that many of the war sets are not sets at all but were actually photographed by German camera men from dug-out and shell craters on the outskirts of No Man's Land. For sheer realism and grisly splendour we must admit we have seen nothing better.

The story has a powerful theme, and is at all times convincing. The offspring of aristocracy is, so to speak, snatched beside the child born out of wedlock, to which chaos enter the photoplay owes its title. Both young men are plunged into the crucible of emotional excitement and the final evolution is worthy of one's investment of the usual two hours and the customary amount of silver currency with the hope of ensnaring a few thrills.

Unquestionably yesterday's audiences were, and all future audiences will be, jostled out of their usual state of placidity by this meritorious production. The film is lavishly besprinkled with romance and likewise with beauty. The carnival scenes in Venice and the stern majesty of the Swiss Alps are a treat to the eye. As regards the rioting scenes in the different centres on the announcement of the outbreak of the war, one regrets that these are so short. They are unquestionably the most stirring continuity of the picture, indeed one of the finest things we have seen in a long time and it is a pity the director did not see fit to lengthen them out to more sizable proportions.

Among the cast, outstanding work was done by Francis Lister as "The Unwanted." He is a personal youth, with strong and attractive features, who sticks to his work quite seriously in the serious moments and is engaging enough in the lighter moments. He is a finished performer. The character acting of Lillian Hall Davis, who we believe is the same young lady who took the part of the heroine in "Quo Vadis," is also good. She is a pretty girl and has much more scope for acting in this film than she had in the former. Her performance is exceptionally good except that one might complain of over-emphasis in certain spots. Nora Swinburne is good as the later heroine. Aubrey Smith as John Carrington renders a stellar performance. He is very reminiscent of Lewis Stone. The others of the cast are satisfactory.

On the whole we will say that "The Unwanted" is a photoplay meriting our highest recommendation. Not only is one intensely entertained during the course of its unfolding but one carries away a sense of satisfaction in having seen something highly worthwhile.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE DANGER SIGNAL."

"The Danger Signal," featured at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week, is one of those interesting pictures that seem to combine elements in one production. A theme like mother love and sacrifice is usually associated with a picture to the exclusion of other elements, but in "The Danger Signal" there is mother love and sacrifice, a romantic love story that involves two men and a woman in its unfolding, and above all, a whole lot of exciting thrills, leading to a tense, dramatic scene with a runaway locomotive and a passenger train on the same track, and a motorcyclist trying to avert certain disaster. There is a realistic action in the gripping scene that forms the central bit in the story.

Jane Novak enacts the role of Mary Browning, who is forced to give up her child to his wealthy grandfather. The boy and her other son grow up in ignorance of their relationship and meet only when they are rivals for the hand of the same girl, Laura Whitman, played by lovely Dorothy Revier. Laura poses for a portion of the time as a parlor maid, and the poor son, who is a fireman on the railroad, meets her in this way and falls in love with her. The situation which develops and the complication injected by the action of a convict in causing the runaway locomotive to meet the passenger train, with the efforts of John (Robert Gordon) to avert the tragedy.

It is an interesting picture, one of the sort that keeps the attention of the audience riveted to the film from the first moment to the last, and exceptionally worth while as an evening's entertainment.

Jimmie Adams in "Be Careful" is the comedy attraction, and there is the usual run of entertaining short reels.—Jeannette.

WHO KISSED BARBARA?

A sparkling farce-comedy in one act, by Franz and Lillian Rickaby. A kiss in the dark given to Barbara Nichols, the bridesmaid, the evening before the wedding of Katherine Blake, nearly resulted in no wedding. Dress suits and peppermint sticks are so closely associated with the bridegroom, the best man, and the butler, that the unravelling of the mystery of "Who Kissed Barbara?" requires a good deal of Sherlock Holmsing on the part of the two girls. A bright, snappy comedy, at the Capital Theatre Oct. 19, 20, 21, under the capable direction of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, with local cast.

AT THE GRAND.

THE DUMBELLS IN "LUCKY 7".

An attraction that needs but bare announcement of its coming to insure capacity audiences in this city is The Dumbells, but because of the exceptional excellence of this their seventh annual offering, which comes to the Grand Opera House for two nights and matinee, October 16-17, a bit of additional information may not be amiss.

The new revue, which is under the personal direction of Captain M. W. Plunkett, has been appropriately named "Lucky 7". If there be such a thing as luck in odd numbers and virtue in the seven above all others, well and good, for The Dumbells will apparently need the unanimous support of everyone this season. To begin with, Captain Plunkett has augumented the company and orchestra and added at least a third more to his production cost and weekly operating expense. That he has achieved marvellous results by way of entertainment value has been conclusively evidenced in all the cities where the show has played. The newspapers have been enthusiastic in their praise, not only of the various artists and their individual successes, but of the production itself—the scenic investure, the lavish costuming and the masterful stage-craft evidenced in the smooth running evenly balanced performance.

Captain Plunkett's orchestra provides twenty minutes of wonderous melodies embracing every form of music from jazz, exemplified by "Yes Sir, That's My Baby" to Gounod's "Faust."

Al. Plunkett proves his right to stardom by singing "Whiter Than Snow" and "As Long As She Loves Me", as only Al. Plunkett could sing them. Ross Hamilton further clinches his hold on the title of the "world's greatest impersonator" by his rendition of "Darling, I Love You", which, by the way, was written for him by Howard Fogg, the new musical director of the company.

"Red" Newman, Stan. Bennett, Pat. Rafferty, Ben Allen, Morley Plunkett, "Jock" Holland and Glen Allan contribute materially to the success.

Y. W. GIRLS HAD WEEK-END PARTY

The Y.W.C.A. Girls' Conference held at Mrs. M. A. Morrison's cottage at Stoney Lake over the week-end, proved a very enjoyable and interesting event. Fourteen girls and four leaders were in attendance.
The conference proper was opened by Miss L. Brownscombe, who stated the four-fold aim of the Y.W.C.A., and emphasized the theme of the conference. In reference to the physical developmen. angle, one girl suggested that a Girl Guide patrol be organized. It was also suggested that the girls who cannot afford to pay the large amount for gymnasium tuition and costume, be allowed to pay in weekly instalments. Also that a special swing class be conducted for a week prior to the gym. opening, so that the girls could make their own costumes.
Miss Brownscombe explained in detail the various angles of 'Y' endeavors, and a jolly sing song completed the session.
On Sunday, a service of song and prayer was held, and a Bible Study class conducted by Miss E. Thomlinson, followed by a discussion of the religious work of the Y.W.C.A. A feeling was expressed that if there was something to do in connection with our religious work it might appeal more to the average active girl.
Miss Brownscombe explained the department of Foreign Work, and raised the question as to how best to raise the money. The secretary spoke of forming a Japanese Council to plan means of interesting the girls in foreign work, this council to take the lead in raising the money. Pageants and a Japanese Tea were suggested as a means of educating the members of the 'Y.' Those at the conference expressed a willingness to help.
The girls expressed their appreciation to all who helped make this first Girls' Conference a success and a very hearty vote of thanks and appreciation to Miss Brownscombe concluded the last session.

French Finance Minister Explaining Arrangement to His Colleagues.

MONEY SOURCE QUERY

PARIS, Oct. 13 (Canadian Press) —Finance Minister Caillaux, fresh from his debt funding mission to the United States, came to grips with some of the French "die hards" today, beginning a conflict which political experts say will make his experience in Washington seem pale in comparison.
M. Caillaux gave a resume of the financial situation for his colleagues in the cabinet this morning and then, after a hasty lunch, presented himself for a heckling before the finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies, which has just finished examining the appropriations for 1926 and now wants to know where the money is coming from.
